Hitler's Great Power.
Christianity Defined.
Two Ladies Amazed.
Bread, Salt, Feathers.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

IN THE EXCITEMENT of pessimism, despair, following a great war, events move quickly. Four years ago, Hitler, born in Austria, was not even a German citizen, and last Sunday the German people by a vote of approximately 38,000,000 to 4,000,000 approved his assumption of the presidency following von Hindenburg's death.

Hitler is today the world's most powerful ruler, in control of a great nation. As regards his "legal" powers, there is practically no limit to them.

HITLER NOW holds in his hands all the powers once exercised by the Kaiser, the Reichstag, the various separate kingdoms and governments that make up the German empire.

Also, quite important, "Herr Hitler has the power to declare war and to make peace."

It might be easier to declare war than to make peace in these times. He is commander of the army, navy and air force, which indicates rapid progress for a gentleman who was not a citizen of the German nation four years ago.

THE HITLER election was a widespread affair. In many foreign cities Germans, retaining their nationality, went out to sea on German ships, accompanied by German consuls and voted "100 per cent, of course, for Hitler," outside foreign territorial waters. Near Hongkong, Rome, Constantinople, elsewhere, such elections at sea, took place. That election was well managed, bands paraded, church bells rang to wake voters early. Hitler appeared at his window 12 times, applauded wildly each time by immense crowds that gathered for a glimpse of him.

THE BISHOP at the head of Chancellor Hitler's German church, encouraging ill treatment of the Jews, says "anti-Semitism is a thoroughly Christian movement."

The Lord of the Universe could not have been aware of that when he selected a Jewish girl to be mother of His only son.

Perhaps even now He would not agree with the head of Mr. Hitler's German church.

MR. M'ALLISTER, earnest District Attorney of Sacramento, California, fears that movie stars have been financing Communism and proposes to stop it.

Miss Lupe Velez and Miss Dolores Del Rio, two young ladies of whom it is said, reasonably, "if you put them on top of the world's biggest iceberg they would burn a hole through and come out of the bottom," are surprised to find themselves listed among "friends of Communism."

Miss Del Rio and Miss Velez, rolling their pretty well-trained eyes toward high heaven, say in chorus "we don't even know what the blazes a Communist is."

Miss Del Rio contributes this observation:

"I certainly would not give money to anything I didn't know about. I know where all my money goes, except what I pay for taxes."

Many men, solemn, fat and gray-haired, will say "amen" to that.

THOSE IN charge of United States finances should see Cleveland's exhibition of different monies. It includes "specimens of rock salt money, formerly used by the Abyssinian natives, bread money used in Russia, and Mayan feather money."

Millions of tons of rock salt lie under the ground all over the United States, up in New York's Genessee Valley for instance. And, before we had the drought, our surplus of wheat would have enabled us to manufacture bread money, whatever that may be, dried loaves of black bread, probably on a scale never before dreamed of in Russia.

When we get tired of gold, silver and paper, we might try rock salt money, bread money or even feather money, unless we can think of something funnier.

"Off the gold basis, on the feather basis" would at least sound comfortable.

FRANCE HAS begun shipping silver to this country. This country begins shipping gold to France.

The United States could easily buy all the silver in the world at present prices. The total would not amount to much. After we got it, we would probably ship it back.

It is said the Russian government is trying to get in

BANKERS TO AID HOUSING LOANS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt was told today by officials of the American Bankers' Association that bankers are ready to co-operate in carrying out the two federal proposals for industrial loans and for loans for home modernization.

Francis M. Law, president of the A. B. A., conferred with the President. He said:

"The American Bankers' Association, after looking at the setup of the industrial and housing loan projects, feels they are all right and that banks can well afford to co-operate.

"The American Bankers' Association will lend its friendly offices in providing full information to the banks.

"We believe both loans sound and that the banks can be very useful.

"We feel that the bankers will co-operate wholeheartedly in both classes."

Three More Banks To Further Repairs

Three additional Pittsburgh district banks have received insurance acceptances from the Federal Housing Administration enabling them to make loans for home repair and modernization. They are the Colonial Trust Company, of Pittsburgh; the National Bank and Trust Company, Connellsville, and the First National Bank of Sewickley.

Economy Act Berated by Head of '98 Vets

PRIEST'S DEATH LINKS 'GHOST WOMAN'

VETS' CHIEF DENOUNCES 'ECONOMY'

United Spanish War Delegates Devoting Day to Sports

Scathing denunciation of the National Economy Act still ringing in their ears, visiting United Spanish War Veterans legions moved on South Park today for an outing and field day celebration—the high spot of the thirty-sixth national encampment of veterans and their auxiliaries.

The economy act was berated as "one of the blackest pages in the national legislative history of our country" by William H. Armstrong, national commander-in-chief, at the opening business session yesterday. He said:

"Under threats that it was necessary 'to maintain the credit of the United States government' and 'to balance the budget,' the passage of the National Economy Act was forced through the Congress.

"Time has fully demonstrated the falseness of the arguments used at that time and the emptiness of the pledges made to decently care for the veterans."

SPORTS PROGRAM

A track and field meet for men, women and children; horse racing and polo; a parade of veterans, and a competitive drill for ladies' auxiliary teams and drum and bugle corps will feature the outing, scheduled to get under way at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The parade and drill competitions will not be held until this evening.

County Commissioner C. C. McGovern is grand marshal of the parade and review which is scheduled to start at 7:30 p. m. Orders for the formation of units in the Woman, Girl Aid Hunt for Gunmen

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—(INS.)—Secret information from a woman and a 15-year-old schoolgirl today sped police in their search for the gunman who mowed down a fugitive in full view of several hundred children in the Bronx.

The victim was Rosario Arcurio, 50, sought for 11 months by the police of Patterson, N. Y., as a desperado and a killer.

Briton Over Atlantic Flying to America

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—John Grierson, British flier on his second attempt to fly the Atlantic westward by the northern route, took off at 11:10 a. m. (7:10 a. m. E. S. T.) for Angmagsalik, on the east coast of Greenland. Grierson intends to end his flight in Ottawa.

'Plot' Bared To Impeach McNair

Mayor McNair this afternoon said he had heard that an attorney was collecting a fund to impeach him.

His Honor described what he said was a telephone conversation between himself and the attorney.

He declared he called the attorney and said:

"Hello, this is Mr. Smith."

The Mayor said he then offered to contribute to the impeachment fund, but the attorney refused to accept any money except through a contact man.

Gleeful over the incident, His Honor said he wanted the attorney to go ahead with the impeachment proceedings.

WALES CAUSES FASHION WAR

International News Service.

BIARRITZ, France, Aug. 21.—A dress war broke out today among fashionable men gathered at this watering place, and the Prince of Wales was revealed as the cause of it all.

It has been an axiom that when the Prince goes vacationing he casts conventions aside, including those governing what the well dressed man should wear.

Those of the cosmopolitan crowd now gathered here who didn't know this before know it today.

The Casino was the scene of the demonstration. Beautifully gowned women and men in full evening dress thronged the ornate halls, word having gone around that the Prince would be there.

And when he arrived he gave Biarritz a shock.

For instead of the conventional tailcoat and white tie, His Royal Highness turned up in an ordinary blue sack suit with a soft-collar shirt.

Killed By Own Car, Verdict in Mystery

PORTLAND, Conn., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—After several hours of investigation into the mysterious death of Louis J. Allen, 48, retired Middletown druggist, whose body was found early today in a pool of blood, state police said they believed the man was fatally injured by his own car.

It is the belief of the state police and Coroner Smith that Allen, after parking his car at the top of a hill, was hit by the car as he was returning to close a gate leading out of Job's farm, where he had been visiting.

Star's Autograph Holds Up Air Liner

Martin Moran, 14, of 1505 Buena Vista street, an Oliver High School freshman, boasted today that he held up the crack Transcontinental and Western Airways' Douglas air liner five minutes last night while he obtained the autograph of his favorite motion picture actress, Nancy Carroll, westward bound.

Young Martin was visiting the airport to see the new Douglas air liner when he espied Miss Carroll.

Auto Victim's Body Claimed After Week

LATROBE, Pa., Aug. 20.—(AP.)—The body of Guy Eldred, 65, a farmer living near Saegerstown, was claimed today by a Cambridge Springs undertaking establishment at the Latrobe Hospital where it has been since he was killed last week in an automobile accident.

The farmer was struck by an automobile while changing from a rumble seat to the front seat of his son James' car. The two were en route home.

Express Kills Man On Grade Crossing

READING, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—A Pennsylvania Railroad express train hit a coal truck at a grade crossing today, killed the driver, James H. Phillips, of Chester, and damaged the locomotive so badly it had to be replaced.

N. Y. BANDITS ROB TRUCK OF $427,000

Crew of Armored Car Held Up, Menaced By Machine Gun

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Working with machine-like precision, a holdup gang was reported to have escaped with nearly a half million dollars after sticking up an armored car in Brooklyn this afternoon.

The gang, reported to number 10 men, was said to have been equipped with pistols and a machine gun.

Police said the armored car guards told them the bandits had gotten away with $427,000. The truck had been making collections at branch banks over Brooklyn to deposit it in various central banks.

The holdup occurred directly in front of the plant of the Rubel Ice Corporation.

Substantiation of the amount of loot would mean the stickup constituted the largest "job" of its kind in this city since the exploits of the late Gerald Chapman, notorious mail truck bandit who was executed in Connecticut for the murder of a policeman.

Witnesses and victims (the armored car guards) disagreed on the number of men in the gang. Estimates at first ranged as high as 12 men, but later were reduced to from seven to ten.

The men escaped in three automobiles, apparently by different

AUSTRO-ITALIAN PARLEY HELD

By GUGLIELMO EMANUEL

International News Service.

FLORENCE, Italy, Aug. 21.—The meeting of the dictators of Austria and Italy, postponed by assassination, civil war and the near-conflict of nations, took place today in a country villa near this historic city, where centuries ago, Machiavelli laid down the rules for successful dictatorships.

Dr. Kurt Schuschnigg, bespectacled, scholarly-looking chancellor of Austria, today kept the appointment which his predecessor, Engelbert Dollfuss, had on July 26 with Benito Mussolini, but was prevented from fulfilling by an assassin's bullet the day before.

MEET IN SECRECY

Although the two dictators have attempted to shroud their meeting in the utmost secrecy in the heavily-guarded villa, the eyes of the world will be on these two men, knowing that the fate of Austria is involved in this meeting and wondering whether the next move to strengthen her independence will be merely an economic one or a spectacular restoration of the youthfully handsome Archduke

Women Pray While Storm Grips Ireland

WATERFORD, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Terrified women knelt in doorways and prayed yesterday for abatement of a storm which was ravaging Ireland. The gale was one of the worst in years.

Although no deaths or injuries were reported the winds, sometimes rushing at 100 miles an hour, caused heavy property damage.

One Leg, Achieves Second Story Job

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—James D. McNicholl, 21, who says he lives in Cincinnati, O., was sentenced to 30 days in jail today as the first one-legged "second story operator" ever to appear in city court.

McNicholl pleaded guilty to a charge of entering the apartment of Harold Burleson yesterday, where he took some clothing.

War Unlikely in Europe Now, Mr. Hearst Holds

The following interview with William Randolph Hearst appeared in the Paris edition of the New York Herald-Tribune last Sunday:

VENICE, Aug. 18.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST, the American publisher, does not believe there is going to be a European war, which, if it happened, he thinks would bury Europe beneath its own ruin. Present differences, he believes, will be settled by peaceful plebiscites.

Mr. Hearst, who has been touring England and other European countries for many weeks with a large party, is now at the Excelsior Hotel, Lido.

Summarizing his observation of conditions, Mr. Hearst wrote out for the Paris Herald the following statement, the first he has made since his arrival in Europe:

"No, I do not think there is going to be a war. In the first place, war costs money, immense amounts of money.

"No European nation has enough money to make war.

"OF COURSE England has a little money and France has some gold, but no nation, not even England or France, has enough money to carry on a protracted war. Furthermore no nation has any considerable credit.

"Certainly none of them has any credit in the United States.

"We have had enough experience with defaulters and it is a little difficult to see how nations without any money are going to borrow from each other.

"Nor can they borrow from their own people. Their own people are largely broke and have been thoroughly swindled by their own governments, which swindle at home and default abroad.

"There remains only confiscation-theft.

"The lack of money and credit is, therefore, one reason why there will not be a war.

"There is another reason.

"Europe is almost prostrate now. Another war, even more destructive than the last, would bury it beneath its own ruin.

"In addition to the enormous destruction of life would be the total destruction of property.

"Europe would be depopulated and devastated. It would almost be ended as a factor in civilized development and human progress. There would be left, for a long time at least, only America and Asia.

"THERE IS a third reason why there will be no war.

"After the travail, the tragedy, the anguish, the agony of the next war resentful peoples in every nation will rise in complete rebellion-communism and worse than communism will be in complete possession of every state.

"The classes now important in the community—the classes which control government and will be held responsible for the war—will cease to exist.

"The poverty of the nations and of peoples, which is only partial now, will be complete.

"The destruction of class, destruction which is only partial now, will be absolute.

"Red mobs will surely rule in every nation and the present upper classes will find themselves the lowest and most detested classes, lucky if they retain even their lives.

"The scenes of the recent Russian revolution and of the earlier French revolution will be repeated in every state in Europe.

"The destruction of the social revolution which will follow the war will be as great as the devastation of the war.

"Combined, they will mean annihilation, anarchy.

"THIS IS not a jeremiad.

"The facts are clear to anyone who has ordinary foresight. I am sure that the rulers of the nations of the world have better than ordinary vision.

"They know what the results of another war will be in wrack and revolution.

"Depend upon it there will be no war for many years to come.

"The only causes for war are the utter injustices of the Versailles treaty, but these will be recti-

FOUL PLAY HINTED IN MYSTERY

'Lady in White' Seen Fleeing Spot Where Body Was Found

DEDHAM, Mass., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—A "woman in white," reported seen bending over the body of the Rev. William P. Drennan of Our Lady of Grace Church, Chelsea, as it lay beneath a tree on a local school grounds today was sought in the investigation of his death.

Police said they were not satisfied the priest was not the victim of foul play after a medical examiner had announced he had found a sharp indentation on the left side of the head and bruises on the left side of the face.

SEEN FLEEING IN CAB

The "woman in white" was observed by Mrs. Walter Keene, who lives opposite the school. She told police that some time before the body was discovered she heard groans and saw a man under a tree. Later, she said, she again looked out the window of her home, and saw a woman bending over the body. She observed her leave, she said, and get into a car parked some distance up the road.

The body of Father Drennan, a man of great physical strength, was found lying in the school yard shortly after 6 o'clock. His brother-in-law, Richard Keelan, told police that the priest, who had been stopping at his home, left last night to take his customary walk. He said when Father Drennan left his home he was attired for hiking and was not wearing his priestly garb.

THEORIES PROBED

The police said Keelan informed them Father Drennan had on occasions suffered heart attacks but, they said, it was possible he was the victim of a hit and run driver or may have been the victim of a deliberate assault.

The priest's pocketbook and a $1 bill were found in the street, a short distance from the body. Heel marks, police said, were traced from the street to the spot where the body was found, indicating, they said, that the body had been dragged to the school lawn.

MARY IGNORES DOUG'S RETURN

International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 21.—Douglas Fairbanks was "back home" today.

Completing a trip that brought him from Europe, the film star arrived in Hollywood at 7 a. m. and was met at the railroad station by a fairly large group of friends and fans.

His estranged wife, Mary Pickford, was not in the welcoming group.

Fairbanks told International News Service:

"I'm not going back to England, but will produce my own pictures here in Hollywood at the United Artists' Studios.

"I plan to make one or two pictures a year here, reproducing all of my old hits of silent picture days."

Fairbanks was whisked away from the railroad station to the United Artists' studio to spend the entire day. He will reside at the home of his brother, John Fairbanks, at least temporarily.

Friends saw in his announcement that he had returned to Hollywood to reside permanently a hope for a possible reconciliation with Mary Pickford, whose suit for divorce now is on file in Los Angeles courts. Fairbanks smilingly refused to discuss his marital affairs.

Miss Pickford meanwhile had intimated through friends that any overture toward a possible reconciliaton must come from Parbanks. He was abroad when Miss Pickford announced their separation and plans for a divorce.

Execution Ends Battle Between Snake, Spider

BALTIMORE, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—An execution by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals put an end to the death duel of a tiny black spider and a garter snake a thousand times its size in the basement of a Baltimore home.

The conflict had raged for four days when a representative of the society, stopping "this display of cruelty," snipped off the head of "Egbert," as a neighbor dubbed the snake. At the time the spider, no bigger than the snake's eye, was nearing a complete conquest of its foot-long natural enemy.

Dismayed, the little spider, which had the snake securely enmeshed in its web, fled the scene of the killing and has been seen no more.

Under the spreading branches of an oak tree lay the remains of "Egbert," who met his death in search of a morsel of food, the tiny mite of a spider.

Horace P. Lane, Jr., at whose home the duel took place, accused the representative of the humane society of using a "very dull pair of scissors" in beheading luckless "Egbert." He asserted no less than 10 snips were required to complete the deed, the little reptile writhing and twisting violently all the while.

Lane said:

"If it had been left to me, the fight could have gone on until it reached its natural conclusion. But there were other members of the family who didn't like the publicity and who didn't like the snake either. However, I was fond of Egbert, and was sorry to see him go."

SOCIAL WORKERS FIGHT TO SAVE MORALS COURT SETUP

PLEA TO M'NAIR PLANNED BY GROUPS

*Absurd,' Churchman's View of Mayor's Latest Move

Fighting for the welfare of 8,500 children and 2,500 families whose problems annually come before the Morals Court, a group of social workers today was preparing to appeal directly to Mayor McNair not to carry through his "decentralization" of the court.

McNair plan of handling the mass of cases now cleared through Morals Court in district police courts would break, they stated.

"The loss of a specialized service built up at Morals Court and the throwing back of complex family problems, many of them of a social nature, into police courts with no attendant service, little training or experience in the handling of such problems, no power beyond that of fining or imposing sentence, and no follow-up for purposes of supervision or constructive work."

WORKERS MEET

The action was decided upon at a meeting of the welfare workers of Morals Court in the Community Fund Building yesterday as an aftermath of Mayor McNair's drastic step ordering that Morals Court handle only morality cases.

The group included the five workers who regularly cover the court and who attempt by investigation of the real problems of the family, to make possible a more human decision by the court.

Splitting these cases among the eight police districts would make it impossible for the workers to provide this service, the group stated.

Workers who attended the meeting were Miss Grace Woodrow, representing the Council of Churches; Miss Margaret Hall representing the Negro groups; R. L. Williams, Y. M. C. A.; James Brindle, Catholic Boy Welfare Bureau, and Cecil Schwartz, Jewish Big Brother Club.

ANOTHER 'WHIM'

While many of the social welfare groups declared this was just another McNair "whim," others deplored the order which practically abolishes the court.

Tensard De Wolfe, first magistrate of the court, declared it would be a "calamity for Pittsburgh to abandon Morals Court." He said:

"Since its establishment thousands of people have been helped by the court, families rebuilt, husband and wife reunited, children picked out of the gutter and put on the road to happiness and success.

"Ten thousand people in this community owe their happiness to Morals Court, because of the social and religious agencies brought into the court to look after the welfare of the city's unfortunates."

M'NAIR 'LUDICROUS'

Dr. F. W. Corcoran, superintendent of the Methodist Episcopal Church Union and a member of the Council of Churches, declared:

"I don't think that it is worth while to express an opinion on Mayor McNair. I think he has made himself ludicrous."

Miss Eleanor Hanson, executive secretary of the Family Society, declared:

"Our agency has found Morals Court very effective in many, many instances and we feel any case involving a family situation should be taken there."

SOOST PROTESTS

Councilman William J. Soost was outspoken in his criticism. He said:

"It is a crime to do away with the work of Morals Court. Those social workers have been doing good work at the court and it stands to reason that their work will be abolished or handicaped by the decentralization of such cases."

A city ordinance passed last May as a substitute for the "suspicious persons act" was cited by the Mayor today as his authority for ordering all except morality cases to be taken before other police courts. The ordinance instructed police to take defendants, other than minors and family morality cases, "before any police magistrate."

This action nullifies the part of the original Morals Court ordinance of May 23, 1918, stipulating that defendants in several types of violations must be brought before a Morals Court magistrate, in the Mayor's opinion.

Mayor McNair said:

"Morals Court is just what it says—a court for trying cases in which morality is in question."

Huey's Aide Weds Sweetie Of Long Ago

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Attractive 28-year-old Alice Lee Grosjean, former secretary of Senator Huey Long, was married here last night to William Allen Tharpe, 31, secretary of the Louisiana State Tax Commission and brother-in-law of E. L. Cord, automobile and aviation magnate.

Miss Grosjean

The bride is on leave of absence from her duties as superintendent of the Louisiana. She formerly was secretary to Governor [illegible] for a day.

The ceremony was performed at 6 o'clock in the Immanuel Presbyterian Church by the Rev. Herbert Booth Smith. The attendants were Don P. Smith, Los Angeles businessman and a brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Mrs. P. L. Zane. Only a few intimate friends were permitted to witness the ceremony.

Tharpe and his bride have known each other since they were children in Shreveport, La.

CCC Truck Driver Cleared in Tragedy

HARRISBURG, Aug. 21.—(INS.)—Lee Swartz, a member of the CCC camp at Landisburg, driver of a tractor that struck and killed Harry F. Hamerski, 19, of Latrobe, another worker, today was exonerated by the Coroner, who issued a verdict of accidental death. Swartz said he was unaware of the accident until he noticed Hamerski's body along the road.

Germans Ban Film, 'Hollywood Party'

BERLIN, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—The censor today banned from Germany the motion picture "Hollywood Party." No reason was given.

N'ORLEANS SET FOR 'LONG' WAR

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—New Orleans today awaited for the opening salvo in Senator Huey Long's new campaign against his political foe, Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley.

Long's threat to rip the city government wide open with exposure of "vice and gambling" hung over the city like a cloud.

Politicians of Mayor Walmsley's city machine, in violent conflict with Long's state organization, adopted a policy of watchful waiting, buttressed by an army of special policemen in array against Long's guardsmen.

But Long has kept his next move a dark secret.

The last word from Long about the city investigation was that it would be started early this week.

While Long was preparing to pursue his threat to drive "Walmsley out of politics in [illegible] days," federal investigators were ready to lay additional [illegible] before the Federal Grand Jury on income taxes paid by Long and his followers when Long was governor.

Auto Deaths Up 20 P. C. In State

Auto accidents in Pennsylvania for the first seven months of this year took 1,203 lives—an increase of 20 per cent, according to figures received today by the Western Pennsylvania Council from the Bureau of Highway Patrol and Safety at Harrisburg.

There was an increase of 24.7 per cent in the number of accidents.

The accidents represented a property damage of $3,500,000—an increase of 33 per cent.

Some of the increase was attributed to the greater number—6.7 per cent more—of cars registered in the state.

Actress Hiding In Man's Home Sues Mate

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Denying she had been guilty of misconduct but charging her husband with associating with other women, Mrs. Ena Gregory Rogell, wife of Al Rogell, film director, filed a cross-complaint today to Rogell's suit for divorce.

Mrs. Rogell

Rogell, in his suit, named William Van Rennselaer Smith, wealthy young attorney, as co-respondent, and later filed a $150,000 alienation of affections suit against the attorney.

Smith immediately countered with a $500,000 damage suit against Rogell and his attorneys, alleging his Beverly Hills home had been illegally raided by them. The raid disclosed Mrs. Rogell hiding in a clothes closet.

Smith today amended his complaint, charging that $3,000 of his personal property, including an $1,800 watch, was missing after the raiders departed.

Mrs. Rogell, known on the screen as Marion Douglas, charged the director with staying away from home at night and of being addicted to intoxicating liquors. She asks $750 monthly alimony and $5,000 attorney fees.

M'NAIR TACKLES LEGAL SNARL FOR CITY

Names Self Solicitor Then Appoints Girl Aide

Winning—he said—the consent of two councilmen to act as city solicitor, Mayor McNair today took over the job with a flourish, and the results were:

He discovered that $75,000 in magistrates' fees belonging to the city had piled up in the County Controller's office, uncollected since 1931, and—

He appointed as assistant solicitor, Anne X. Alpern, who "he thought" was single, and who had asked him for a job several months ago.

FIND DIMMED

But the Mayor's "find" of the $75,000 was somewhat dimmed by County Controller Robert G. Woodside, who explained that the magistrates fees had not been paid the city because the city owed huge obligations to the county.

Woodside said these obligations totaled several hundred thousand dollars.

Contracts were piling up in the Public Works Department and legals snags faced the police department as the Mayor took over the job of being city solicitor.

'ALL HAS CHANGED'

For more than a week, since Cornelius D. Scully, solicitor, and five aids resigned, the Mayor has warned that the legal department faced an "emergency." But attempts to assemble council to confirm his appointment of Ward Bonsall as solicitor resulted in failure to assemble a quorum to act.

Turning suddenly to reporters today, the Mayor announced his appointment of Miss Alpern. He said she had asked him for a job several months ago, but that then he did not have authority to appoint her. He added:

"But all that has been changed today."

He went on to explain that he obtained consent of Councilman Walter Demmler, who in turn obtained consent of Councilmanic President Robert Garland, before becoming "City Solicitor."

TALKS ABOUT DEBT

Conferring with Woodside as one of his first moves, he asked for the uncollected magistrates fees and was told, he said, by Woodside:

"All right, if you sign releases, but there are a great many to be signed."

So the Mayor said he would have a rubber stamp made with his signature as City Solicitor to take care of that angle.

AH, POLITICAL MOVE!

Miss Alpern, petite, pretty brunette in her twenties, said she had graduated from University of Pittsburgh Law School in 1920. Since then she has practised in civil and appellate work, she said. She lives at 3441 Beechwood boulevard. Asked if she is a Democrat, she replied:

"I discuss neither my age nor my politics."

McNair said the appointment of a woman might win back the votes he has lost "in upsetting Morals Court."

Foreign Legion Waits Call to Curb Arabs

ALGIERS, Algeria, Aug. 21.—(INS.)—The French Foreign Legion will be called into action to check an expected Jewish pogrom by Arabs in the Constantine area, it was learned today.

Fearing that, as a sequel to the Constantine massacres of two weeks ago, the Arabs might launch a bitter anti-Semitic drive, French authorities ordered the reinforcement of all garrisons in Constantine and Oran.

Austria Punishes Two as Nazi Aides

LINZ, Austria, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Because they waited at a hospital at Gmued until 5 a. m. on July 27 to care for possible wounded in the civil war, a doctor has been sentenced to three months imprisonment and the director of the hospital fined heavily.

According to the Linzer Volksblatt, five young women known as Nazis also waited all night "for the big blood bath."

STOLEN TROPHY RECOVERED BY WADDELL

3 Held for Robbing Home of Former Football Coach

Robert N. Waddell, former Carnegie Tech football coach, was all smiles today.

He had recovered a gold football received after one of his most pleasant afternoons as a coach. That was in 1926, when Carnegie Tech beat Notre Dame, 19 to 0.

Its recovery came after police had arrested Frank Green, 45, of 29 Robin street, a former employe of Waddell's; John King, 44, of 326 Bertha street, and William Wright, 29, of 6902 Fifth avenue, Negroes, in connection with the robbery of his home.

The emblem was found in the cellar. A watch was recovered with Green's arrest and other valuables were reported stolen when Waddell returned from his vacation yesterday.

Returning to her home after spending nine weeks in St. Francis Hospital, Mrs. Mary Frey, of 5385 Warble street, reported to police last night theft of jewelry valued at $220, a $12 camera and a $50 stove during her absence.

George Andrej, 21, of 831 Catherine street, Duquesne, was being held by Duquesne police today in connection with the robberies Sunday night of three Duquesne stores.

He was arrested yesterday by McKeesport police while attempting to sell watches and rings said by police to have been stolen from Kirschbaum's jewelry store, Grant street, Duquesne, to a McKeesport jeweler. He was turned over to Police Chief Thomas Flynn, of Duquesne.

Police said jewelry valued at more than $500 was stolen from the Kirschbaum store. A floral shop and meat market were among the other places looted that night.

ROMANTIC TWIN FOILED AGAIN

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—Violet Hilton, romantic half of the Siamese twins, wore a sad face today.

She and her fiance, Maurice Lambert, 29-year-old trombone player, again have been refused a marriage license. This time it was County Clerk Robert M. Sweitzer who intervened. They have met similar refusals in New York and Jersey City. Sweitzer explained:

"They are inseparable, so the marriage license actually would be a permit for one man to live with two women."

An attorney representing the twins said he would file a petition for a writ of mandamus which, if granted, would force Sweitzer to issue the license.

Ancient Baptismal Basin Discovered

WATTENSCHEID, Westphalia.—(INS.)—Ignored and forgotten under the dust of centuries, a stone vessel used for baptizing as far back as 998 A. D., has been discovered here. The baptismal basin is supported by three standing lions of stone, believed to be exact counterparts of the famed lions in the Alhambra palace of Granada.

Weather Conditions

The high that was centered over Minnesota yesterday morning is now centered over the Middle Atlantic coast. It is attended by mostly clear skies and cool weather. High pressure in the Far Northwest is producing cool weather over that section. Low pressure occupies the interior of the country, with centers over Western Ontario and over Western Texas, with a trough formation over the central valleys. The lows are causing a thunderstorm conditions over that section, but the rains so far were very light. There were no high maximum temperatures yesterday except in Oklahoma and in Texas, the highest being 104 degrees at Oklahoma City.

River Conditions

The rivers are falling. Stage at Franklin is one-tenth foot below zero. Lock No. 7 (Mon.), 11.0; Pittsburgh, 10.7. Dam No. 4, 8.8; No. 6, 9.8; No. 10, 9.4, and No. 12, 9.8. The dams are up.

MOONEY AGAIN ASKS PARDON

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—An application for a pardon for Thomas J. Mooney, serving a life prison term for the San Francisco Preparedness Day bombing, has been left at the office of Acting Gov. Frank F. Merriam in Sacramento, Leo Gallagher, attorney, announced here tonight.

Gov. Merriam is the fifth California Governor to receive such a request since Mooney was imprisoned for the 1916 bombing, in which 10 persons were killed and 40 injured.

Filing of the application followed the concurrence here by Justice Curtis D. Wilbur, of the Ninth United States Circuit Court of Appeals, in an opinion denying the convict a hearing on an appeal in habeas corpus proceedings. The two other justices of the court had previously handed down the decision.

TRUCK ROBBED BY BANDITS

routes, indicating the well-planned nature of the crime.

According to stories told by the guard—John Allen, John Wilson and William Lillienthal—the latter two had gone into the office of the ice plant to deliver a cash payroll.

As they emerged, they saw several men, apparently unconcerned, standing near a pushcart which had been wheeled close to the curb.

As the two guards reached the street, the curb "idlers" suddenly whipped aside the dingy cloth over the pushcart, revealing a machine gun which they snapped up and pointed at the astonished men.

Two other men stepped up quickly, frisking the guards and relieving them of their weapons.

TRUCK LOOTED

The guards then were hustled into their own armored truck where Allen, the driver, already had been "covered" by two other members of the gang.

Scooping up currency from the armored truck, the bandits carried it into the three automobiles and sped away. The entire operation had consumed only a few moments.

As they left, the bandits abandoned their machine gun in the armored car. Lilienthal snapped up the machine gun and Allen whirled his truck about and started off in pursuit of the fleeing bandits.

The speeding cars of the holdup gang quickly outdistanced the more cumbersome armored truck.

POLICE MOBILIZE

Police at once swung into action, mobilizing all police cruisers throughout the city. Each broadcast to the radio cruisers closed with the succinct warning:

"These men are dangerous. Use caution. They are armed."

Radio cars were posted at all bridges and other outlets from Brooklyn to Manhattan and Queens. In addition, all ferry, train and bus terminals were encircled by squads of detectives.

'WISHING TREE' OF HARLEM CUT DOWN

Famed Negro Actors Revered Oak as 'Aladdin's Lamp'

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Harlem's famous "wishing tree," in whose mergin shade have sat many Negro actors—Bert Williams, Bill Robinson, Florence Mills, Ethel Waters, and the rest—has fallen to the ax.

Men came yesterday and cut it down. Each stroke of their steel left a wish in many a disappointed and sentimental heart. The tree meant much to Negro troupers.

For years it had stood there at One Hundred and Thirty-first street and Seventh avenue, in front of the Lafayette, a sturdy oak rooting the soul. Lately it had died.

Besides, it was in the way of the proposed widening of Seventh avenue. That is why they cut it down.

MANY MADE WISHES

Once there was a Negro actor who stood beneath its branches, rubbed its rough bark and made a wish for work. Immediately he got a job. Who that actor was or how long ago, none can say. It is enough that it was so. Thereafter the oak became the actors' "wishing tree."

Paul Robeson stood there, wishing perhaps to become one of the greatest baritones of his race.

Bill Robinson, who has been called the greatest tap dancer of them all, has known its charm. The late Florence Mills, Harlem's songbird, made her wish there, and found it granted. Ethel Waters, soon concluding a 50-week run in the year's outstanding Broadway success, "As Thousands Cheer," can attest to the wishing tree's beneficence. "Rubber Legs" Williams will tell you he got his part in "Blackbirds of 1934" by wishing beneath the tree.

FORTUNE FOR SOUVENIRS

When the tree had fallen a Negro ran forward with saw and hatchet and began hacking the tree into bits. He sold these pieces of wood at 25 cents each, and could hardly cut them fast enough. At the end he was getting as much as $2 for each souvenir.

While the workmen's axes rang, there were Negroes watching who remembered Bert Williams, and who recalled his singing-talking:

"Woodman, woodman, spare dat tree!
Touch not a single bough.
For years it has protected me,
And I'll protect it now.
Cut down dat spruce, dat oak, or pine,
But spare that slipp'ry elm of mine—
It's the only tree my wife can't climb.
(Boom boom) Oh, spare dat tree."

MT. LEBANON OPPOSES TOLLS

Mt. Lebanon Township Commissioners last night adopted a resolution opposing tolls on the Liberty Tubes, after listening to several speakers and to remarks by more than 200 citizens who jammed the Commissioners room in the municipal building. The chairman, L. C. Clark, presided.

Bids from 17 contractors were received and opened for work with proceeds of a $120,000 loan recently approved by the Public Works Administration. Of this amount, $30,000 is a government grant.

The work will consist of improvements in the municipal park, construction of storm sewers and resurfacing of streets.

Seer Who Forecast With Onions Dies

MARSHFIELD, Wis., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Marshfield's famous "onion" weather prophet, Ewald Benesch, is dead at 69.

Each New Years Eve Benesch would go alone to the basement of his cobbler shop here and cut apart onions until he found one that suited him. Studying 12 circles of the onion, Benesch would essay to foretell the weather for the coming year. His accuracy won him a nationwide reputation.

Auto Gunners Chase Union Man to Door of Police

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—James Dugan, business agent for the Painters' Union, early today won a wild race for his life against a machine gun squad which pursued him to the door of the Deering Police Station.

Dugan was driving home from the wake of Roy Thompson, a delegate of the labor organization and the second recent victim of strife over control of the Painters' Union, when the gun crew wheeled alongside his car.

A stream of bullets was loosed. Dugan opened the throttle. Slugs whistled past him as he zigzagged at high speed.

He headed for the Deering station, his assailants directing a constant round of shots at him. They were close behind him when he drew up before the police headquarters. The final fusillade was fired as he sprinted for the door.

Dugan was not hit, but the trail over which he had raced was strewn with empty cartridges.

Dugan was questioned yesterday in connection with the death of Thompson, who was slain Sunday. Authorities attributed that killing and the recent assassination of Michael (Bubs) Quinlan to litigation over control of the union.

Aunt Dies Freeing Man From Bath After Party

BEACON, N. Y., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—The attempt of two women to extricate a man who had locked himself in a bathroom brought death to one and injuries to the other when both fell from a second-story window.

The two had climbed out of the window in order to reach the bathroom window. They lost their balance and fell 20 feet. Mrs. Bertha Merwin, 47, was killed; her niece, Mrs. Alva Kingsland Costello, 22, was injured slightly.

Mrs. Costello told police they were trying to reach her husband, Walter Costello, when the accident happened. She said he had bolted himself in the bathroom after they had gone to the Merwin home yesterday afternoon at the end of a three-day party. She also said she and her husband had been drinking.

The Coroner issued a verdict of accidental death.

20 CHILDREN TO BE USED BY SAVANT AS HUMAN TEST TUBES

Famed Movie Stars Rush to Aid Of Humble Victim of Hiccoughs

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor, Universal Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 21.—Poor Mrs. Robert McCormick hiccoughing consistently to serve ranking guests knows that she isn't suffering without the sympathy of hundreds among them some of filmland's best-known favorites.

Three hundred letters in and day passed into the little hour, offering a sure cure or home solution to stop the spasms that occur at intervals of every few seconds.

Saturday night Bebe Daniels, who visited Ad olph Zukor's brother-in-law after seven days of constant hiccoughing, visited the little three-room cottage to see if she couldn't help. Ben Lyon and this writer accompanied her and for a few moments it seemed as if the miracle had happened. Mrs. McCormick stopped hiccoughing and was silent for nearly 45 minutes.

Her husband and her little blonde daughter, whose hair is the color of Jean Harlow's platinum locks, were hysterical in their hopes.

McCormick whispered:

"It's the most relief she had had without opiates, since she started this terrible thing."

Between spasms of coughing Mrs. McCormick begged Bebe to come back. Bebe promised and all afternoon she worked with the stricken woman trying the remedy that had been taught her by a Mexican woman in her childhood.

BEBE DANIELS

JOE PENNER AND HIS DUCK
. . . . . his suggestion: swallow smoke . . . . .

Again she stopped the paroxysms temporarily, but the woman is under too much of a nervous strain to have any treatments give her permanent relief.

While Miss Daniels was working with the suffering woman, Joe Penner, famous radio entertainer, accompanied by Leroy Prinz, dance director, and Dixie Pantage Martin appeared at the McCormick door.

PENNERS OFFERS IDEA

Joe Penner had once cured himself, after three days of convulsive hiccoughing, by inhaling cigaret smoke and covering his mouth with a handkerchief. The idea of trying to help Mrs. McCormick came to the radio star while he was attending a party at the Cocoanut Grove. The doctors vetoed the cigaret idea, however, fearing it might cause convulsions.

Fear was another agency suggested. In fact, before the distracted husband could stop him, a stranger dashed into Mrs. McCormick's bedroom and shouted:

"Your husbands been killed in an automobile accident! Get up! et up!"

Poor Mrs. McCormick, worn out and nervous, started to weep, which only increased her suffering.

Kindly Sid Grauman, who has helped so many people bear their suffering, was a caller and Mary Pickford is expected at the McCormicks soon.

McCormick has learned one thing, and that is there are many kindly people in the world. Probably in their wildest dreams the McCormicks never expected to have Rolls Royces containing famous movie stars drive up to their door.

JARNEGIN DEATH CALLED SUICIDE

International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 21.—Death of Jerry Jarnegin, 41, composer husband of Irene Franklin, musical comedy star, today was officially written on the coroner's records as suicide.

Jarnegin was found shot to death in their home Sunday night under circumstances that at first indicated murder, as the death weapon was discovered in a chair six feet from his body.

Miss Franklin told investigators, however, it was possible that in her excitement she had picked up the pistol and had moved it after finding Jarnegin's body.

Jarnegin, police learned, had worried over lack of work and financial difficulties, although his suicide occurred on the eve of what might have been his "big break" in the movies. He was to have taken a screen test yesterday.

Miss Franklin said he also had worried over the approaching trial of Lawrence Thomas, a former employe, who was held to answer two weeks ago on charges of striking Miss Franklin when she attempted to intervene in a quarrel between Thomas and Jarnegin.

But why Jarnegin should have killed himself while he and his wife were entertaining dinner guests remained a mystery.

2 WOMEN TRY TO END LIVES

Two women, who, according to police, attempted to end their lives—one with a gun and the other with poison—were in hospitals today with a chance to recover.

One is Mrs. Nora E. Clark, 33, of 2800 Louisiana avenue, Dormont, a bride of two months, who has been living apart from her husband. Sitting in a restaurant with George Miller, 50, for whom she keeps house, according to police, she raised a small bottle of poison to her mouth and drank some of the contents. She was rushed to the Mercy Hospital.

Arising from the dinner table last night, Agnes Romanko, 20, of Center, Plum Township, left her family and went to her bedroom. Several minutes later a shot was heard and the girl was found lying on the floor. She was taken to the Citizens' General Hospital in New Kensington, where authorities declared a brother had said the wound was self-inflicted.

Nazi Athletes Aid Campaign in Saar

BERLIN, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Nazi athletes were running about all over Germany today in an effort to help the government propaganda steam roller smooth out the road for a return of the Saar region to Germany.

The athletes raced from various parts of Germany carrying messages of fidelity to Coblenz, where a monster Saar meeting is scheduled for Sunday.

TONY EATS 130 APPLES, THEN HAS LUNCH

Begins His Fruit Diet After Picnic Meal —And Plenty Beer

HATBORO, Pa., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Tony (not Tony Di Lauretis he wouldn't eat a basket of apples in two hours.

They should have known better. He has (or finished a gallon jug of fish, half-chickens, 40 clams, a dozen sweet potatoes, a dozen ears of corn, a half-dozen hot dogs and 20 glasses of beer.

So Tony said:

"Make your bets."

And they bet $10.

At 10 a. m. yesterday Tony bit into the first apple.

A hundred fellow residents of this little Montgomery County town lined the street in front of his barber shop.

At 11:45 a. m. the last apple—the one hundred and thirtieth—was gone.

A lusty cheer went up.

Then Tony went to lunch.

He was 16 pounds heavier, but he had his usual snack. Two pounds of spaghetti, washed down with eight glasses of beer.

WOMAN FIRST 'GHOST' VICTIM

WATERDOWN, Ontario, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—The Waterdown "ghost" was credited today with its first victim and a woman who sought to scare her husband nursed a very sore head.

Chief of Police Lovejoy said late last night a scream of terror broke the silence of the village, setting jittery citizens a-twitter. Investigation by officers showed a farmer had gone to his pump to get water and that his wife, seeking to amuse herself at his expense, had garbed herself in a sheepskin and yelled "boo" at him as he passed in the dark. The farmer promptly felled his spouse with a milk bottle he was carrying. She was not hurt seriously.

The chief said he expected a solution of the "ghost" scare would come within the next 24 hours and that the "ghost" is not a practical joker. He added, however, that many of its "appearances" were believed the work of jokers. He warned that practical joking of that sort might end in some person being seriously hurt.

Last night the village was in a state of nervous tension. Doors were securely bolted and porch lights left burning. Dozens of men afoot and in automobiles patrolled the streets, but the apparition, variously described as a huge man-like being with long white hair and a large white beard with a head like that of a gorilla, was not seen.

Woman Found Slain, Strangler Hunted

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—The body of Mrs. Gertrude Cooper, 30, was found on the floor of her apartment here today. Police said she apparently had been strangled to death by a man. Finger marks were found on her throat.

Mrs. Cooper had worked in a restaurant near the walkup flat where her body was found.

Fire? No, Merely Man in Moon Getting Hot

BOSTON, Aug. 21.—The moon sent coastguardsmen scurrying about Vineyard Sound on a wild goose chase.

The coastguardsmen received a report from Pollock Rip Lightship that a ship was afire somewhere in the vicinity. They searched for several hours, but found no signs of distress and finally agreed that what was thought to be a burning ship was the moon, brilliantly rearing out of the sea.

"Doc" to Scrap 'Phenomena' Glass For Sleuthing; Already Has Badge

"Doctor" Frank White, U. S. R. (not of the Associated Three Practice Registered Immigrations Council of Civilians Healers—all this by his own admission—was contemplating with his "concentration" plate and peering in his "phenomenon" glass today in a right stirring manner.

"Doctor" Frank White, D. C., M. D., was arraigned because he had just been fined $50 or 30 days in jail on a charge of taking money under false pretenses.

All the bad luck rained when two policewomen, Jo. ..hn McDonnell and Mrs. Eva Connelly, went to their "doctor's" office at 406 Caron street for treatment and were put through the ritual of concentrating with the "concentration" plate and looking into the "phenomenon" glass.

Then the "doctor" stretched forth his arms and blessed them — and charged them $1.

After the treatment the policewomen told Magistrate Howard B. McNutt in South Side Police Court today they felt the same as before, except that their were out $1 each.

However, the "doctor" told Magistrate McNutt that business was bad and that he is going to take up private detective work. He had a private detective's badge in his pocket when he was arrested.

EDWARDS FACES TRAGEDY QUIZ

WELKES BARRE, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—In a move unexpected by the defense, the Commonwealth today announced Robert Allen Edwards, young mining engineer accused of slaying Freda McKechnie, his Edwardsville sweetheart, would be brought before the grand jury today.

District Attorney Thomas M. Lewis announced previously he had listed the case for tomorrow. No reason for the change was given.

The district attorney subpoenaed five witnesses overnight and this morning they were waiting in the grand jury room to be called. They were George Jones, lifeguard at Harvey's Lake who found the McKechnie girl's body in the water on the afternoon of August 1; Dr. T. J. Wenner, who performed the post mortem examination; Captain William A. Clark, of the State Police; Chief Ira Stephenson, of Harvey's Lake Police; and County Detective Richard Powell, who is listed as prosecutor.

The grand jury is scheduled to make its first report tomorrow.

HAUNTED HOUSE SHOWN JURY

COOPERSTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Pictures of the dreary house on Crumhorn Mountain near which the state says Harry Wright was murdered, were shown to the jury trying Eva Coo today over objections of the defense.

Four views of what the defense calls the "haunted house" were introduced, together with many other pictures.

When a picture of a house adjoining Eva Coo's roadside tavern was offered, James J. Byard, defense counsel, declared it was a "trick picture."

The house was one at which the state contends Harry Nabinger, a witness for the prosecution, obtained an automobile in which he drove to Oneonta the night of the crime. In the background of the photograph looms the ridge of gloomy Crumhorn Mountain.

three men and released in Tennessee, Department of Justice agents today prepared to cross-examine E. H. Askew, 28-year-old "Four Square" evangelist, as soon as his condition permits.

The young evangelist returned to his wife and flock here yesterday, but immediately upon his arrival he was ordered to bed by his physician, who said his highly nervous condition would not permit him to see visitors for several days.

Jesse James, a member of Askew's congregation who drove him to Goldsboro from the Raleigh Union passenger station yesterday, said the evangelist appeared to be "in a daze."

After Askew vanished, between here and Smithfield, last Tuesday, typewritten notes were received by his wife demanding $25,000 ransom and a similar note was sent to Aimee Semple McPherson, leader of the "Four Square Gospel" movement, threatening to dynamite Angelus Temple unless the money were paid.

Askew's 50-year-old wife and many members of his congregation here expressed the conviction the evangelist was abducted by enemies made during a religious controversy here which led to Askew's resigning the pastorate of the Free Will Baptist Church to start "Four Square Gospel" meetings in a tent.

Three days after Askew's disappearance he turned up in Nashville, Tenn., and said he had been released by three men who had ridden him "all over the country." Questioned, he denied that his story was imaginary, although he admitted the events of the past few days seemed "hazy."

LABATT KIDNAP STIRS SHAKEUP

TORONTO, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—The Toronto Mail and Empire said today a shakeup in the Ontario Provincial Police force is likely following Attorney General Arthur W. Roebuck's expression of dissatisfaction with the handling of the John S. Labatt kidnaping case.

Labatt was released last week after three days in the hands of kidnapers. A dispatch from Barrie, Ontario, where Labatt has a summer home, quoted a resident of Port Huron, Mich., as saying a pine woods near Grand Bend, Ontario, was the hideaway for Labatt's kidnapers.

The Michigan man, who asked that his name not be disclosed, said he saw "an automobile flashing signals in code with its headlights toward the pine woods" a few hours before Labatt was freed and a friend saw "two mysterious automobiles" in the vicinity.

Labatt, a London (Ontario) brewer, was reported to have said he smelled pine wood while a captive.

Wound of Double Slayer May Be Fatal

SCRANTON, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Henry Most, 52, East Mountain hermit, was held for court on two murder charges, but physicians says he probably will not be tried.

Most was arraigned yesterday in the state hospital, charged with slaying John Lowry, 72, and Benjamin Tasker, 52, in a quarrel over Lowry's daughter. Most in the fight suffered a severe abdominal wound, which surgeons say never will heal.

Discoverer of Paralysis Vaccine to Give It To Own Sons

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—A vaccine to prevent poliomyelitis will undergo its first official human inoculation during the next three months.

It will take that long for the series of experiments Dr. John A. Kolmer, Temple University professor who claims to discovery along with a vaccine preventative for infantile paralysis, is planning to demonstrate its effectiveness.

Just who his human "test tubes" will be Dr. Kolmer did not say, except that they will be "volunteers" and that the experiments will be "extensive."

The vaccine already has been tried to a limited degree on humans with a great degree of success, the professor declares, and has been completely successful in inoculation of monkeys, dogs and rabbits.

Development of the vaccine he credits to four years of study and research in the Institute of Clinical Medicine of Philadelphia, which he directs in addition to holding his university professorship.

Financial aid for the work came from Samuel Fels of Philadelphia.

Even before the final pneumonia experiments are begun, the professor plans further demonstrations of the safety of the infantile paralysis vaccine whose development he announced Friday.

A group of 20 children, including his two sons, will be inoculated with the fluid previously tested by Dr. Kolmer on himself and his technical assistant, Miss Anna M. Rule, of Halifax, N. S.

After that, says the physician-professor, the vaccine formula will be made public.

'UMP' MOBBED IN TUBE CITY

The baseball game between the McKeesport and Jeannette teams, at McKeesport, ended last night in the second half of the second inning when many of the 2,500 spectators stormed the field after several players of the McKeesport team became involved in an argument over decisions of Umpire Bugler.

The crowd booed the umpire and when the McKeesport players, including their manager, Leo Mackey, protested, he ordered them away. The game was forfeited to the visiting team.

Curtailment of the game meant no loss to the spectators, who took advantage of the 10-cent general admission. They were given rain-checks.

30 HURT AS GALE TOSSES LINER

GLASGOW, Scotland, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—More than 30 passengers were injured and one seaman was washed overboard and drowned when a terrific gale struck the liner Canetonia in mid-Atlantic, it was learned on the ship's arrival at Clyde today.

Passengers said some waves 60 feet high broke against the Anchor liner, which sailed from Boston August 12 and from New York the previous day. A team of Penn State football players was aboard, but escaped injury.

Boats and furniture were smashed and tables were torn from their fastenings.

The ship hove to for eight hours to wait for the gale to moderate. It heeled at an angle of 35 degrees, passengers reported.

Collision Sinks Ship, Crew Saved

LONDON, Aug. 21.—(INS.)—The Italian schooner Elisa Serra was sunk today in a collision with the American Export liner Exochara off Leghorn, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Turin. The schooner's crew was rescued.

EVICTED FAMILY OF NINE LIVES IN TENT

Lean-to of Straw Protects Beds From Rain

To be stranded at the side of the road for nearly 10 weeks has been the fate of Martin Anthony, his wife and seven children.

Evicted for non-payment of taxes, the family has been living just where the Sheriff from Greensburg dumped them and their furniture, a mile off the Lincoln Highway, near Jacktown. A tent and a crudely constructed lean-to made of straw protect the beds. The rest of the furniture, including a piano, stands exposed to sun and rain.

Anthony, a metal worker by trade, occupied the McFarlane farm for about 18 months. The crops were bad last year and he was unable to pay his back taxes, amounting to $395. The family was evicted, and has lived as best they can by the side of the road.

Mr. Anthony spends his days in futile search for work, and Mrs. Anthony is away most of the day looking for a place to live. The children take care of themselves.

RALPH, TOM AND JIM AT HOME—WHICH IS A STRAW LEAN-TO

Ralph, 14, is a good cook—when he has something to cook—and the three youngest, David, Tom and Jim, help around the camp.

Their only worry is high water, which has flooded the camp twice. The last flood carried off most of the provisions that the State Welfare Department provides, and the family went hungry for a few days.

closer touch with the masses. Many would rejoice if this government would get into closer touch with the American "masses" including businessmen that would really like to know something about plans that the government has for new laws and the spending of taxes.

It used to be the custom to let voters know something about government plans. That idea seems to be defunct here, as it is in Italy, Germany, Russia and Turkey.

A GAMBLING resort is raided, "respectable ladies in evening dress" are arrested with professional gamblers. The gamblers are detained, the "ladies" are allowed to go free.

Why "go free?" Those that encourage gambling are not the professional gamblers, but those that gamble away their money, just as those who did most to encourage violation of the prohibition amendment were those that patronized bootleggers, not the bootleggers.

Make it a crime to buy from bootleggers, and a crime to gamble, and you will soon discourage bootlegging and gambling, if you really want to discourage them.

ADRIENNE AMES TIRED OF LOVE CLINCHES

Let's Remove Mush From the Movies, Star Proposes

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Adrienne Ames, one of Hollywood's loveliest, today came out against "clinches" in movie love-making.

The Fort Worth society girl who joined the screen two years ago declared the public was sick of last-minute "clinching" in screen productions. Before taking a plane back to Hollywood she said:

"It is just as important to remove mush from the movies as it is to eliminate vulgarity.

"There are other ways to show a man and a woman are in love than throwing them into the clinching stage every few hundred feet of film. The new generation laughs out loud at this technique."

Adrienne has just finished "Gigolette," in which she was cast in the star role. It was filmed in an eastern studio.

She explained a gigolette is a modern evolution of an old-fashioned gold digger.

Miss Ames recorded herself emphatically as being tired of sophisticated roles. She said:

"They labeled me the sophisticated type since I came to Hollywood but now I want to show there is a soft side of me."

Miss Ames said she would be "very happy" to see her husband, Bruce Cabot, movie actor, after their month's separation.

She indignantly denied reports she had a feud with Raquel Torres, who married Stephen Ames, former husband of Adrienne. She asked:

"Why should there be a feud? I am neither friendly nor unfriendly with Steve. It is simply that when I am through with a person I am through."

Adrienne carries a souvenir of her work on the set back to Hollywood in the form of bruises.

She received one painful bruise on her thigh when an iron table was thrown against her during the taking of a picnic scene. She received another bruise when she was tossed against a tree—an iron tree.

BOARD IGNORES STEEL FIRM'S ATTACK

PORTSMOUTH, O., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Without heeding a charge its very existence has no constitutional basis, the National Steel Labor Relations Board went ahead today with its consideration of a dispute in the Wheeling Steel Corporation plant.

The joint congressional resolution under which the board was created was claimed unconstitutional by Earl F. Reed of Pittsburgh, counsel for the steel concern, as the board heard testimony that the company had "locked out" its employes.

Headed by Charleton Ogburn, of New York, counsel for the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers is attempting to show the steel company denied the right of collective bargaining, tried to influence its employes into leaving the union and refused to meet a union committee for purposes of collective bargaining.

Reed denied the company had refused its employes representation in wage pacts.

To the testimony of several employes that the company had been idle for "an unusually long time," a point which union leaders stress as indicating a lockout, came an answer by C. C. Caudill, general manager of the company's Portsmouth works, that an insufficiency of orders kept the plant closed.

During June the plant employed 8,000 men, but since July 1 only the coke works and its 125 men have been kept busy, the witnesses said.

Caudill presented records of the orders on hand July 1 and contended the company had on hand about 20 times as much finished goods as there had been orders.

Transportation Tieup Looms in Chicago

Associated Press.

Union labor is considering today a proposal for a general transportation strike in Chicago, where a police executive has described the bus drivers walkout as "about ripe to blow wide open."

Chicago surface line employes are to ask the executive board of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America, meeting in Detroit, for permission to declare a sympathy strike. Elevated line unions made a similar request yesterday.

Tear gas bombs and riot sticks were used to quell a riot in Milwaukee, where 250 FERA strikers sought to rescue a comrade from police yesterday. A woman in a gay dress goaded the workers into action.

Police at Portland, Ore., were told to arrest 23 men for questioning as a result of a clash between working longshoremen and strikers in which one man was shot to death.

Francis J. Gorman, chairman of the United Textile Workers' strike committee, put the next move "up to the industry or the administration" as he pressed plans for a tieup of the cotton textile industry by September 1, with walkouts in other textile lines to follow.

BOY SWIMMERS SET FOR RACE

Twenty boys from the Soho and South Side districts are to take part in a two-mile swimming race in the Monongahela river at 6 p. m. today.

They will compete for a silver swimming cup donated by Senator Joseph G. Armstrong, Jr.

The race will start at the Point bridge and end at South Thirteenth street, South Side.

The 10 boys from Pool No. 12, South Side, are John Barna, Willian Manko, John Stivanko, Joseph Shuppy, Michael Samson, Peter Adamiah, Stany Telessky, Jack Conroy and George Dunbaker. The 10 boys from Pool No. 10, Soho, are Louis Neuman, Michael Matto, Frank Szako, James Mooney, Louis Elbeck, James O'Malley, Sam Sullivan, Ray Meals, James Keenan and George Balicky.

Judges will be Ray Walton, Stanley Merkell and Andrew Kubiak.

X-ray Reduces Blood Pressure

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—(INS.)—X-ray treatment has proven successful in relieving sufferers from high blood pressure, Dr. James H. Hutton, Chicago endocrinologist, announced today in describing a series of experiments.

Dr. Hutton told the Congress of Railway Surgeons that the treatment was successful on 80 per cent of the patients. He cited a typical case, that of a man of 52, weighing 216 pounds, whose blood pressure was reduced from 230 to 170 by four X-ray applications.

Separate Quarters for Crosby Twins Ordered to Thwart Infants' Diseases

GARY EVANS CROSBY . . . HE'S NOT ALLOWED NEAR HIS FEW-WEEKS-OLD TWIN BROTHERS

DIRECTOR QUITS HOWARD FILM

International News Service.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Roland Brown, Hollywood moving picture director, walked off the set today at Elstree while directing Leslie Howard in "The Scarlet Pimpernel" after a verbal tiff with Alexander Korda, the producer. Brown said later:

"You cannot have two directors on one set. Korda, as producer, wanted to direct also. We disagreed and I quit. I have no hard feelings about it."

After the incident Brown and Korda shook hands. Korda said:

"We failed to agree on how the picture should be produced."

Brown is to direct an independent film before leaving on a trip through Wales, Scotland and Ireland. He is then returning to Hollywood. The Pimpernel production is held up pending the selection of a new director.

Trolley Wages Up In Minneapolis

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—The Minneapolis Street Railway Company has ordered wage increases, effective as of August 1, for 2,800 employes.

Hourly wages of operators of one-man street cars and buses were increased from 53 to 60 cents an hour. The new rate for trainmen is 56 cents and hour, an increase of 3 cents over the old wage.

Even Nurses Isolated; Brother Won't See Babes for Weeks

International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 20.—Little Gary Evans Crosby will not see his new brothers for weeks, for under doctor's orders, the famous incubator twins are to be completely isolated from the first born of the Crosby family.

The children of Hollywood's champion crooner not only are to have separate quarters, but even their nurses may not have any contact with each other.

This to prevent any possible contact with infants' diseases.

Not that the twins are sickly. To the contrary, they were in perfect health when the doctor allowed Crosby to take them home from the hospital Saturday. Little Phillip Lang, who wore identification tag No. 1 during his incubator days, weighed seven pounds and two ounces. His younger brother by minutes, Dennis Michael, topped him by six ounces.

The removal of the youngsters found photographers on hand at the hospital, but all they got were grab shots of the nurses hurrying to the Crosby car with the youngsters under their arms and covered with sterilized blankets—even their heads.

For some reason best known to himself, their crooner papa also threw himself flat in the bottom of the car to avoid the snapping lenses.

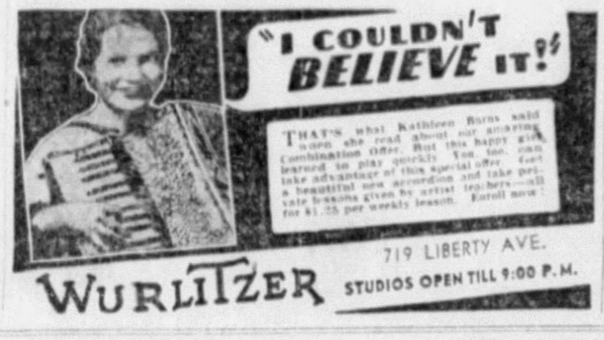
Briefs summing up testimony and arguments given during a month's hearing on the wage dispute between the Pittsburgh Railways Company and its 1,800 conductors and motormen today had been filed by the company with the arbitration board which heard the testimony. Attorneys for the men will file their briefs next Monday, after which the board will begin its deliberation.

The men are asking an increase from 74 cents to $1.10 an hour and a six-hour, five-day week.

The board is composed of Dr. Joseph W. Madden, of the University of Pittsburgh, chairman; Philip A. Fleger, company counsel, and City Councilman John J. Kane, named to represent the men.



PEACE SNARLED IN ALUMINUM WALKOUT

Both sides involved in the 10-day-old aluminum strike today appeared unwilling to brave final settlement of their difficulties in the hands of the National Labor Relations Board.

The Aluminum Workers' Union at New Kensington last night considered the five-point plan of settlement offered by Fred Knight, United States Labor Department mediator, and decided to ask President William Green, of the American Federation, for his opinion as their first move.

Green's answer is expected this morning. It was learned. Immediately upon receipt of it, union officials including J. P. Howlett, vice-president, and Fred A. Wissinger, secretary of the Aluminum Workers' Council, will prepare a reply.

With several members of the council out of the city, the plan will be acted upon by them over the telephone, Boyce Stoltzfus, American Federation of Labor economist, said.

The proposal that final decision on the plan be placed in the labor board's hands also will meet with objections by the company.

The company will consider the plan at a meeting today and will have a statement later. Both sides have been given until 2:30 p. m. tomorrow to give their answers to Knight.

His plan, a "surprise" suggestion, was given during a joint conference yesterday afternoon with union heads and company officials in the Aluminum Company offices, in the Gulf Building.

Knight's plan provided:

1—Strike to be called off immediately.

2—All strikers to be returned to work without discrimination.

3—Immediately after operations are resumed, negotiations will begin for the adjustment of all matters in dispute.

4—If the dispute is not brought to a mutually satisfactory conclusion in 10 days and unless the time be extended by mutual consent, all matters remaining in dispute will be submitted to the National Labor Relations board for adjustment, and the findings of the board are to be conclusive.

5—Any increase in wage rates that might result from the negotiations or board findings are to be retroactive to the time employes return to work.

"For six years of throat-ease my thanks to Old Golds" says Lucrezia Bori

NOTED METROPOLITAN OPERA STAR

"YOU'RE SMOKING!" exclaimed a friend in shocked surprise. 'And before a concert, too! Aren't you afraid of what that cigarette may do to your voice?'

"'Afraid? Not of this cigarette!' I replied. 'This is an Old Gold.'

"I meant that seriously. Six years ago in a blindfold cigarette test I selected Old Gold. I chose it for its smoothness . . . because it seemed so friendly to the throat. And I have smoked it freely ever since, without throat irritation.

"I speak from experience when I commend Old Gold to all who consider throat-ease an important part of cigarette enjoyment."

(Signed) LUCREZIA BORI

Our thanks to you, Miss Bori.

And may we add this:—

No better tobacco grows than is used in Old Gold. And it's pure. That's why Old Golds are easy on the THROAT and NERVES.

NRA REFORMS CUT TRIP BY ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—(AP)—President Roosevelt decided today to return to Washington from the funeral of Speaker Rainey in Carrollton, Ill., tomorrow before proceeding over the week-end to his summer residence at the family home in Hyde Park, N. Y.

Mr. Roosevelt changed his mind, when he found it would be impossible for him to see all the callers on his list today.

He will return to the White House late Thursday from the speaker's funeral and leave for Hyde Park on Saturday night for an indefinite stay.

One of the things causing the President's return to Washington was his desire to confer further on reorganization of the National Recovery Administration.

General principles for establishing a board of control were canvassed late yesterday with Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, Secretary Perkins and Donald Richberg, counsel for NRA.

The President will receive conferences with these officials the latter part of the week. He set aside this afternoon for talks with the executive council, including members of the cabinet and all recovery chieftains.

His special train will leave about 8 o'clock this afternoon for Illinois. Because of the nature of his mission, the President plans no appearances or talks along the way. The White House for this reason refused to make public the route.

RAINEY FUNERAL RITES SET

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—The body of Henry T. Rainey, late Speaker of the House of Representatives, will leave St. Louis early tomorrow on a final trip to "Walnut Hill," the Rainey estate near Carrollton, Ill.

The body will lie in state at the Greene County Courthouse in Carrollton, from 9 a. m. until 1 p. m. Wednesday. American legionnaires will stand guard.

Funeral services will be held at "Walnut Hill" at 4 p. m., a few minutes after the scheduled arrival of President Roosevelt, from Washington. An Episcopal service will be read and Speaker Rainey will be buried in the Carrollton Cemetery, beside his father and mother.

STEEL WAGES UP $12,000,000

Codes of the National Recovery Administration have resulted in the steel industry paying out $12,000,000 more in wages and salaries than otherwise would have been paid, recovery officials announced. The announcement followed a survey which revealed also that decisions by the Federal Court have upheld 90 per cent of the cases which thus far have been adjudicated.

During June of this year the steel industry reached its highest peak in four years, the report showed. A total of 455,966 workers were employed this year, with the number in June being 117,820 more than a year ago.

Jamison Heads Coal Code Group

Ralph Jamison, of the Jamison Coal Company, and vice chairman of the Western Pennsylvania Divisional Coal Code Authority, has been named chairman to succeed J. D. A. Morrow, it was learned today, after a meeting of the authority. At the same time Ross Davis, of the Hillman Coal and Coke Company, was made chairman of the marketing committee to succeed W. L. Sheppard, of the Pittsburgh Coal Company.

Flower Pots to Beautify Courthouse

Flower pots recently placed on the window sills of the County Building by Director of Property and Supplies Ray Sprigle, were ordered as part of a "building beautification program," and not to discourage window-sill sitters, Sprigle said yesterday. Six elaborate potted plants have also been set out at the three Grant street entrances of the building.

McCloskey Gun Ban Follows Shootings

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Mayor Eddie McCloskey, hoping to halt a wave of suicides and accidental shootings, he said, has ordered recalling of 100 permits for carrying revolvers.

The order was issued to Police Chief Harry Klink yesterday, together with instructions that no more permits be issued.

Piano Exits Mid Own Threnody Of Silver

HAMILTON, O., Aug. 21.—Workmen razing an old building found an ancient nickel-in-the-slot piano on the second floor and decided it would be easier to drop it to the ground than carry it down.

They did—and a moment later 20 workmen were scrambling for a bushel of nickels which rolled out.

Barber Closes Shop in War Over Code

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Richard Ulram, the barber who recently appeared in Gov. Hugh S. Johnson's big misfortune against the persecution and the prosecution of state code authorities, today closed his shop with the announcement that he was unable to operate under state code prices in his neighborhood, a poorer section of the city, he declared.

"I can open only when haircuts are 20 cents and shaves 10 cents."

Last Thursday Ulram warned Johnson that he would have to ignore state code prices and be jailed, or alter the 40-cent-haircut and 25-cent-shave minimums and go out of business.

Ulram, who has a broken back and is unable himself to work at a barber, said the closing of his shop leaves him without livelihood.

Meanwhile, Nicholas Heiser, a barber employed by Ulram, stepped into the controversy with a letter to Johnson, charging Ulram forced him to sign an agreement to work a 66-hour week for a 60 per cent commission in violation of the state code. He urged Johnson to take action against his employer.

Ulram denied he had forced the man to work the 66-hour week, but said all the barbers he employed had agreed to work on the 60 per cent commission agreement.

BEGIN HOSPITAL FOR BABIES

CALLANDER, Ontario, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Work on the first floor of the Dafoe Hospital for the Dionne quintuplets was begun today. The stone foundation was completed over the week-end. The five little sisters were 84 days old today.

Dr. Howard Kelly, emeritus professor of gynecology of Johns Hopkins University, who gave a radium treatment to a tumor on Marie's left thigh, August 6, visited the Dionne farm Sunday. Dr. Kelly said there was a slight reaction, but the change was slight. He expressed complete satisfaction with the condition of the tumor.

The 12-week-old sisters all made gains today for an aggregate increase of 4¼ ounces to bring their combined weight to 27 pounds 10 ounces.

Weights today, with gain from yesterday:

	Weight		Gain
	Pounds	Ounces	Ounces
Yvonne	6	9½	1
Annette	6	4	1
Cecile	5	15	¾
Emilie	5	12	½

DUCE IN PARLEY WITH AUSTRIAN CHANCELLOR

Otto to the throne of his Hapsburg ancestors in Vienna, from which they once ruled most of Europe within the confines of the Holy Roman Empire.

The new Austrian chancellor, an old friend of Mussolini, arrived at the central station in Florence at 10:45 a. m., wearing civilian clothes. He was greeted on the platform by Signor Mussolini, who had arrived 15 minutes before the train arrived.

Contrary to expectations, Il Duce shed his military uniform he has worn for the past two weeks during the Italian army maneuvres in which he took an active part and welcomed his Austrian visitor in a white suit and a white cap. Fulvio Suvich, under-secretary for foreign affairs, and Achille Starace, secretary-general of the Fascist party, were in the reception party.

The station was jammed with Fascist militiamen, and a blackshirt band was on hand to play the Fascist and Austrian anthems as the train steamed in.

DUCE MEETS SCHUSCHNIGG

Dr. Schuschnigg grasped Premier Mussolini by the hand as he stepped from his car. After brief formalities, he entered an automobile with Il Duce Suvich and Starace and immediately drove to the villa.

Not 80 miles away from Venice today is one of the many Bourbon palaces which still dot Europe is sojourning a woman who shared that throne in its last hours of pomp and circumstance, a woman whose activities are watched by all rulers of Europe and feared by many, the mother of Otto, the former Empress Zita.

She will not attend the meeting which has to do with the fate of the country of which she was once co-ruler. In fact, it is reported the conferees are embarrassed by her nearness to the scene of their meeting and will do everything to ignore her proximity. Such a policy is necessary to allay the fears of the nations which she once helped rule, totally or in part, which see a threat to their post-war freedom in any Hapsburg restoration. The co-operation of these nations, Czecho-Slovakia, Hungary and Jugo-Slavia, is necessary for Austria's economic rehabilitation.

'DANUBIAN PLAN'

It is probable that Schuschnigg will take up with Mussolini the "Danubian plan," which Dollfuss was to have discussed with Il Duce had not murder intervened. It is a plan made far more difficult by the events in the train of that murder.

It had been planned to enlarge the economic agreements among Italy, Austria and Hungary to include the Little Entente countries, especially Czecho-Slovakia and Jugo-Slavia. But Mussolini's mobilization of the Italian army on the Austrian border after the Dollfuss assassination caused repercussions in those countries which may make the proposed plan impossible.

Other reports have it that Schuschnigg's first purpose in conferring with Mussolini is to obtain his sponsorship for a large loan to be underwritten by the big powers, which will enable his new government to carry on in its admittedly difficult position.

MILITARY TREATY

It is also reported that Schuschnigg will arrange with Mussolini a reciprocal military treaty which would give Italy the immediate right to enter Austria if Austrian independence were threatened. It was said that the treaty has been drawn up as a reciprocal one to meet the objections which the Little Entente nations would be sure to make if it was merely one permitting Italian troops to enter Austria at will. Austria's independence has been guaranteed by France and England also, but this treaty would allow Austria's immediate neighbor, Italy, to act without red tape.

fied by the pressure of events and by peaceful negotiations.

"The financial injustices of the treaty have corrected themselves. The territorial injustices will correct themselves. The racial injustices will correct themselves in peace and their correction will insure peace.

"France has the most to gain by peace, the most to lose by war. She will be for peace, England will be for peace. Her dominions would not follow her into another European war, or at least they would desert her after the war.

"ITALY HAS next to France the most to gain by peace. Mussolini is too wise to follow the example of the Kaiser and run the risk of losing the great progress his nation has made.

"There must be and will be no war. Differences will be settled by peaceful plebiscite. The alternatives are either peace or destruction. All the statesmen know it. All the peoples know it.

"There will be peace."

HITLER MAPS NAZI RALLY

International News Service.

BERLIN, Aug. 21.—Reichsleader Adolf Hitler, the world's most puissant ruler, devoted himself today at his scenic retreat at Berchtesgaden, in the Bavarian Alps, to plans for making the coming Nazi party Congress in September, a sounding board which will make Germany reverberate with new Nazi programs.

The Congress, originally scheduled for next year, but advanced after the crisis of the bloody June 30, will be held in the quaint city of Nuerenberg September 5.

This Nazi convention will have a world-wide aspect with delegations from Holland, Austria, Jugo-Slavia, Czecho-Slovakia and Poland, and it is reported that a delegation is on its way from the Argentine and Brazil.

However, with the most pressing domestic problems that any ruler ever faced, it is doubtful that Hitler will copy Lenin's third internationale and try to win the world to the political doctrines of the National Socialists.

IL DUCE CROONS FOR SOLDIERS

International News Service.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Premier Benito Mussolini, of Italy, modern Europe's first dictator and famed the world over for his stern visage and forbidden demeanor, stood revealed today in the role of a solo singer.

A Central News dispatch from Rome told the story of how Il Duce took the stage last night at a songfest during the Italian army maneuvers and sang a song by Giacomo Puccini. His assembled troops greeted the performance with thunderous applause.

It was Il Duce's own idea that the soldiers be cheered up with songs. Officers and men gathered about him in the gathering dusk, and all sang well-known national airs, varied by solos and glee songs by representatives of the various regiments.

Then Mussolini, without any advance notice, stepped to the front and launched into Puccini's composition. The troops remained spellbound while their leader raised his stentorian voice and burst into cheers when he finished.

BOMBER WARNS U. S. NAZI BOYS

GRIGGSTOWN, N. J., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—The Newark Star Eagle today reported that the Young Nazi Camp, "Wille und Macht," has been receiving threatening letters, one of them containing a threat to blow up the encampment, where 120 pro-Nazi boys have been drilling and vacationing.

Hugo Hans, leader of the camp, was quoted as saying several missives have been received.

"They are from Communist sources."

Such was his comment, according to the Star Eagle.

The most menacing note received, the paper said, read:

"We will give you four days to leave the camp. If you do not we will blow it up."

(Signed) "ANTI-NAZI."

JEWS DEFENDED BY CARDINAL

LONDON, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—The Jewish Telegraphic Agency says a speech by Michael Cardinal Faulhaber, archbishop of Munich, in which he denounced the Nazi policy of opposition to Jews, has been disclosed. The cardinal was quoted as saying:

"No Catholic ever agreed to the persecution of the Jews in Germany. God always punishes the persecutors of the Jews."

The speech, the agency said, was suppressed by Nazis and the propaganda ministry forbade German papers to quote it. The prelate was further quoted:

"Persecution will never eradicate the ancient Jewish people, which has been suffering and which always suffers because of its deep devotion to religion."

WISE DEMANDS WAR ON HITLER BY ALL JEWS

GENEVA, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, of New York, declared today that he refuses to be intimidated in his stand on the relationship between German Nazis and world Jewry.

He revealed that efforts had been made to induce him to refrain from criticising in a speech before the world Jewish conference scheduled for tonight, the Jews in Palestine for not joining in the world boycott against Germany.

Rabbi Wise made it clear he was determined to adhere to the program of the conference, declaring "that trafficking of Jewish Palestine with Nazi Germany must cease at once." He said Jews can but admire the courageous way in which the Protestant and Catholic clergy in Germany have criticised Hitler's religious policy.

Jacob Lestchinsky, exiled German economist and newspaperman, in an address before the conference painted a doleful picture of the economic position of the Jewish people.

He declared that in 1933, 60,000 Jews had left Germany, and in the first six months of this year 10,000 more had departed.

Dr. Nahum Goldmann, addressing the opening session, warned Hitler that Jewry has known more powerful adversaries and has "always outlasted them."

Germany was accused by Goldmann of trying to realize an exaggerated racial principle "by brutal methods of force." He declared:

"Democracy, liberalism, freedom and tolerance will retain their values when posterity will look back upon the third reich as a thing of horror."

Dr. Goldmann told the Jews that the world-wide situation of the race is somber, with legal and civil status of Jews shattered in many countries. He warned:

"The masses are impoverished and the spiritual resistance of the great majority of Jews is impaired we must engage in a new struggle for recognition and realization of the most elementary equality rights."

HITLER PAGANS IN NEW WAR ON CHURCH

BERLIN, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Nazi propaganda guns fired an anti-Christianity barrage today which caused grave apprehension in Roman Catholic and some Protestant circles.

Developments in the troubled church situation indicated fresh tension, despite Chancellor Hitler's acknowledgement of "positive Christianity" in a recent declaration at Hamburg.

Reading the developments was an appeal for abolition of Christianity, apparently inspired by Hitler youth leaders.

Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of Propaganda, added to the fears with a veiled threat against Catholics and a new church drive was announced by Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller which would "cover every city and county from autumn until spring."

Another indication of strife was the hesitancy of the German Roman Catholic hierarchy to establish the status of a concordat between Vatican City and the nation.

August Hoppe, of the Hitler Youth press department, writing in the current issue of the Nazi periodical, Nordland, praised Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, philosophic dictator of the Third Reich and leader of the pagan movement in the Protestant church. Hoppe said:

"The time has come to take up the fight against Christianity."

"Discard the last messages of Christian training, so destructive to us Nordics. Abandon the Jewish-Christian conception of sin, pity and loving the enemy.

"Pity and mercy be damned. Praise that which steels."

2 Austrians Hang, Nazi Revolt Toll 11

VIENNA, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Two farm workers were hanged today, bringing the total number of executions in Austria since the Nazi putsch in July, to 11.

After the putsch, 20 pieces of explosives were found in the room of Franz Unterberger, 27. He admitted receiving them from Franz Saureis, 30, who confessed. They were hanged under the Dollfuss decree which makes the death penalty mandatory for persons possessing explosives.

ROYALISTS SET TO CROWN OTTO

By ALFRED TYRNAUER
International News Service.

VIENNA, Aug. 21.—Archduke Otto of Hapsburg, pretender to the Austrian throne, is expected in Vienna by the end of September and definite preparations for his reception and eventual restoration have been launched by Austrian Monarchists.

This was learned by International News Service today as Austrian legitimist leaders abandoned the cloak of secrecy that they have thrown over Otto's movements for months and expressed conviction he will be accepted by the nation and the world as emperor.

Monarchist circles maintain that the restoration forms the chief topic of conversation between Premier Mussolini and Chancellor Schuschnigg at Florence, Italy.

Schuschnigg, frequently said to be friendly to restoration in the past, is now said to be actively supporting Otto while Vice Chancellor Prince Ernst Rudiget von Starhemberg is known to feel that Austria needs the Hapsburg crown as a symbol of her independence from Nazi-ism.

Nazis Free Former Cabinet Minister

BERLIN, Aug. 21.—(INS.)—The most distinguished of the beneficiaries of Reichsleader Hitler's declaration of amnesty made directly after his assumption of presidential powers announced so far by the government is a former Prussian cabinet minister, Heinrich Hirtsiefer, whose release was published today.

Hirtsiefer was minister of public welfare in the cabinet of Prussia and a leader in the Catholic Center party. He had been sentenced to six months in jail and fined 900 marks on a charge of accepting bribes while in office.

BEAVER ROUTE FOR CANAL FOUGHT

By JOHN P. COWAN
Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Organized opposition to the Beaver-Mahoning canal route from the Ohio River to the Great Lakes, recommended to the Board of Army Engineers, has developed only from the promoters of the upper Allegheny-French Creek route, it was revealed by the War Department today.

Business interests in districts adjacent to the Miami-Toledo and the Scioto - Sandusky routes have written the corps of engineers setting forth the respective advantages of their routes, it was declared, but only detailed opposition to the Beaver-Mahoning waterway was made.

A hearing at which all interested parties may state their claims has been definitely fixed for 10 a. m. Monday September 17, in the offices of the Board of Army Engineers, it was announced today and formal notices have gone out for this meeting.

NEW SCHEDULE BY AIR LINE

Effective tomorrow, Central Airlines announces a revision of schedules between Pittsburgh, Washington, Akron, Cleveland and Detroit to conform with new airmail demands.

W. G. Wells, traffic manager, said today:

"A man with business in Washington can now leave Pittsburgh at 10:20 a. m., arrive in the capital just before noon, spend over five hours there and be home in time for a late dinner. Or, going to Detroit, he could leave here shortly before midnight, after spending an evening at home, arrive in the motors city in the morning, remain there until 2:25 o'clock that afternoon and be home for an early dinner."

Northbound planes on the line leave Pittsburgh under the new schedule at 1:10 a. m., and 2:10 and 7:40 p. m., eastern standard time. Southbound planes leave Pittsburgh at 2:45 a. m., 10:30 a. m. and 5:45 p. m., standard time. The trip to Washington is made in 1 hour and 20 minutes.

FLIERS REFUTE TORTURE STORY

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—(INS.)—"A punch in the nose" for those responsible for reports that American aviation instructors to the Colombian Army have been ill-treated was promised today by three fliers returning from the Central American republic.

They are Ira Smalling, Lyle Meyer and Thomas Hardy, who flew an ambulance plane to Colombia from St. Louis and returned aboard the liner Colombia. Smalling said:

"They're having a swell time down there. When they get back a couple of disgruntled birds who have been spreading these reports are going to get a punch in the nose."

PA. PYTHIANS OPEN MEET

HARRISBURG, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—The Pennsylvania Grand Lodge of the Knights of Pythias and the Pythian Sisters open formal sessions of its sixty-seventh annual convention today.

Naval Heroes Hunt Buddies to Talk Over Old Times

A reunion of survivors of the battleship Maine loomed today as an unscheduled feature of the national encampment of the United Spanish War Veterans.

Naval heroes who faced death that night when that ship was blown up in Havana Harbor were trying to find one another to talk over old times.

Mike Gamson, 70, of California, came all the way across the continent to attend the convention and wants particularly to meet his old shipmates.

Arthur Rau, of New York City, also is anxious to meet the other survivors who are visiting in the city. Rau is living temporarily at 512 Arch street, North Side. He declared he particularly wished to meet William McNair, (not the Mayor), Pittsburgh's only survivor of the Maine.

McNair moved from the North Side a few years ago, to Chicago. He is said to be in Pittsburgh for the convention.

Government Self Aid Relief Work Now Employs Million

Mr. Mallon

WASHINGTON Aug. 21.—The FERA announced in a whisper the other day that 40,000 women would be put to work immediately on 250,000 miles of government cotton to make free garments for the needy.

It has been working the same trick from time to time, making comforters and underclothing, shoes, canned fruits, vegetables and meats.

The unadvertised fact is that it is now employing about a million people in this partially self-supporting work relief scheme. That means approximately one-tenth of the federal relief problem already is being handled in this way.

But, what is more important the insiders now say, is that these experiments have been so successful they probably will be made the basis for the coming winter relief program.

PLAN

Plotters and planners behind the FERA are known to have worked out unofficially a plan for trebling and possibly quadrupling their activity in this respect.

It could not become a complete substitute for the CWA dole system, used last winter and abandoned (ostensibly but not actually) last spring, but it would cut down measureably the amount of money to be doled out this coming winter.

There is no dispute about the practical wisdom of the thing. The government has been buying surplus raw materials and must buy more. The unemployed need both work and finished products. It is practical to have them work at processing these raw materials for themselves.

Neither is there any question but what the experiments have worked very well when the government made contracts with the manufacturers, offering them a portion of the raw material in exchange for manufactured products. But, when the government has gone into the manufacturing business for itself, the results have not always been satisfactory. Unskilled workers, using makeshift manufacturing devices, have turned out deficient work.

OBSTACLES

But that is not the reason why the government has been so shy and uncommunicative about its extension of this phase of relief.

The catch is deep-seated beyond any mistake. For one thing it smacks of Socialism. It puts the government into the manufacturing business. No matter how practical that may be the manufacturers do not like it. They have been raising quite a howl.

One mattress manufacturer, for instance, was charging here like a bull when the government first went into the mattress business. It had arranged with the state relief organization to furnish workroom and benches for women. The state people also went out and borrowed or rented sewing machines. Through such co-operation there did quite a business.

The resale manufacturers was quieted temporarily at least, when the FERA conducted a survey in his home town showing how many people (in it) were too poor to buy his mattresses but were sleeping on burlap bags and what not. That convinced the manufacturer they were not competing with him. Not all manufacturers have been quieted so easily.

STRIKE

The textile strike, called for September 1, is the same one Gen. Johnson thought he settled a few months ago. The unions backed down then because the mill owners were quite content to shut down and let the workers strike for a while. Now orders have picked up, so the unions have chosen this time for a showdown.

They may have the 300,000 union memberships they claim. A private government estimate, made about a month ago, placed the unionists in the cotton industry at 185,000; silk, wool and other branches at 65,000, or a total of 250,000.

Before the NRA started, that union had about 30,000 members.

TEAR GAS CELL FOR CAPONE IN NEW PRISON

International News Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 21.—America's former public enemy No. 1, "Scarface" Al Capone, and 62 other convicts en route from Atlanta Federal Penitentiary in the specially constructed prison-like cars, will probably arrive here tomorrow or Thursday for transfer to Alcatraz Island.

Utmost secrecy still surrounded the transfer of prisoners to the the new American "Devil's Island" in San Francisco Bay.

Warden James A. Johnston, of Alcatraz prison, said "we will be ready to receive them," but insisted that he has not been officially informed of the transfer.

Gas, Bars and Coast Guard To Keep Capone in Pen

Editor's Note—Some of the "modern conveniences" which will greet Al Capone and other federal prisoners being transferred to Uncle Sam's new "Devil's Island" are described today in the second and final story dealing with the Alcatraz Federal Prison.

By HAROLD HEROUX
International News Service.

ALCATRAZ ISLAND, Cal., Aug. 21.—You have been in modern hotels with hot and cold running water.

Well, be introduced to the latest "modern hotel."

It has—piped "tear gas."

Throughout Alcatraz Island Federal Prison, America's new "Devil's Island," there has been installed running "tear gas" in all parts of the penitentiary.

Upon the slightest uprising of inmates—and only the nation's "toughest customers" will be housed here—guards can turn a small faucet and the choking, tear-making vapor will flood the spot of insurrection.

MORE VIOLENT GAS

Besides the "running tear gas," tear gas guns are carried by all of Warden James A. Johnston's corps of trained guards. In addition to tear gas another more violent gas is kept for extreme emergencies.

The system of "running tear gas" is only one of a series of clever devices installed at Alcatraz to assure the security of its "guests."

The most modern lock system is employed in the foolproof cell blocks. Twenty-four levers, controlled by the turnkey and his assistants, can open the doors of all cells at once, or open just the "odd" numbered cells or "even" numbered cells, or just one particular cell.

A secret radio room is a highlight of Alcatraz. If convicts, in an uprising, should put the regular telephonic system out of order, Warden Johnston can rush to the radio and summon aid—plenty of it.

In a demonstration for International News Service, Warden Johnston turned on the radio, and spoke into the microphone:

"Alcatraz Island calling the United States Coast Guard!"

In an instant there was a response:

"Hello, Alcatraz. This is Point Bonita Coast Guard Station!"

Other Coast Guard stations, guarding the Golden Gate, and also the San Francisco police department, were likewise tuned in on the warden and ready for action. The warden said:

"Just testing, gentlemen. Thank you. That is all!"

VISITING TROUBLES

Visitors to Alcatraz will face a perplexing situation. After qualifying at a San Francisco office for a visit to the island, the visitor will be greeted after the mile-and-a-half boat trip from the mainland by courteous, keen-eyed guards.

Speaking to prisoners is permissible—but only through a microphone screen. A 24-inch-thick wall separates the prisoner from his visitor. A small 6-inch by 4-inch window permits the prisoner to see his caller. And that is all!

Warden Johnston said he didn't expect to have many visitors.

Work for the inmates will be provided in the prison laundry, shoe shop, clothing shop, woodwork factory, kitchen and mess hall. A modern hospital, manned by a United States Public Health Service staff, is ready for use.

—And Did Police Blush! But for Odd Reason

International News Service.

DETROIT, Aug. 21.—"Flash! Squad cars attention—There's a nude woman lying in the street at Madison avenue and Witherell street."

This broadcast over the short-wave police radio startled roving squads here yesterday, started sirens screaming, cars racing.

Morbid crowds gathered to see the gory murder victim, saw burly, shame-faced, blushing detectives gingerly lift the figure of a beautiful woman into a squad car, the while muttering unintelligible invective.

At the detective bureau a prosaic report read:

"Answered call to department store where someone had thrown rock through window and escaped with fur coat, dress, hat. Wax dummy recovered from street."

Sept. 3 Set for Mrs. Piccard to Pilot Her Husband On Trip Into Stratosphere

PROF. AND MRS. JEAN PICCARD . . . . . THEIR STRATOSPHERE FLIGHT: SEPTEMBER 3

LANGLEY BORN 100 YEARS AGO

Tomorrow marks a hundredth birthday anniversary of Samuel Pierpont Langley, claimed by veteran pilots to be the inventor of the airplane. For 20 years Langley was director of the Allegheny Observatory in Pittsburgh.

Though the astronomer and inventor's ship dived into the Potomac River upon its first test flight in Washington, and official credit went to the Wright brothers, his ship was later recovered and, equipped with a new engine, sailed into the air.

While director of the observatory here, Langley studied the sun's spectrum and invented the bolometer, an instrument used to determine the kinds of gas given off by the sun.

Langley left Pittsburgh in 1887 to become secretary of the Smithsonian Institution in Washington. He died there in 1906.

U. S. MAN BALKS DEVIL'S ISLAND

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Faced with a long term on dreaded Devils' Island, Oscar G. Nordman, former Pacific coast ship officer, received a pardon from the President of France, his sister, Mrs. Adele H. King, said today.

Mrs. King said her brother did not leave Tahiti, where he was accused of scuttling a ship, because the pardon arrived before he was scheduled to begin the trip to the notorious prison.

Mrs. King explained:

"My brother informed me he was not on the boat that was scuttled and had nothing to do with the burning of the ship in an insurance fraud. He actually did not leave Tahiti, but carried the case to the highest court in France and received his pardon."

The complete pardon was signed by M. Albert Lebrun, President of France, last July 11. The scuttling of the ship occurred in 1930.

NATURAL SLEEP QUIETS TALKER

International News Service.

MT. GILEAD, O., Aug. 21.—Considerably strengthened by his first full night of natural sleep in more than two weeks, Donald Campbell, 32-year-old "talking sickness" victim, was somewhat improved today.

For the first time since he began talking incessantly 16 days ago, he was completely quiet for brief periods.

This was learned today despite the refusal of Dr. C. S. Jackson, attending physician, and members of the victim's family to discuss his condition. The family definitely feels Donald is a "little better," a friend said after a visit to the Campbell home at Edison, two miles from here.

Meanwhile a movement for a community campaign of prayer for Campbell's recovery was started by the Rev. E. L. Hurley, pastor of the Mt. Gilead Baptist Church.

Professor Explains They Will Stay Up Only Few Hours

DETROIT, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Prof. and Mrs. Jean Piccard, of Wilmington, Del., today announced definite plans for a stratosphere flight starting from Ford Airport September 3, or as soon thereafter as weather conditions permit.

They began their training for the flight here last spring. Mrs. Piccard, mother of three sons, will pilot the balloon, having passed her flight tests and a written examination in June to qualify for a Federation Aeronautique Internationale license.

The flight, during which Prof. Piccard will study the cosmic rays, will mark the first attempt of a woman to enter the stratosphere, and it will be the first time in aeronautical history that woman has attempted to pilot a balloon on a flight of importance. Mrs. Piccard explained:

"We plan to take off in the early morning hours of September 3, but if there is any wind blowing, then we will have to wait."

The Piccards have been at the Bartol Foundation of the Franklin Institute at Swarthmore, Pa., for the past two weeks, conferring with Dr. W. F. G. Swann, director, who is building the instruments to be carried on the flight. Prof. Piccard said:

"We will carry 168 Geiger counters, the instruments which detect the presence of cosmic rays and the direction from which they are coming.

"We will be able to stay up only a few hours because we do not want to be blown out over the Atlantic. Our gondola will float and would be all right on a lake. But the waves in the ocean would be too high to make it easy to rescue us."

Prof. Piccard was enthusiastic about the stratosphere flight Saturday in Belgium of Max Cosyns, a protege of his brother, Prof. Auguste Piccard, and said:

"Cosyns spent a longer time in the stratosphere than any previous flier and should have gathered much scientific information. We will not attempt to set an altitude record on our flight. Our only purpose is to gather additional scientific data."

PLAY MACHINE, ARREST CLERK

Patrolman Thomas Shanahan and two fellow officers walked into the Penn-Oliver store at 422 Oliver avenue last night and began to play a marble machine. They were promised 10 cents in trade if they could score 4,500 points.

When they failed, Howard Petty, 19, of 31 Dilworth street, the clerk, told them it was impossible, they said. He was charged with keeping a gambling device.

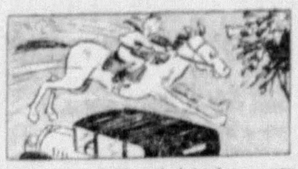
Body Found Amid Alcohol Bottles

The body of Stanley Doven, 33, of 80 Forty-fourth street, was found late yesterday in a lot in Smallman street, near Thirty-seventh street. Near the body police reported finding one empty bottle and two others filled with rubbing alcohol. The body was taken to the morgue, where it was identified by a relative.

Earlier in the day four bottles of rubbing alcohol were stolen when the window of the drug store of Carl Neuser, 3701 Butler street, was shattered with a brick, according to detectives.

Leap by Horse Fails, but it Wins Point

BALTIMORE, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—A jumpy horse, ridden by Vernon Kanley, 23, tried to leap over an automobile here late today.



The horse didn't quite clear the machine—but Kanley did.

Results:

Kanley went to the hospital, the car to a repair shop—and the horse, unhurt, back to the stable.

COLETTE SEEKS REFUGE IN MOUNTAINS

Colette Marshall Green was in the mountains today, presumably to forget.

Her husband, Tom Green, 23, was driving his truck to Cairo, Illinois.

To shield the affairs of the 18-year-old blonde who jilted her Spanish boy friend to Manila and eloped to Shrewsbury, W. Va., with a young man she had known three months.

Colette and two other girls left the Brunswick here near Green City, where she has been visiting, for the highest altitude.

Both sides and Green presumably still plan to annul the wedding. And there is a possibility that Colette's father, William J. Marshall, of Mt. Lebanon, will seek court aid to obtain the custody of Colette, who has been in custody of her mother, Señora Rosario Marshall, in Manila, the wife of a separation agreement since the parents were divorced several years ago.

FATHER 'MEETS' ANN DVORAK

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Ann Dvorak screen actress, has made the acquaintance of her father.

Miss Dvorak went down to the railway station and had to be introduced to Edward McKim, actor and the father she had not seen for 16 years.

Miss Dvorak, up to last Christmas, knew she had a father, but didn't know where he was. McKim, on the other hand, knew he had a daughter, but did not realize she was the screen actress.

Shortly before last Christmas Miss Dvorak made a nation-wide appeal for her father to communicate with her. Her father read the appeal and at once corresponded with his daughter.

Father and daughter lost track of each other when McKim separated from the mother, Ann Lehr McKim, actress.

Stavisky Associate On Hunger Strike

PARIS, Aug. 21.—(INS.)—Doctors today were considering forcibly feeding Guiboud-Ribaud, an associate of the late Alexander Stavisky, whose manipulations caused the fall of a French government and rioting in the streets of Paris.

Guiboud-Ribaud entered his sixth day of hunger striking today in Sante prison.

Things I Never Knew About "New York's Finest."

A cop pays for everything he uses in his job. The only thing that Father Knickerbocker gives him is the badge he wears on his coat and a copy of the Rules and Regulations of the Police Department. Both must be returned to the guy when the cop quits his job.

The equipment of a fully uniformed policeman weighs a little more than eight pounds. That takes in his gun, extra bullets, rubber billy, memo book, book of summonses, book of Rules and Regulations, flashlight and "nippers"—or handcuffs. Bracelets to you.

When a cop's uniform is damaged while in the line of duty, and it becomes unfit for wear, he files application with his commanding officer for funds to buy a new one. While the application goes through a line of red tape he is forced to buy a new uniform and then waits to collect. One cop has been waiting since 1919 for reimbursement for a uniform coat that was damaged while the policeman was making rescues at a fire.

He must go to target practice three times a year and fire twenty shots . . . that costs him 60 cents for bullets.)

A policeman pays one dollar a month "house tax." This goes to the matrons who make the beds in the station houses. The cops don't sleep in station houses since Grover Whalen organized the so-called "Riot Squads" when he was Comm. (But the cops still pay the buck.)

The cop doesn't mind paying the buck because it goes to the widow of some slain policeman. To be a matron in a station house you must be the widow of a policeman.

New York has a woman detective who holds the rank of First Grade Detective (which draws a lieutenant's salary). She is Mary Sullivan and is known the world over. (And a swell girl, by golly.)

A policeman is never off duty. When he gets a day off he says, "I'm on my 32" which means that he has 32 hours in which he does not have to report to his command unless something big happens like the Tombs Prison Break when all were recalled to duty.

The New York cop (except detectives) works three "tours," as he calls his stretch of duty. They are 8 a. m. to 4 p. m.; 4 p. m. to midnight and midnight to 8 a. m. After finishing one tour he goes on his "32."

A detective has no set hours. He spends more time in station houses, investigating complaints, being in court testifying or covering "plants" than he does in his own home.

A "plant" is where a detective is assigned to watch a particular spot to prevent a crime or bring about the arrest of a wanted criminal. The "plant" on the hideaway of "Two-Gun" Crowley lasted 72 hours.

There is a difference between a detective and a plain-clothesman. A detective is a so-called "gold shield man" and works on cases such as robberies, murders, shootings, stabbings and hold-ups. The plainclothesman, sometimes known as the "Captain's Man" or "Inspector's Man," works on cases such as breaking white slave rings.

New York cops pay for their own pension. Before they get their paychecks on the fifteenth or thirtieth of each month a percentage is taken out and handed over to the pension fund.

A cop can retire after twenty-five years. He then can collect half his salary for life. If a policeman is permanently disabled during the course of duty he can also retire and collect half pay for life.

The average life of a cop's uniform is two seasons. The cloth from which it is made can come only from tailors approved by the Police Department. The cloth must be of certain texture, weight, etc.

Cops are supposed to be hard-hearted. Still the average cop hands out about two dollars a week from his own pocket to those that come to him asking for a nickel to get home, or for that well-known cup of coffee.

Lieutenants assigned to what is known as "Supervisor of Patrol" are known to policemen as "shoe-flies." The captain is known as "the skipper" or "the old man." There have been captains that have been called names that cannot be printed.

When you see a policeman telephoning from one of those yellow boxes on lampposts along Fifth avenue or from one of the little green boxes on the side of some building, he is doing what is called "ringing in." In other words, he is reporting to the station house. He does that every 40 minutes.

If a policeman fails to ring in after a certain length of time other cops go looking for him. He might be in trouble and need help.

When a policeman breaks one of the rules of the department (there are over 1,000) he is given a hearing before one of the deputy commissioners. If found guilty he is either dropped from the department or fined several days pay or merely reprimanded. It depends on the nature of the violation. (Or the nature of his boss.)

The only rank from which a cop can be demoted is that of inspector and deputy inspector. If they go back in the rank of captain which is the highest civil service rating. Inspectors and deputy inspectors are made at the discretion of the commissioner.

The West Forty-seventh Street Station in the heart of the White Way has the largest roster of regular assigned patrolmen, sergeants, lieutenants and detectives. It is commanded by Capt. Louis Rosenfeld and carries a roster of 320 men.

Once you have been convicted of a felony and your prints and photograph are on record in the Rogues Gallery they stay there.

Since the City of New York became consolidated more than 375 members of the greatest police in the world have lived up to the tradition to be "Faithful Unto Death," the motto of New York's Finest.

More policemen and detectives have been killed or wounded while attached to the West Sixty-eighth Street Station. Located in the swanky Central Park and upper Broadway sector, its boundaries house more of the town's baddies than any other station.

Old Family Triangle Again

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Woollcott is a large Elizabethan fat-cheeked cherub. Voyaging and it often is somewhere near Walpole-ing bright and the stern mumbo-jumbo of three Bronte girls, judging by the domestic tragedy presented at the Arnold School last night by the Civic Playhouse. "The Shining Hour" is its title, and Keith Winter is the author and it's one of those dramas where the family is uncomfortable as soon as they are all together, like the Jalna tribe or the wild Herries. Anyhow, when Henry Linden, played by DeElda Crawford, brings home a strange wife from foreign parts, trouble begins as soon as David Linden, played by Robert Gill, practices Rachmaninoff on the baby grand. For Mariella and David were "made for each other," and everybody soon finds it out, including David's wife Judy, played by Dorothy Devlin.

So life goes on as they play bezique, which is the grandfather of pinochle drink tea, which is an old Yorkshire custom, and work at jigsaw puzzles, which supplies some Ibsen symbolism. There is also a fire at the end of the second act, lit by a spark from Ibsen's "Ghosts," and in the third act David smashes a choice lot of crockery to register a nervous breakdown. Whereupon the strange wife Mariella, played by Edna Toldi, turns into a ministering angel and decides to go away with David, because they were "made for each other."

This family triangle, almost a pentagon, is not particularly novel in its elements, for the Freudian dramatists from Sudermann to O'Neill have worked the problem over and over. But Keith Winter fits the angles with deftly natural conversation until the barn catches fire and the superfluous wife, Judy, makes a burnt sacrifice of herself. The other brother, Mickey, played by Howard Plaine, also tangles the skein by kissing his sister-in-law without leave, and the spinster Hannah, played by Ruth McCabe, stirs the domestic broth with her tongue. Altogether it is a very well mixed and baked Yorkshire pudding if you like your Bronte sisters brought up to date.

The six people in the cast did exceedingly well, all of them, and the piece had been intelligently directed by A. E. Smith. The setting also was a neat piece of stage architecture. It is the play that isn't quite the thing—although it seems to have met the approval of Broadway's erudite mob. Whether it's desire among the lindens or desire under the elms or desire among the whiteoaks, doesn't really matter much. The outcome can be foreseen with accuracy, all except the fire, but maybe that was started by Jane Eyre.

Mr. Seibel

Baseball Mystery Picture

One of filmdom's most popular romantic teams, Madge Evans and Robert Young, are united again in "Death on the Diamond," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's comedy-mystery thriller. But for the first time in their joint careers, they are involved in a series of mysterious murders, and at various times are victims of suspicion. "Death on the Diamond" deals with a series of tragedies that beset a pennant-winning baseball team in one of the major leagues. It is from the story by Courtland Fitzsimmons, author of "70,000 Witnesses." The cast includes David Landau, C. Henry Gordon, Edward Brophy, Nat Pendleton and Ted Healy.

Innocent, Yet Suffers

Diana Wynyard, in "One More River," film of John Galsworthy novel, coming to the Stanley Friday, is a woman above reproach who finds herself scandalized in divorce court.

Calling Fall Furs

Frances Drake, who will be seen in "Eyes of the Eagle," is showing off a sports coat of dark gray galyac, reflecting Hollywood tendency toward flat furs for fall wear among younger film colony set.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS :-: By William J. Lewis

A novelty in the opening program of the new Harris house, The Alvin, featuring Shirley Temple in "Baby Take a Bow," August 31, will be the appearance of Ed. Lowry on the screen as master of ceremonies. A special film is being made in New York to be used in the first program in the new downtown first-run house, so arranged that Lowry will be seen and heard introducing all features that will make up its initial bill. The formal opening of the house will take place Thursday night, August 30.

The first gun of the impending legitimate season is the appointment of Thomas Kenyon as subscription secretary for the Theater Guild and American Theater Society. The office is 404 Nixon Building, Atlantic 3641. There he will take reservations for the new plays the Theater Guild will tour. "Mary of Scotland" and "Ah, Wilderness!" If they come here again, which is probable, it is not likely they will be among the subscription plays. "Mary of Scotland," according to present plans, will again star Helen Hayes, and George M. Cohan will be at the head of "Ah, Wilderness!" Mr. Cohan is very fond of the road, and announced in the spring that he was looking forward to another jaunt to inland theaters. The subscription season will offer six plays, three of the Guild and three of the American Theater Society. One may subscribe for the entire six or either group of three.

Richard B. Harrison, who has played "the Lawd" in "The Green Pastures" more than 1,500 times, up and down and across the country, from Massachusetts to California, and Toronto to Texas, has never been seen in it in his home town, London, Ontario. He will have that satisfaction October 29. Laurence Rivers, the producer, has been trying for three years to get "The Green Pastures" into London, and only recently was he able to complete arrangements with motion picture interests controlling theaters there to permit "the Lawd" to return home. Mr. Harrison was born of fugitive slave parents September 18, 1864. On his birthday next month the play will begin its tour in Norfolk, Va. At the end of February the company will go to New York for a second engagement.

Francine Larrimore, who became quite a favorite back in the days of "Nice People," has been engaged by Max Gordon for the star role in "Spring Song," by Samuel and Bella Spewack, which will open in Philadelphia September 24, prior to a New York engagement. The play was recently "tried out" in White Plains, N. Y.

* * *

Fred Stone will go dramatic in "Jayhawker," a play set in Kansas of Civil War days by Sinclair Lewis and Lloyd Lewis, who are not related, by the way. Fred's daughter, Carol, will be seen with her daddy in his first departure from musical comedy, extravaganza and vaudeville. He will have a character part, that of a son of the soil who rises to become a national figure.

Russ Columbo Film Completed

Universal has completed its first Russ Columbo feature, "Wake Up and Dream." Strangely enough, the first scenes of the picture, which show Russ Columbo, Roger Pryor and June Knight as a small time vaudeville trio, were the last ones to be photographed. Kurt Neumann directed.

HOT FROM HOLLYWOOD

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 21.—Bride Max Baer, world's champion—and clown, refused the star role in "The Mikado" one of the current Broadway hits Paramount intends bringing to the screen, because he didn't like prize fight movies. Well, that's what he said. The real reason that Jack Oakie has been assigned the coveted role is probably the studio bosses are still overcome from the salary Max wanted.

Mr. Oakie

Anyway, Jack's in with Helen Mack and Grace Bradley as the charmers.

Luke Barnett, the puppy of professional insulters, ribbed Alexander Carr to such an extent the Jewish funny man isn't yet over it! . . . Joey Ray went fishing the other day and landed so many denizens of the deep every day is Friday to him—for weeks to come . . . Eddie Vitch, the Brown Derby's artist, has joined the cast of the Tingle-Tangle Theater to present a bit of pantomime which made him famous in Parisian cafes.

Willie Castello, handsome Hollander, who arrived Wed. to play leads for Universal, sees red when called a Valentino prototype (but he does resemble the late Rudy). Interesting, perhaps, is Willie's great determination to become a star in America. Three years ago he practically pestered Carl Laemmle for a chance, but at that time he couldn't speak English. Feverishly he studied—and now, well . . . "Uncle Carl" did keep his word.

Frankie Gay showed up on Vine St. wearing a loudly checkered suit. Tammany Young put up a big squawk, claiming that Frankie "didn't secure permission from the copyright owner!"

Mae West's much-discussed (almost too much) movie has been finally okayed by the New York censors . . . Walter Lang and Marion Fields (an odd pair, no less) have been nightlife-ing it at the El Rey Club.

Gossip Gathering . . . Gary Cooper's papa got the worst part of an auto accident Wednesday. Mary Brian, who almost landed on front pages in big headlines—but some newshawk got nicked up in his pathos . . . Maggie Bloomer, Eddie Welch, Marjorie Wellman, Walter Morosco, Alan Mowbray, Vic McLaglen and others are making the Brown Derby a gay place at cocktail time . . . Lowell Sherman has permission to wear shorts during these hot days while directing at Universal. Shucks with his moncrete smile he sure wouldn't it?

Greta Garbo had a bad case of blue sniffles (probably from sneaking out of doors), but is back on the set after a three-day "at home" vacation.

There must be a jinx on "Babes in Toyland," starring Laurel and Hardy, at the Hal Roach fun factory.

Just listen to this—

Weeks ago Laurel refused to work and accept salary until he could straighten out his alimony differences with his first wife.

Then the director, Ray McCarey, had a battle over the way the story was being constructed, and he quit.

Producer Hal Roach was stricken with appendicitis and rushed to the hospital.

While doing a stunt, Laurel fell down and broke his ankle.

Mrs. Hal Roach and the children landed in the hospital following an auto smashup.

Roach finally ordered production stopped until everybody gets together — and put together — again.

A bit ironical—the late John Daumery (directing in England) had "Over the Garden Wall" as the title of his last picture.

Eli Lloyd Hoffman has a swell-o theme song for boy friends of Anna May Wong. He tags it, "Don't Let Your Love Go Wong!"

Did Gloria Swanson fool a couple of snoopy bulb-pressers photographers, no less, the other day when they found her lunching with Herb Marshall. She slipped out of a side door while Herbie nonchalantly strolled out the front door very much alone! I'm sorry that one who signs herself "Ethel" doesn't like this "Hello" at the beginning of column. Just close your eyes, Dearie, when it bothers you.

Miss Swanson

Charles Williams has dished up a new song, "Pretty Gigolette," to go with the movie, "Gigolette." Peter Trent, London actor brought to Hollywood for a role in "David Copperfield," turned up his English nose at a lesser part and is leaving the movie village like he found it.

Barbara Pepper's snooty attitude toward Goldwyn's chorus wasn't because she thought she was too good, but because she wanted to go places.

Norman Foster sun 18 grand in that little pearl-diving picture of his—and there's not a gonna-gonna in it!

Wallace MacDonald, once a top-notcher in the leading man class, who turned writer, is back to the grease paint—this time for a role in "Streamline Express."

FOLKS "NATURALLY SKINNY" Now Gain 5 lbs. in 1 Week and Feel Fine!

New Natural Mineral Concentrate From the Sea, Rich in FOOD IODINE, Building Up Weak, Run-down Men & Women Where All Else Fails.

Here's good news for "Naturally Skinny" folks who can't seem to add an ounce no matter what they eat. A new way has been found to add flattering pounds of good, solid flesh and fill out those ugly, scrawny hollows even on men and women who have been underweight for years: 5 to 8 pounds in 1 week guaranteed—12 to 15 pounds in few weeks not uncommon.

This new discovery, called Kelp-a-Malt, now available in handy tablets, offers practically all the vitally essential food materials in highly concentrated form. These minerals so necessary to the digestion of fats and starches—the weight-making elements in your daily diet—include a rich supply of precious FOOD IODINE.

Kelp-a-Malt's FOOD IODINE nourishes the internal glands which control assimilation, the process of converting digested food into firm, solid flesh. 5 Kelp-a-Malt tablets contain more FOOD IODINE than 486 lbs. of spinach, 1,000 lbs. of beef, 1,389 lbs. of lettuce.

Try Kelp-a-Malt for a single week and notice the difference—how much better you sleep, how your appetite improves, how ordinary stomach distress vanishes. Watch flat chest and skinny limbs fill out, and flattering extra pounds appear. Kelp-a-Malt is prescribed and used by physicians. Fine for children, too. Remember the name, Kelp-a-Malt, the original kelp and malt tablets. Nothing like them, so do not accept imitations. Try Kelp-a-Malt. If you don't gain at least 5 pounds in 1 week, the trial is free. 100 jumbo size tablets, 4 to 5 times the size of ordinary tablets cost but little.

In Which the Customers Do the Work.

"IN ORDER to kill an hour," writes Sam Gould, "a friend of mine dropped into a small movie house on the outskirts of Brooklyn the other night. In the middle of the feature he arose suddenly and walked to the back of the house.

"He spotted a lone usher and commanded to see the manager.

"'All's get to manager,' repeated the usher. 'But there's the owner, standin' over there. You can speak to him if you want to.'

"My friend walked over to the owner, a short man with huge shoulders, and tapped him on the back.

"'What kind of people do you allow in here?' asked my friend. 'The man who was seated next to me just stole my watch.'

"The owner didn't seem too astonished.

"'Yeah,' was his retort. 'That's jus bad. Walk down the aisle a way with me and point the guy out.'

"My friend did as requested—and both men returned to the back of the theater.

"'I know that guy,' said the owner. 'He's one of the regulars in here. Don't make a fuss. Just stay where you are and I'll get your watch back for you.'

"The owner again walked down the aisle while my friend stood in the rear. In five minutes the owner was back. And he returned the watch that had been stolen.

"'I'm certainly glad to get this back,' cried my friend. 'Thanks a lot. What did the crook say?'

"The owner shrugged.

"'Nothin,' he returned. 'As a matter of fact, he doesn't even know I got it back!' . . .

"YOU seem to like definitions, Mark," writes Sam Michael Gevins, "so here's mine for a yokel.

"A yokel is a guy who comes to the big city with well-creased pants and a shining face—and winds up with shining pants and a well-creased face!" . . .

"THE other day," advises Howard Snyder, "Hugh Wedlock, Jr., asked a dizzy question in your column. He wanted to know how much seasoning a sailor must have before he can be called an old salt.

"I have the answer, Mark. Goos of it!" . . .

"I SEE by a recent newspaper article," writes Ben Purr, "that two former members of a nudist colony in New Jersey are trying to join the Army.

"Can you imagine what will happen, Mark, if they're ever caught absent without leaves?" . . .

"THIS actually happened," reports Jack Tell, "at one of the de luxe movie houses. It was shortly after 1 p. m., and the cashier had just changed the prices to the higher afternoon scale.

"A young boy, evidently a high school student, rushed up to the window and plunked down 35 cents. That was the morning admission price.

"'Quick,' he exclaimed. 'Give me a ticket.'

"'Sorry,' answered the cashier. 'You're a little late.'

"'Oh,' said the boy, 'that's all right. I have a good excuse!' . . .

He Shows New Way to Walk In Shade

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 21.—(INS.)—Patrolman Charles Braxton has never "seen a dream walking," but today he confessed seeing a tree on foot.

The tree, an ornamental but artificial one, came bobbing along into the range of Braxton's vision, so he set out to investigate.

The tree's motivation power, police said, was Frank Guy, 31, who was returning from a party.

So today the tree that was walking and the tree that was talking was in jail on a larceny charge.

SPEAK UP, SISTERS, :-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-: By MARION BRUNOT

Suitor Lives Too Far Away, Mother Says

TOO FAR AWAY from her BOY FRIEND. So her mother insists. He comes from way down South.

Yet WANDERING JOAN keeps on penning epistles to her Southern sweetheart, and his letters pile up in return. For when hearts are warm, words run readily on paper . . .

Also another thing that worries Joan's mother is that she is one who put her best foot forward. She keeps saying in his letters he is coming to storm the citadel . . . she is ready for the complaint of the Speak Up Sisters column, and I am enlisted in her behalf, believe me . . .

These are not the days when one worries over a few hundred miles . . . the difference between Pittsburgh and New York is only the question of a few flying hours, why should we bother over trifles like area . . . I can't help but suggest to Joan's mother that she read the daily news . . . and wake up. These are times when the Connecticut wagon does not exist . . . When climbing the Allegheny on pack horses are but dim memories.

We are living in 1934, sister . . . And some of our best hemen are coming up from the Southern States . . . Better let daughter have her way . . . And as for her birthdate being a year in advance of her sweetheart's . . . Shucks!

LOVES MUSICIAN

Dear Miss Brunot:

Maybe you can help me. I have made a mess out of my life. I met a guitar player nearly two years ago and I haven't seen him since. But we wrote to each other regularly every week until just recently. Last summer when he failed to come to see me, as promised I felt terribly lonesome.

I got acquainted with a fellow here. I'll call him Bashful. He seemed to fill my empty heart. I can't say I love him because I loved the other fellow. The guitar player is very handsome. Bashful is 21. I suddenly decided I'd have to tell the guitar player everything.

When he answered he said that although he had never told me, he loved me, and always would. He said he was very sorry, but he might have known all would not go smoothly.

He sent me a tiny picture of himself, and when I saw it I had such a sickening feeling.

The one from my home town wants me to marry him in a year's time. Shall I?

UNDECIDED.

Do not settle down yet. . . . Unless one is good and ready to do so, all the settling down in the world doesn't help. When one's mind is several thousand miles away. Locality doesn't make for happiness. . . . So far as your love is concerned, Undecided, I am not sure you are in love with either young man.

ENTHRALLED BY ROMANCE

I believe as yet it is romance that enthralls you. . . . Playing a guitar on a summer's evening is a very romantic gesture, you know, much more so than a bashful young man who merely means, someday, to be a good husband, ever can manage.

And yet maybe at the end of the year he has suggested enough so you may find in him all the romance you need . . . For by then you may be really in love with him . . . There are guitar players for most of us foolish women, somewhere in the past they are . . . And mostly we haven't married them . . . And when we have, often we have found disillusionment.

Not that I in any way do not approve of music and all it implies . . . Not that in any way I am disparaging musicians. They are as fine men as we find anywhere . . . Yet theirs is a sentimental atmosphere, one often around which girls may conjure up imaginative heart aches which are much better left in the offing.

And unless the affection felt for such men is GENUINE and can STAND the TEST of the practical side of life, it is much better to bog such affairs as memory instead of reality.

OF COURSE THEY DO

Dear Miss Brunot:

Because of the good advice you have given so many, I am writing to you. Is there any harm in a girl reading the sentimental stories printed in many of the current magazines we find on the newsstands. I think such things do happen, don't you, Miss Brunot?

JUNE.

Why, of course such things do happen, June . . . There are things in daily life that would set the hairs of fiction on ends were they unearthed . . . I could supply several such, myself . . . People in high places have SKELETONS in their CLOSETS . . . People in lowly places have qualities in them that might set them on thrones. But we hear not of these incidents.

And so we read what we can find, and must be satisfied . . . Read what you LIKE. But remember, not to burn midnight oil over trifles . . . Sleep is good for the young. Fresh air also is essential. Let neither of these suffer on account of the yellow backed literature . . .

LOST HIS LOVE

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am a much troubled girl. I am in love with a certain boy. I do not believe he cares for me. I am 17. He is 20. I went with him for three months and thought I didn't care. So we stopped. But now I know I love him.

I am considered nice looking and have a good reputation. Shall I forget him. I used to be very shy, but I have overcome this. But alas! I have lost his love. Please help me.

BROKEN HEARTED GIRL.

Why be broken hearted. Chances are the fellow was scared away by your shyness . . . See him somewhere, and ask him to call. No doubt he will accept your invitation eagerly, and then everything will be all right.

Miss Brunot will be glad to answer letters submitted to her by readers.

FAY KING IS SORRY FOR YOUNG "HAS BEEN" WHO GOES BROKE

By FAY KING

We often lament the fact that in some careers fame and fortune have come too late.

But it is even more regrettable that in some other careers fame and fortune have come too soon.

Fifteen years has been set by experts as a long life in the limelight. Few last so long.

So that, alas, in such fields as the stage, screen, prize fighting and baseball diamond, where youth is demanded, as well as ability, we have "old" favorites who are still young.

There is nothing sadder than a young "has been" who is "broke." Wide renown and wealth came too soon, and are now gone.

Do not envy those who attain too much too soon; theirs may be a sad lot later on.

The camper and the gardener whose hands get grimy will need something more than nail while to bleach the nail eaves. Let them buy a bottle of peroxide and a small quantity of powdered pumice stone.

By dipping the orange wood stick in the peroxide, then into the pumice a cleansing paste is formed. Force it under the nail ends, marking a straight clear line with the stick. Let remain on for five minutes. Scour away with soap, water and a nail brush.

A good companion for wear with pastel colored frocks is a thing of ostrich calf. It is a very long, narrow bag and has a roll flap for closing. Inside are compartments for change, powder, comb and cigarettes, as well as a key container on a thin chain.

Every other woman will be wearing a beret this autumn, judging from advance orders. A new model shows the four-corner, squared beret in satin with a border of belting ribbon. It has a white fancy curled feather.

Boy Tells Madge of 'Disappearance'

"No Junior," I said slowly, "I do not mean that I know why you went away this morning, without permission and without letting anyone know that you were going. I simply mean that I know why you have come here now. You have come to tell me all about it, and to 'take your medicine,' as I have heard you and Roderick say. Am I right?"

The two small boys looked at each other in the half ludicrous, half pathetic embarrassment of their kind, wetting their lips with their tongues and scuffing their feet along the rug. Then they shifted their position as with one accord and lifted suddenly resolute little faces to me.

"Suppose you begin at the beginning," I said, encouragingly, and either the planned kindness of my voice or his own conscience lifted the lid from my small son's pent-up emotions, and with a howl he rushed across the space between us and flung himself into my arms, sobbing vociferously. Roderick was only a few seconds behind him, and only a little less vehement in his remorseful grief, and for the next few minutes "the waters came down at Lodore."

CLEAR CONSCIENCES

I soothed them in the ways that mothers know, but let them sob their consciences clear, uttering disjointed sentences the while. "We never meant—to—it just came ove, us—we didn't think about your worrying—please give us a smacking—we ought to have one—" All the familiar phrases of a conscience-stricken child.

Finally, when I judged that the paroxysm was nearly over, I tightened an arm about each of them into a hearty little hug and spoke slowly, clearly.

"I know that you are sorry, darlings," I said, "and I forgive you both freely. Of course, you know you will have to have some punishment, for you caused a great deal of worry. And if Grannie had known you were gone without anyone knowing where you were, it might have made her very seriously ill.

"But we'll talk about the punishment later. It won't be a whipping, and it won't be very hard, because I know you are truly sorry. So now go and wash your faces and dry them, and then come back to me and tell me the whole story."

They obediently trotted to my stationary washstand in the corner, washed the traces of tears from their grubby faces, and returned to me.

"Get those hassocks," I directed, "and sit down, one on either side of me." It is a favorite position of theirs when I am telling them a story, and with the volatile spirits of childhood they commented upon it laughingly.

"You always tell us stories. Now we're going to turn around and tell you one," Junior said, and Roderick swaggered and added, "And how!" But they seemed to find difficulty in getting started, and finally, hopeless of their finding a starting point, I prodded them gently.

"When was it you first thought of going away?" I asked.

START STORY

They looked at each other again and this time Roderick was the spokesman.

"It was when we heard Hank and Bill talking, wasn't it Jun?" he asked.

"Yep, that was the first," Junior agreed, and then they stopped short again.

"Do you mean?" I asked a bit sternly, "that you were listening to something you were not meant to hear?"

"We didn't go far to hear it," Junior said defensively. "You see, when we came home from that ride to the beach, we couldn't get to sleep for the longest time, and finally—well, we thought we'd go down to the bungalow and sleep on the couch there. We knew Hank and Bill would come in to sleep there, when they finally got around to come to bed, and we figured when they came in, we'd come back up to our beds.

"But I guess we must have gone to sleep on that couch, and pulled the covers over us, so the boys didn't see us; for the first I knew Rod was punching me and holding his hand over my mouth at the same time, and there was a bright light shining, and Hank and Bill were talking a blue streak."

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Bridge and Mathematics

This is one of a series of articles in which Mrs. Culbertson explains principles of the new Culbertson System of Play. The examples and rules given by Mrs. Culbertson in these articles have never been published heretofore and are exclusive in Pittsburgh with the Sun-Telegraph.

On today's hand a mathematician would probably attempt the finesse offering mathematically a 50-50 chance of success, rather than the one offering a 25-75 chance — and that's one of the reasons that, as Bridge players, mathematicians, though they often get to second or third base, have difficulties in reaching home. They are too mathematically minded.

Mrs. Culbertson

Actually mathematics is only one phase of bridge, and often a good player can infer from the bidding and play that what is mathematically a one-to-four shot is actually the only chance.

North, Dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

	♠ 10 7 2 ♡ Q 9 7 ◇ A Q 8 ♣ A K 10 4
♠ Q 9 4 ♡ K 5 2 ◇ 10 3 6 ♣ Q J 9 3		♠ J 3 ♡ A 8 4 ◇ K J 9 5 3 ♣ 8 6 2
	♠ A K 8 6 5 ♡ J 10 6 3 ◇ 4 2 ♣ 7 5

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	1 ♢	1 ♠	Pass
1 N T	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

West opens the diamond ten in response to his partner's overcall. South must lose two heart tricks and cannot ruff a spade trick, his contract depends on the avoidance of a diamond loser. Now, East has bid the suit and West has properly opened his highest. There can hardly be the slightest hope that the Queen of diamonds will win the first trick. But there is another chance that West may hold both the Queen and Jack of clubs, in which case two finesses in the Ace-King-ten will trap them, even if West plays one of his honors on the first round. A spade is therefore led from Dummy and won by South's King, and a club led toward the Ace-King-ten. West properly refuses to split his equals, in order to give the impression that he does not fear that the ten will win. And South, having no other chance for his contract, plays the ten, nevertheless, and when it wins the trick the balance of the hand is easy. Another round of trumps is drawn and then the Ace and King of clubs are led, affording a discard for South's losing diamond. Tricks are conceded to the high hearts and the Queen of spades, and the contract is in.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Lung Infection, Ignored, Often Has Serious Results

Dr. Copeland

Any part of the body, including the lungs and other organs of the body, is susceptible to infection and the accumulation of pus. Pneumonia in the lung gives a condition in which pus accumulates within the lining of the chest cavity. As a rule, it can be traced to pneumonia, pleurisy, bronchitis or other infection within the body. Often it follows a neglected cold.

The germs of the infection cause pus to form and this accumulates in the lung cavity. The patient appears exceedingly ill and pale and has great difficulty in breathing. As a rule, there is a high fever, rising and falling during the day. This type of fever is often spoken as "septic temperature" and results from the absorption of poisons developing in the pus formed within the body.

Unfortunately the disease is often overlooked. In many instances it could be prevented if proper and immediate measures of relief were taken.

During the early stages of the ailment the victim has difficulty in breathing and complains of pain in the chest. The symptoms are so pronounced as to demand attention.

In children the pain may be so severe as to prevent sleep and causes extreme restlessness and discomfort. If the true nature of the trouble is overlooked, the disease progresses and soon there is an excessive accumulation of pus. This leads to increasing and ultimately marked pressure on the lungs.

If you are at all in doubt a physician should be consulted. At times an X-ray examination may be advisable to rule out some other affliction.

When the diagnosis is made the physician may resort to that method of treatment known as "tapping." Here a long needle is passed through the skin into the area of the chest where it is suspected the suppuration is located. If pus is present it can be withdrawn through the needle.

If this procedure is advised do not become alarmed. It is of great benefit and in the hands of a competent surgeon is really a simple matter. In addition to its value in confirming the nature of the trouble, it has positive curative value in that large amounts of pus can be withdrawn from the diseased area. This lowers the fever and hastens convalescence.

Of course, a simple tap is not always sufficient to effect cure. In more advanced cases it may be necessary to remove the patient to a hospital and operate more extensively. The operation consists of providing adequate drainage and removal of the accumulated pus.

Delay is harmful because prolonged persistence of suppuration may lead to serious complications. For example, the pus may extend to various parts of the lung. These new areas are hard to find and may become separated from the main infection. This leads to the formation of numerous abscesses. Surgery in these cases is more difficult and convalescence is often prolonged and stormy.

Answers to Health Queries

Sister Q.—What can be done to avoid bed sores and other minor disturbances when caring for a patient who is bedridden?

A.—Daily care and attention will do much to add to the comfort of the patient. For full particulars send a self-addressed envelope and repeat your question.

Mother Q.—My little girl of 3 seems active and well but lacks appetite. What shall I do to encourage her to eat?

A.—See that her diet is as varied as possible. Keep her system clear. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

H. M. Q.—What would cause a child to be very fretful during the night? She has poor appetite, is nervous and irritable and very thin.

A.—These symptoms may be due to intestinal worms, but it would be well to have the child examined to make sure there is nothing seriously wrong with her. For further particulars, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Daughter, Q.—I am taking care of my mother who is 80 years of age and bedridden. What can I do to increase her comfort and to avoid bed sores and other minor discomforts?

A.—Daily care and attention will do much toward increased comfort and relief in such cases. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Household Hints

Fish, such as sole or whiting, is best steamed with butter, covering it over and cooking it over a pan of boiling water for about half an hour. For invalids, especially, fish steamed with milk is especially appetizing. If baked with milk and butter in the oven it also makes a tempting meal for the sick room.

One tablespoon of white vinegar and two of milk will take the place of an egg in any cake.

Dark stains can be removed from aluminum ware by boiling in a weak solution of vinegar and water.

Remove coffee stains by rubbing gently with a little glycerine; then rinse in tepid water. Iron with moderate iron on the wrong side till dry.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Blue Velvet

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The groom at my wedding is going to wear a business suit. I want the wedding to be informal. It will be the first week in September. I had my mind all set on wearing blue velvet, but then thought that perhaps it would be too formal. I don't want to wear my going-away suit. Please advise me what to wear. D.

If your heart is set on wearing blue velvet at your wedding, I see no reason why you shouldn't do this. The style indications show that this coming year is to be a velvet year. You can get a lightweight velvet, and have your dress designed informally.

Hats Off

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please inform me if it is correct to raise your hat to a servant (female) upon being admitted, or when meeting her on the street, if the person is familiar with the household, or not? TOM.

The minute a servant opens the door to admit a man, the man takes off his hat. And when, on the street, a man meets a woman servant whom he recognizes, he politely raises his hat to her as he would to any other woman whom he is greeting on the street.

To paraphrase Bobby Burns, "A woman is a woman, for a' that."

PINCHOT WORKS AT MILFORD TO GET U. S. AID

HARRISBURG, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot changed his mind about returning to the capital today, summoning notes, several stenographers to his Milford home where he prepared for his trip to Washington to ask for further unemployment relief funds.

The Governor's staff said it was without information as to when the executive will return. Mrs. Pinchot also is at Milford.

The Governor said last week he would leave this week-end for Washington, where he will ask the Federal Relief Administration to continue relief grants to Pennsylvania until the regular session of the Legislature in January.

Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Relief Administrator, has informed the Governor Pennsylvania will receive no more money until it shows a "willingness to assume a "reasonable" share of the relief burden.

The Governor has let it be known that if his mission fails he will call a special session of the Legislature to provide the needed funds.

REED TO ACCEPT VARE'S POST

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—United States Senator David A. Reed is ready to fill the shoes of the late William S. Vare as Republican national committeeman from Pennsylvania.

His willingness to accept the job was conveyed to state party leaders yesterday by a representative who visited him in Michigan, where he is recuperating from an illness.

The senator has been the choice of the leaders for the place, but it was feared he would not accept due to his illness and the arduous campaign he faces this fall against Joseph F. Guffey, Democratic nominee for his Senate seat.

His decision to accept election by the Republican state committee next month was received with favor by M. Harvey Taylor, Republican state chairman, who received the news while in session with Attorney General William A. Schnader, nominee for Governor; State Senator Harry B. Scott, nominee for Lieutenant-Governor; Auditor General Frank E. Baldwin, State Treasurer Charles E. Waters and Edwin R. Cox, Philadelphia committee chairman.

LEAGUE URGES TAX SLASH

The Tax Justice League of Pennsylvania has asked Gov. Gifford Pinchot to include in his call for a special session, if one is held, the necessary provisions to permit legislation for relieving the heavy tax burden carried by real estate owners. Copies of the resolution adopted by the league in a meeting at Williamsport, Pa., last week, have been sent to the Governor.

The league also went on record as being in sympathy with the program of the Pennsylvania Taxpayers' Forum, which is to be submitted to the Legislature in the next general session.

Britain Lures Chevalier, But He'll Return

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Maurice Chevalier, who had just completed work in the leading male role of "The Merry Widow," plans to leave in about a week for England, where he will star in a British film.

His screen work here is not at the M-G-M studio that Chevalier would return to make at least two more pictures.

Shirley Temple, the new child star, is to appear next in "Meal Ticket," a story by Byron Morgan which is now being adapted to the screen.

Lyle Talbot is to star in an air mystery picture called "Murder in the Clouds."

Town Gets Light While Fighting Bill

SHENANDOAH, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—The borough of Shenandoah is assured of lighted streets for at least 10 more days.

Officials of the Pennsylvania Power and Light Company announced that, although the borough's contract for lighting has expired, the company granted a stay on contract for 10 days after a committee of Councilmen asked for time to "work out a system." The borough is disputing the company's bill for $107,000.

Nickel Beer, Liquor In N. J. Price War

ORANGE, N. J., Aug. 21.—(INS.)—This city today was the Mecca for thirsty mortals with a "shot" of liquor or a 10-ounce glass of beer for a lowly nickel, or as much as 20 ounces of the amber fluid for a dime.

The price war among certain of Orange's tavern owners has broken out again.

Seeks Charter for Automotive Group

R. F. Doetz, 324 South Highland avenue, and others, have filed an application in Common Pleas Court for a charter for the Automotive Industries, Inc., with headquarters in the Werner Building, South Highland avenue. It aims to promote the welfare of the members of the trade.

America's First Oil Well's Mouth

MISS EDITH WARNER — MISS EDITH VON TACKY

Miss Warner and Miss Von Tacky, Titusville (Pa.) girls selected as Princesses of the Court of Oil for the fourthcoming dedication of the Edwin L. Drake Memorial Park, in the park at the top of the casing up which came the first commercial U. S. oil, thus starting the great oil industry on August 27, 1859. The celebration starts Friday. U. S. May Pay One-Half Of Penna. Relief

The federal government, according to information out of Harrisburg, will not withhold all relief money from Pennsylvania in September, whether the Legislature meets in special session or not.

But the federal government will allot to this state only half the sum it has been accustomed to send. For July and August the allocation was approximately $10,000,000 a month, which, in view of the slender returns from state liquor stores, was practically all the relief money there was for the needy.

Mr. Shields

At the time of the last allotment, Harry Hopkins, head of the Federal Relief Administration, wrote to Gov. Pinchot that Washington would send no more money to Pennsylvania until the state had indicated an intention of making a matching contribution. The Governor and other Republican leaders, particularly those within the regular organization, immediately charged that the federal government was discriminating against Pennsylvania.

It was pointed out that while Pennsylvania was one of the heaviest taxpayers, it was far down the list in percentage returns from Washington as compared to the amount deposited in the Federal Treasury. Political leaders insisted that if a special session was forced, the onus for it would rest upon the national instead of the state government.

Hopkins Will Revise Ultimatum to State

Now, it is understood, a plan is under way by which Hopkins, acting with the direct approval of President Roosevelt, will revise his original ultimatum to Pennsylvania. He will offer the state something like $5,000,000 a month. He then will say that the federal government is unwilling to bar all relief, and it intends to make good on what it views as an obligation, whether Pennsylvania does or not.

That will leave up to state officials the decision as to whether they will reduce relief distribution by about half or call a special session of the Legislature to meet the emergency, either by a transfer of funds or some new form of taxation. Gov. Pinchot has said that even new taxes would not provide revenue with sufficient quickness. Offsetting this, it is reported the federal government may be willing to step up its contribution if given an assurance through legislative enactment that the state is seeking more money.

Whatever the outcome, there must be some turn within 10 days.

It may be that the federal government has behind the first Hopkins ultimatum something more than pressure upon Pennsylvania. Word direct from Washington is that federal relief funds will be exhausted by November 1 unless the President sets aside additional money for their replenishment. Cutting off of such funds would be a severe blow to some of the practically bankrupt states. It is assumed that the President will see that there is no actual suffering, but the situation may not develop to the advantage of Pennsylvania.

Five Republicans Ask That Steedle Retire

Five members of the Republican County Committee from districts embraced in the Twelfth Legislative District have begun the circulation of petitions demanding that Representative Joseph G. Steedle retire as a candidate for re-election. They are:

Merle Long, Bethel Township; A. L. Peters, Castle Shannon; Edward C. Nordsieck, Upper St. Clair; R. E. Scott, Baldwin; Norman P. Vitte, Mt. Lebanon.

The petitions, which are being sent to all districts, recite that there is no personal feeling against Steedle, who is appealing from a two-year sentence in Federal Court on vote charges, but that the movement is for the best interests of the Republican party. The signed petitions will be sent to Republican County Chairman William H. Coleman September 1.

Mr. Coleman already has been informed that one of the petitions was sent to A. W. McMillen, of Carnegie, recently named by Coleman as legislative chairman in the Twelfth, but that so far it has not been returned.

The five gentlemen listed above, according to their spokesman, Vitte, make no concealment of their intention to work against Steedle unless he retires from the ticket.

Such a situation would surely cause a disturbance in the Twelfth, as the friends of Steedle would retaliate by working against such Republican candidates as subscribed to the sentiments expressed in the petitions. So far only Kenneth Ketchum has attacked Steedle, but the other two candidates on the ticket soon or late will be forced to take a stand on the matter.

YOUTH'S DEATH IN CHURCH PROBED

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 21.—Mystifying the quiz in the death of Thomas Robinette, 21, who was found with his head fractured in the aisle of the Methodist Protestant Church here a week ago last Sunday morning, state police had reopened their investigation of the case today.

Young Robinette, son of Floyd Robinette, the church janitor, was at first believed to have toppled 40 feet from a ladder while repairing electric bulbs in the church ceiling. He was found unconscious in the aisle by his father when he went into the church to prepare for Sunday morning services.

Yesterday, state police quizzed the father for three hours. The elder Robinette told the officers he had sent the youth to the church to replace burned-out electric light bulbs the night before.

Marks on a church pew on the opposite side of the church from which the ladder fell, according to state police, caused them to believe something was wrong in the accident theory. Young Robinette suffered a fracture at the base of his skull. His body, according to state police, bore no marks of having fallen from a great height.

J. Philip Clifford, Harrison County prosecuting attorney, declared he was not convinced that the youth's death was accidental.

FACES NEW QUIZ IN GIRL'S DEATH

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 21.—(AP).—Absolved by state police and local authorities, the youthful fiance of Viola Dennis, 23, faces another investigation in connection with her death Saturday from a fractured skull and other injuries.

William Leatherman, 24, was quoted by the state police as saying the Donora school teacher and University of Pittsburgh graduate was injured in falling over an embankment between Donora and West Newton, after leaving his automobile. He was questioned, police said, because of scratches on his face.

Coroner William B. Baker, of Washington County, said last night he would turn the case over to Westmoreland County authorities for further investigation, in view of the girl having received her fatal injuries in the latter county.

Coroner H. A. McMurray, of Westmoreland County, announced previously he would conduct a separate investigation if the case reaches him.

Forest Fires Peril Nova Scotia Towns

HALIFAX, N. S., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Checked temporarily by a two-hour downpour, forest fires raging since Saturday in Pictou and Antigonish counties stubbornly continued today, while forest rangers made plans to lessen danger to communities which yesterday came near to being wiped out.

U. S. TO REFUND $13,640 TAX

The Department of Internal Revenue, by order of Federal Judge Robert M. Gibson, is to refund to the estate of the late Clementine G. Ricketson taxes totaling $13,640.83 plus interest from September, 1930.

Executors of the estate, Sarah G. and John H. Ricketson, paid $13,640.83 additional taxes to the government under protest after Internal Revenue Collector D. B. Heiner claimed Mrs. Ricketson had transferred property valued at $205,656 to her children in contemplation of death.

Mrs. Ricketson, prominent in Pittsburgh society, died in 1928.

FATHER COUGHLIN :-: 'H. M. S. Pinafore,' Story of Quebec :-: ON AIR TONIGHT

'For God and Country,' Radio Priest's Topic In Legion Drive

Drawing his topic from the opening words of the Constitution, "For God and Country," Father Charles E. Coughlin will make his NBC debut tonight as the principal Americanism Day speaker at the national American Legion convention, Chicago.

To be broadcast from the court of the Hall of States at a Century of Progress, where seating arrangements have been made for 20,000 persons, the address will be wafted over the red midwest network with WCAE transmitting for local dialers.

The radio priest's speech, it was explained by Edward L. McGinnis, commander of the Cook County (Chicago) Council of the American Legion, will inaugurate a coast-to-coast drive against un-Americanism. He said:

"Father Coughlin's speech will be the opening gun in the American Legion's nation-wide campaign to combat subversive movements and un-American propaganda.

"This speech is particularly important at this time in view of the fact that a recent item in the press said that Chicago is the capital of Communistic propagandists."

The broadcast time is 9:30 p. m. and the pickup has been allotted half an hour.

Another address of interest on the current schedule will be that of Postmaster General James A. Farley as he speaks before the National Rural Letter Carriers' convention at Denver.

A review of activities of the Postoffice Department will constitute his talk, it is announced, with the proceedings going on the air via NBC-KDKA and CBS-WJAS at midnight.

GLORIA A STAR

The never-fading charm of the oft-aired Gilbert and Sullivan bit of musical spoofing, "H. M. S. Pinafore," returns once more to the waves, the production this time being that of the capable "Beauty Box" players.

Singing her first featured role in the weekly WCAE feature, Gloria La Vey is cast in the feminine lead, supported by John Barclay and Edward Nell, Jr. The wafting is slated for 10 a. m.

All of the elements of every good story are rolled into one in "Captain Midnight," one of this week's daily Sun-Telegraph short short stories, dramatized over WCAE at 7:30. Love, hate, political intrigue and greed among the rogues of Old Quebec, with a helpless girl caught in the meshes of treachery—all are combined for the drama fans tonight in a single 15-minute playlet.

Portraying the principal characters are Helen Wayne, Carl Dozer, Robert Gill and Frank Hipps.

CYCLISTS VIE

Amateur bicycle racing takes the etherial spotlight on the early evening schedule when WJAS transmits a trackside CBS description of final laps in the 31½-kilometer team dash for the world's amateur championship.

Participating cycling aces will include Maurice Gilles and Charles Lehman, 1933 German champions. A feature of the broadcast, booked for 5:45, will be interviews with a number of old-time racers, including Barney Oldfield. The wafting will originate at the World's Fair.

Frank Black, back from his "vacation," just keeps right on working tonight. Black, who returns to work, officially, with the orchestral presentation billed on KDKA at 9:30, is one of those fellows who never say "die" . . . and so his "vacation" consisted mainly of nine hours a day spent in making arrangements and orchestrations which you'll hear presently.

With the NBC maestro tonight will be the new vocal sensation, Lillian Bucknam, the gal described as "the singer with two voices in one throat."

Herman Middleman moved into Freddie Carlone's night club spot last night . . . which brings to mind the non-appearance of Austin Wylie after much energetic ballyhooing, all of which is explained as a mixup of sorts. Sorry if we gave you a bum steer!

Junior Patrol Play On Air

"Little Cloud Face," dramatization by Edna Whiteman of an Indian myth, will be presented by the Junior Patrol Dramatic Club of Oakland as a feature of the weekly Patrol broadcast over WCAE at 4:45 tomorrow.

Comprising the cast are Celia Picchi, Minnie Greenberg, Grace Everhart and Gilbert Fleishman. As usual, Junior, Snuggins, Spike, Butch and Grandpa, and a number of member-artists, will aid and abet.

The complete program follows:

Junior, Snuggins, Spike, Butch and Grandpa

Baker Takes Time Off; 'Roxy' Speaks Mind On Radio Trends

By AIRCASTER

For the ostensible purpose of taking a vacation, Phil Baker with Beetle and Bottle, are leaving the air August 31, and the spot they have been occupying with phenomenal success will be turned over to Floyd Gibbons. Roy Shields band and Irvene Beasley are remaining as supporting features.

For soome weeks, say the Chicago observers, Baker has found the scripts a difficult task, in additions to other chores associated with his entertainment work, and it is the insiders reveal, his notion to freshen them during the six-week layoff, rather than enjoy a mere vacation.

ROXY SPEAKS

Mr. S. L. Rothafel, otherwise Roxy, is a persistent and observant showman, and preliminary to launching his new series at CBS September 13, he has been making quiet but thorough analyses of broadcasting with the purpose of setting a new and, believe it or not, a slower pace for the entertainment of the air.

It has struck Roxy that something has gone wrong with the producing departments, which have developed a tendency to go sketchy and set a pace all out of whack with the requirements of the mike. He says:

"I'm going to take a shot at establishing a new kind of gait, and hope thus to solve a problem that is crying out for solution in the production branch of radio. The problem is that of making a program easy to listen to.

"I feel that radio men in the past two or three seasons have become obsessed with a yearning for speed, more speed and still more speed—to the point almost where reaction of the second-hand on the clock is more important than the reaction of the audience.

Local Highlights On WJAS

Don Bigelow's band fills a new schedule spot on WJAS tonight, being billed from 11 to 11:30.

Other dance features—Baron Elliott's band at 8:30 and Eddie Peyton at 11:30.

Good bets—Latkowitch Brothers Ensemble at 6:15 and Gregorios Scalzo at 6:45.

AUGUST FURNITURE SALE - OPEN WEDNESDAY NIGHT - 7:30 TO 10

Sensational Factory Close-Out

68 All Frieze Covered 2-Piece Suites

$69.95

Regularly a Big Value at $100

As we have said before, we do not make a practice of selling living room suites below $100. We do not think a suite can be made to sell for less than that and still be well made. But these suites were constructed to sell for over $100. Only a factory closeout enables us to sell them at $69.95 . . . and we're willing to do so because we know we're selling quality furniture.

Full web construction, frieze covers (we guarantee them for long wear and service!) sewn on by hand, hardwood frames, sateen covered platforms, filling of finest 4X moss and cotton felt, cannon ball legs in mahogany finish. This is the lowest price in our history for a frieze suite . . . and, to our knowledge, the lowest price in Pittsburgh! Green or rust only. Only 68 suites—be here early!

WE WILL RESERVE 20 SUITES FOR THE EVENING

So popular have our Open Nights proven that we feel it only just to reserve a certain number of suites for those of our patrons who cannot shop by day. But warning!—we can hold back only 20! Be here when the doors open at 7:30.

SPANISH VETS 'DESPONDENT' AT PENSION LOSS

NEW YORK Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—New York has become completely hokum-mind, theatrically. Almost any opus with an on-hand-on-villain motif, produced in a deserted warehouse or water-front shamble, brings an 18-karat Fifth audience on the run. Even front-line critics attend.

Old-time melders that inspired another generation with tenseness are, of course, merely ribticklers for moderns. There is a cross-rude informality about them that aloof sophisticates find exquisite. It believes their superiority and, of course, provides outlet for much smart persiflage.

The producers of revived nineteen-thirty have had the wisdom to stick to the original lines and demand players portray them with unflinching seriousness. Breaking the theater's latter day reticence by hissing the villian and cheering the hero out loud is good fun, too.

The renaissance is also a boon to old-time actors long in the discard. Many on a charity dole are drawing $40 a week. The line that has pleased me most was the clarion cry to a dirty villian: "No man who lays hands on a woman, save in caress, deserves the name of American gentleman!"

A study of personages in relation to their ages is of interest to everybody in middle years. I think the most conspicuous examples of men bordering on the late 50's who do not look their age are George M. Cohan, Jimmie Walker, John Barrymore, H. L. Mencken, Roscoe Peacock, Jules Glaenzer, George Jean Nathan and Douglas Fairbanks. The New Yorker who has approached even riper years with the most insouciance is Whitney Warren, the architect. E. Berry Wall in Paris is a runner-up.

Young John Jacob Astor is a long convert to the hatless brigade. He has not worn one for years, even going barehead with evening clothes. However there has been an abatement in the increasing torment to hat manufacturers. The decrease of hatless this summer was, according to statistics, 20 per cent. Yet the problem is still serious. I am told there is a cached fund of $250,000 ready for any bright publicity boy who can offer a convincing idea calculated to put hats back on heads.

They are honoring Art Hickman sentimentally these days in orchestra broadcasts. He came out of San Francisco to captivate the town with dance music—remember his "Whispering?"—at the Midnight Frolic. His reign was brief, timid, self-effacing but left an indelible imprint on his time no other orchestra leader attained. He sat at the drums when he conducted.

The Midnight Frolic Roof is now an occasional theater for broadcasting. Its location atop the ace show house of its era, the New Amsterdam, was regarded as the absolute center of the aristocratic midnight boil. Today the block it helped glorify is as cheaply brash and carnival as a back yonder street fair. The Frolic was an entertainment almost every cabaret has tried to imitate but without success. It had an air. Also Will Rogers and Bert Williams. Great names in finance, the theater and the arts were nightly at the ringside. I remember in a single evening seeing among the patrons Bernard Baruch, Otto Kahn, Achmed Abdullah, Nicolas Longworth and Alice, Fannie Hurst and Ben Ali Haggin. Somehow the tiny room offered intimacy without contempt. Drinking without drunkenness. Aristocracy without snobbishness. There has been no place quite like it.

For the showier night life of the Frolic period, stay outs meandered northward to the black and white postage stamp sized room of Bustanoby's, a short space from Columbus Circle. Vernon Castle might drop in to crouch at the trap-drummer's perch. Beautiful Dolores, the gorgeous show girl, often strutted her peacock walk. Diamond Jim Brady dazzled with his locomotive set of diamond studs and links while fox trotting with either Dolly sister. It was flashy, exciting and revealing a Broadway now definitely dead. Some other street, some other time in less difficult days, will bloom as Broadway bloomed. Many think it will be Lexington avenue north of Fifti-th.

K. OF C. MEETS IN DETROIT

DETROIT, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Delegates and visitors from every state in the union were registered here today for the fifty-second annual convention of the Knights of Columbus.

Supreme Knight Martin H. Carmody, of Grand Rapids, indicated that among the problems to be discussed would be that of the campaign against indecent motion pictures, but said it was unlikely the convention would adopt any resolutions pertaining to national problems which might be considered of a political nature.

Silver Threads Among the Gold Thing of Past

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

How about sixteen-to-one silver? They laughed when William Jennings Bryan sat down at the piano to play that.

It was long ago, but Bill was quite a prophet. He predicted women's suffrage and prohibition.

Prohibition came and went. The women vote but nobody counts them.

Free silver was the most important gadget in Bill's bag of illusions. If the sixteen-to-one ratio is slapped on the line this November laughter will turn to amazement.

But we cannot sing the old song about silver threads among the gold. There ain't no gold. We've been practically scalped.

MRS. REA

Being head of three generations of women in active service with the Auxiliary, United Spanish-American War Veterans, is the proud distinction of Grandma Martina J. Rea, past department president of the auxiliary in Pennsylvania.

And Mrs. Rea is a Pittsburgher.

Her daughter, Mrs. Beatrice Remensnyder, a nurse, resides at 512 North avenue. The daughter is a past department secretary.

Mrs. Rea's granddaughter, Martina Remensnyder, is a past department conductress, and the youngest granddaughter in the auxiliary.

Mrs. Remensnyder, proud of the family's service, has been active in auxiliary affairs for 25 years. Grandmother, mother and daughter belong to the Sarah White Auxiliary here.

Discovery of Rum Brings Raid on Club

Charged with violating the liquor law, Joseph Flanagan, 38, of 231 Joyce terrace, was arrested in a raid on the St. Cecelia Maennerchor Club at 645 Smithfield street last night. The club is located on the second floor.

Police reported finding a pint bottle partly filled with whisky. There was no charter for the club on the premises, they said.

Store Employes' River Trip Tonight

More than 1,000 members of the Joseph Horne Company Employes' Outing Asociation and of the Men's Club will board the Steamer Washington for a moonlight excursion down the Ohio River tonight.

Officers in charge include Carl G. Anderson, president; H. E. Phifer, secretary, and Robert W. Wallace entertainment committee chairman for the Men's Club, and Theodore Kohl, chairman of the outing association entertainment committee.

ECONOMY ACT HIT BY VETS

procession place the groups in alphabetical order, the parade to move along Catfish Run boulevard to the fair grounds and past in review inside the race track oval.

City and county police, a mounted troop of state police and a unit of the Eagle Scouts as well as an armed escort of the Pennsylvania National Guard will be in the line of march.

SIGHT SEEING TRIPS

The entire day today was turned over to entertainment of the veterans, their families and friends. Two sight-seeing trips—one to the plant of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company and the other to that of the H. J. Heinz Company were planned. The Heinz visit was planned especially for members of the auxiliary and a luncheon was to be served at the plant.

The only meeting scheduled for today was a session of the Naval and Military Order of the Spanish-American War. A dinner was to be held at 7 p. m., the annual meeting of the order to be held immediately following.

The main business session of the five-day meeting will be held tomorrow, at which time Past Commander-in-chief Rice W. Means, chairman of the national legislative committee, will make his report.

OVERFLOW CROWDS

Elaborate arrangements for an overflow crowd at the Nixon Theater convention headquarters were being made today. Loud speakers were being set up on the seventeenth floor of the William Penn Hotel so that those unable to get into the convention hall may hear the speakers.

Four other speakers are scheduled to follow Past Commander Means in a discussion of veteran legislation. These include Ohio Supreme Court Justice Edward S. Matthias, Nevada's Senator Pat McCarron, Indiana's Senator Arthur Robinson and Minnesota's Congressman Ernest Lundeen.

Veteran Brings Triplets And Mother From Idaho

GEORGE SEELOS ETHEL EDNA ELSIE MRS. SEELOS

From way out west in Idaho, where they raise fancy potatoes, comes the proud family of George Seelos to the Spanish-American War Veterans' reunion here this week.

And the reason (we should say reasons) for Comrade Seelos' pride is his triplet girls—Ethel, Edna and Elsie, aged 12.

Mrs. Seelos and the girls found many admiring eyes turned their way when they visited reunion headquarters in the William Penn Hostel today, and their father had lots to talk about besides the Spanish War.

Mamma Seelos is proud of her family—sorry she couldn't bring they all with her to the reunion, she said.

"Oh, yes—I've five more at home, but these are the babies."

Mother Saves Four From Burning Home

Finding her one-story frame house on fire late yesterday, Mrs. Joseph Kifer, of Oak avenue, Turtle Creek, rushed into the house and rescued her four children—the eldest 5 years old.

The home was destroyed.

OHIO VETERANS DEMAND BONUS

International News Service.

SANDUSKY, O., Aug. 21.—The Ohio Department of the American Legion yesterday demanded immediate cash payment of the bonus to start what may become a nation-wide movement by the war veterans for payment of the adjusted compensation certificates.

In adopting a minority report of the bonus committee urging the action at a tumultuous meeting marked by boos and hisses, the 7,000 delegates to the state convention here became the first state group in the country to renew such demands.

Doughboys' Bodies Brought from Russia

PARIS, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—The bodies of 12 American doughboys who were killed in Archangel were on the way today from Leningrad to Detroit for burial. Seven other bodies are being brought to France to be interred.

The Detroit soldiers will be buried there by their comrades of the "Polar Bear Association." The others will be taken to the American cemetery at Romagne-Bois-Montfaucon.

NATIONAL CHIEF URGES MEN TO FIGHT

Many, Losing Income, Unable to Pay Dues In Organization

Veterans of the Spanish-American War deprived of their pensions by the National Economy Act are losing hope in the future and allowing their camp dues to lapse, it was revealed today in the annual encampment report of Commander-in-Chief William H. Armstrong.

They were urged, instead of becoming despondent, to "fight to the end" by Commander Armstrong, who declared:

"Thousands of our comrades, being deprived of their pensions, which was the only income they possessed, were unable to pay their camp dues, and I believe many of them were so despondent over their economic situation that they had lost hope for any change to the better in the future, and permitted their membership to lapse. Little did they realize, probably, that it pays to fight to the end."

The report of the quartermaster general, Commander Armstrong declared, will show a loss in membership during the first six months of this year. This, he said, under present economic conditions, was to be expected.

CONFIDENT FOR FUTURE

Expressing confidence in the future, Commander Armstrong predicted a renewal of interest among the veterans and declared:

"I feel confident that increased membership will come to us in the future as a result of our partial success in pension legislation coupled with the knowledge that increased man power means increased fighting strength."

As to the cause of the falling off of membership, the commander, in his report, declared the economy act to be "one of the blackest pages in the national legislative history of our country." He declared:

"Men who had loyally served their government in time of war, had accepted all the deprivations and hell of war, with a desire to assist their country maintain its standing and preserve its institutions for posterity, were brutally told that the service they had rendered and the sacrifices they had made were now to be considered as valueless, and the age-old pension policy of our government was thrown on the scrap heap."

"Under threats that it was necessary 'to maintain the credit of the United States Government' and 'to balance the budget,' the passage of the National Economy Act was forced through the Congress.

"Time has fully demonstrated the falsity of the arguments used at that time and the emptiness of the pledges made to decently care for the veterans.

"With a full view of the financial crisis in the lives of tens of thousands of aging Spanish War veterans—all men who were nearing the end of life's pathway—the delegates at the Los Angeles Encampment unanimously passed a resolution declaring it to be our purpose to present and to urge upon the Congress of the United States, the re-enactment of the laws granting benefits to Spanish-American War Veterans, their widows and dependents which had been repealed."

Vet on Way Here Dies Aboard Train

ALLIANCE, O., Aug. 21.—Believed a victim of heart disease, John S. Burton, 65, of Hollywood, Fla., was taken from a Pennsylvania Railroad train and pronounced dead at the City Hospital today. A retired railroader, Burton had boarded the train at Canton for Pittsburgh to attend the United Spanish War Veterans convention.

Boundary Plotted in 1788 Fixes Borough Limits

Commissioners named by Quarter Sessions Court to fix the boundary line between North Versailles Township and the borough of North Braddock have reported to the court that the lines originally plotted in 1788 should stand.

The two municipalities have been quarreling many months over the matter. As a result of the commissioners' decision, if sustained by the court, North Versailles Township will collect more taxes from the Edgar Thomson plant of the Carnegie Steel Company because the decision puts a strip of land from 13 to 20 feet wide in the township. An open hearth furnace is built on the disputed grounds.

The Commissioners, John G. Koedel, B. A. Kerr and A. W. Montgomery, took testimony and heard old residents in rendering an opinion. The original plan was burned when the Court House was destroyed in the 80's.

Many improvements made in recent years blotted out original lines supposed to follow Turtle Creek. It was claimed that abutments on what was supposed to be the old Hansburg Bridge, definitely located the boundary, but the Commissioners found the abutments were a culvert and not the piers of the bridge.

The disputed territory extends from the river to the intersection of the East Pittsburgh, North Braddock Borough and North Versailles Township lines. The Hansburg Bridge was from 50 to 70 feet from what is now Braddock avenue, formerly old Braddock road and was the route which travelers followed to reach Port Perry.

MISS BETTY CAPPEAU

And now for news of who's who and what they are doing at the various Pittsburgh colonies at the smart resorts. The John W. Cappeaus, of Sewickley, and their attractive young daughters, Betty and Nancy, are guests of the Joseph P. Cappeaus at "Hillcrest," their estate at Water Mill.

The William R. Farmers and Miss Julia Morgan Harding are houseguests at Sunset Hill, Watch Hill, R. I., the summer home of Mrs. William Reed Thompson, of Pittsburgh. The Edward Bliss Reeds, who have been visiting Mrs. Thompson, who is Mrs. Reed's mother, are expected to return from a visit to Maine and with their daughters, Mary Bliss Reed and Ann Reed, will spend the remainder of the summer at Sunset Hill.

House Party Is Given By Evelyn Freeman

One of our debs of the past season, Evelyn Freeman, who is with her mother, Mrs. John Miller Freeman, at their cottage at Marblehead Neck, Mass., gave a large house party during the past week. Among her guests were members of this year's graduating class at West Point. Mrs. Freeman is spending some time at the Forest Hills Hotel, Franconia, N. H.

At the Berkshire Inn in the Berkshires are the Robert D. Dalzells, of Pittsburgh.

From Southampton, L. I., comes news that the William Thaws III entertained with a luncheon last week at the Beach Club in honor of the Edward F. Huttons, who arrived on their yacht, Hussar, anchored off the boat landing of the National Golf Links of America. Among the guests were the Julian M. Gerards, who are house guests of the Thaws, and Richard M. Boardman and Hunt T. Wagstaff. And after the luncheon the Huttons gave a reception aboard their yacht.

The William Booths, of Sewickley, have closed their summer house in Georgian Bay, Canada, and are at home again. Mrs. Booth and the children spent several days at Mountain Lake Park, Md., before coming to Pittsburgh.

Early in the summer they entertained a house party at their summer place and among the guests were Theodore Nevin Booth, Murray Grimes and James Sincel, all from here, and Emily Welch, of New Haven, Conn., who has visited Mrs. Grimes in Sewickley.

Ann Howard Brown Plans To Return Home This Week

Ann Howard Brown, daughter of the Neill S. Browns, of Edgeworth, who has been summering at Cape May, is planning to return to her home the latter part of this week.

With Ann at Cape May have been her uncle and aunt, the Charles Mason Whites, of Akron, and her cousin, Suzanne. The Whites have many friends in Pittsburgh and Sewickley, having visited here many times. Suzanne spent her Christmas vacation here last winter. She attends Vassar. At that time she served as an aide at Ann's debut on Christmas Day in the Edgeworth Club, and she was a guest at many Christmas parties and dances. There is a possibility she may stop for a few days' visit on her way home this week.

Mrs. L. Haviland Nelson, of San Francisco, who has been spending the summer in the East after attending her daughter Haviland Nelson's graduation from Bryn Mawr, visited with her mother, Mrs. Arthur Wagner, of Shields, last week. Mrs. Neill Brown, a sister of Mrs. Nelson, entertained at a bridge luncheon in her honor Friday before her departure for her home in the West.

Martha Mitchell Yost accompanied Althea Robinson and her parents, the William Christopher Robinsons, of Sewickley Heights, Sunday, on a short jaunt. They will board the Robinson yacht at New London, Conn., for a cruise.

Miss Kann Bride of Ohioan

At an elaborate ceremony last night in the Concordia Club at 7 o'clock, Miss Dorothy Kann and Harry Lee Mellman were married by Rabbi Solomon B. Freehof, of the Rodef Shalom Temple. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Kann, of Beacon street, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Mellman, of Columbus, O.

The bride wore an Elizabethan gown of ivory satin having a braided satin calla lily collar and flaring cuffs and a court train, and she carried a prayer book with a marker of orchids and lilies of the valley.

Miss Madeline Kann, as her sister's maid of honor, wore a gown of blue taffeta having an Elizabethan collar, short puffed sleeves, and she carried a Dresden bouquet. The bridesmaids all wore gowns made like that of the maid of honor, of chartreuse taffeta with blue sashes. They were Miss Lucille Jacobs, Miss Louise Fink, Miss Jeanne Half, Miss Martha Zeigler, Miss Isabelle Wechsler, and a sister of the bridegroom, Miss Katherine Mellman. They all carried Dresden bouquets. The flower girl was Elaine Lewin, who wore a Kate Greenaway frock of blue taffeta, and the ring bearer, Edgar Robert Lewin, Jr., wore a chartreuse satin Eton suit.

Serving as best man was Ben Yenkin, of Columbus, O., cousin of the bridegroom, and ushers were Robert Baer, Robert Lewin Kann, Jacques Levine, Walter Diamondstone, of Boston; Saul Rosenberg and Harry Maggied, of Gallipolis, O. The bride's mother chose light blue for her costume, and the bridegroom's mother wore black. Both wore corsages of orchids.

There was a reception and later a dinner at the club.

Criterion Club Committees Named

The new year book for the Criterion Club has been compiled by John E. Nelson, Mrs. R. S. Dougall, the Rev. Dr. Ralph B. Urmy, Mrs. Elmer L. Kidney and the Rev. Dr. John W. Springer. This year's membership committee consists of Elmer L. Kidney, William Gates, Mrs. Dougall, Mrs. Bert W. Lewis and Mrs. Virginia Yeamans.

With Mrs. Edward Rynearson as chairman, Mrs. Kidney, Mrs. Thomas R. Thoburn, Mrs. George Field MacDonald and Mrs. William Gates make up the social committee and on the program committee are Mrs. Frank N. Speller, Mr. Dougall, William P. Knox, Mrs. Adna W. Leonard and the Rev. Dr. M. B. Fuller.

Violet Farkas Married to J. J. Joel

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Farkas, of McKee place, announce the marriage on Sunday of their daughter, Miss Violet Farkas, to John J. Joel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Israel Joel, of Kennett square.

The ceremony took place in the Tree of Life Synagogue, with Rabbi Herman Hailperin officiating.

After the wedding dinner Mr. and Mrs. Joel left for a tour of the Middle West. Upon their return they will make their home in Forbes street, where they will be at home to their friends after September 15.

Liner Sails on Tour To Arctic Ice Pack

NOME, Alaska, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—On an unprecedented voyage for passenger vessels, the tourist-laden liner Victoria sailed from Nome at midnight on a pleasure cruise to the Arctic ice pack and Siberian points. About 500 passengers were aboard.

Her immediate destination was St. Michael on Norton Sound.

Two Papers At Events Session

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

The Edgewood Current Events Club, which meets the year around, is having another session tomorrow afternoon this time with Mrs. A. L. Creelman, West Penn avenue, as hostess. And for program there will be two papers, one on the political situation in Europe and the other on Hindenburg's life. The first has been assigned to Mrs. Randall Lightner and the other to Mrs. Ronald Davidson.

The semi-monthly programs are arranged by Miss Francesinne Koenig and her committee members, Mrs. R. T. Duffendeffer and Miss Sarah Hamilton, and are given on the second and fourth Wednesdays in the homes of the members. Only a picnic once a year varies this course of study for the club which was founded just two years ago. At Christmas time the 30 members plan to add philanthropy to their activities and to follow the custom established last year when they packed baskets for needy families.

Scout Parents Get Bids to See Play

Parents of girls attending the Girl Scout day camp at Trafford City have been invited to witness a play called "The Firefly Night" at 7 o'clock Wednesday night, August 29. The affair, which will be the closing event of the camp for this season, is based on an international theme, such as the Scouts have followed during the six weeks of their day camping.

An average of 100 has been in attendance and has taken part in the different classes and hikes. Mrs. Martha Van Andel is camp director; Mrs. Lillian Johnston, assistant, and Miss Dorothy Reed, the instructor. Each counsellor has been given a name representative of foreign lands, Joan of Arc, Confucius, Sara Bernhardt, Florence Nightingale, Eidelweiss, Heather and Dona. Scouts from East Pittsburgh, Turtle Creek, Pitcairn, Wall, Wilmerding and East McKeesport, as well as Trafford City, have attended.

Miss Goldman Is Bride of Max Perl

Honeymooning in Bermuda are Mr. and Mrs. Max Perl, who will reside in Wightman street, Squirrel Hill, when they return. Their marriage took place Sunday in the chapel of the B'Nai Israel Synagogue. The bride is the former Miss Fannie Goldman, daughter of Mrs. Harry Goldman, of Heberton street, East End.

Rabbi Benjamin A. Lichter was the officiant. The bride wore a traveling ensemble with a corsage of gardenias, and her sister, Miss Rose Goldman, was her maid of honor. Nathan Lupovitch was best man. There was a luncheon in the Goldman home for the members of the families.

Eleanore Jeffrey Weds Walter J. McCulloch

Seal brown net with gold accessories was the costume of one of Saturday's brides, Miss Eleanore M. Jeffrey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Jeffrey, of the North Side, when she married Walter J. McCulloch, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. McCulloch, of Lyndhurst, N. J.

The ceremony took place at 2:30 o'clock in the Eighth United Presbyterian Church, with the Rev. Dr. R. F. Galbreath, president of Westminster College, officiating.

With her brown and gold ensemble the bride carried talisman roses. Her sister, Mrs. H. L. Murphey, Jr., was matron of honor, and wore green crepe with brown accessories and carried asters.

George Asche was the best man.

After a reception and dinner at The Pines Mr. and Mrs. McCulloch left on a motor trip to Chicago.

Miss Lobach To Wed Next Month

A late September wedding date has been chosen by a Coraopolis girl whose engagement was made known in May. She is Miss Geneva Lobach, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Lobach, of Coraopolis.

At a bridge tea given by Mrs. E. Maxwell Bachtell, of Vance avenue, Coraopolis, in her home Saturday afternoon for Miss Lobach, the guest of honor announced September 29 as the date for her marriage to Kenneth McCracken, of Sewickley, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. McCracken, of St. Joseph, Mich.

The ceremony will take place at 6:30 o'clock in St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in Sewickley. The bridal party is not yet completed. Miss Lobach is a University of Delaware graduate and her fiance was graduated from the University of Michigan.

Flower Show To Be Held in Oakmont

Thursday, September 13, has been chosen as the date for the flower show to be held by the garden department of the Oakmont Woman's Club. It will take place in the Presbyterian Church rooms with Mrs. O. E. Watkins as chairman.

Mrs. J. A. Mahla, the new president, will be honored by the club on Tuesday, September 25, at the same place, the reception in her honor opening the season. Mrs. Mahla's cabinet includes Mrs. H. M. Elsey and Mrs. E. R. Loomis, first and second vice presidents; Mrs. Harry Paul, Jr., recording secretary; Mrs. Norman Stotz, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. C. A. Johnston, treasurer.

Mrs. H. C. Breidert Ends Trip

Mrs. H. C. Breidert, retiring president of the Woman's Club of Crafton, has returned from a two-week trip to Asbury Park and Ocean Grove. Mrs. Breidert's successor, Mrs. John M. Reed, and her husband are away at present on a motor trip.

Camp Redwing Draws Many Scouts

Camp Redwing, Allegheny County Girl Scout summer camp, has opened its fourth and last camp period with a capacity attendance of 177.

Camp activities in which all Scouts take part are hiking, outdoor cooking, folk dancing, dramatics, story-telling, swimming, boating, campcraft and pioneering, whittling, woodcraft, nature and star study, archery and handcrafts.

Highlights in the events of each encampment are recorded in the "Conk-err-ee," the camp newspaper, so called because that is the call of the red-winged blackbird.

The entire camp observed Pennsylvania Night last Thursday. Activities included sewing contests and horseshoe pitching. The corral, the dining hall and the cabin were decorated to represent early Pennsylvania inns. At Florence Lodge the Round Table unit entertained after the manner of a church festival. An old-fashioned spelling bee was held, games were played and ice cream and cake were served. Shining Waters unit then portrayed a series of historical incidents of Pennsylvania, and a square dance concluded the entertainment.

Through the Spyglass

VIEWING THE NEW

You little shoppers who want to learn the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column day by day . . . call GRANT 6500 . . . and ASK FOR THE SPY GLASS. Or send in a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply. THE SPY GLASS is always on the alert, peering out new "finds" . . . and you will be answered promptly!

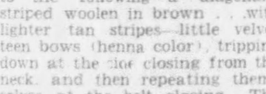
New frocks have put their heads around the corner for Fall! Frocks that any woman will love to have hanging in her cupboard . . . or from her shoulders, for that matter! For these are . . .

Swank woolens that wear all the notable little gimcracks that have been predicted as "g od" for Fall. And we particularly lost our heart to the following—a diagonally striped woolen in brown . . . with lighter tan stripes—little velveteen bows (henna color), tripping down at the cloe closing from the neck, and then repeating themselves at the belt closing. The sort of frock that can be worn for almost any occasion short of a "dressy" one. Prices $5.95.



Or you might like the same woolen that uses a different style for its claim to fashion fame! Three wooden buckles fasten three slashes at your chesty line, little dears . . . and the rest of it fits you like the well known "glove!" Also $5.95.

As for velveteen—that new arrival for seasonable smartness—there is one to be had at $8.95 that should take all honors in velveteen circles! Green . . . that swellish green . . . with wooden buttons marching straight up the front to where a piece of brown taffeta fills in the neck closing with a muffled effect. Patch pockets . . . nice and shirtwaist-y in its lines.

And if these haven't tickled your fancy for frocks . . . nothing will. Sizes for women and misses in the group.

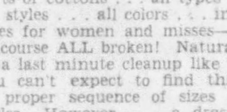
In the same breath . . . a reduction of dresses that sold for $2.98 and $3.98—now $1.00. All sorts of cottons . . . all types . . . all styles . . . all colors . . . in all sizes for women and misses—but of course ALL broken! Naturally, in a last minute cleanup like this you can't expect to find things in proper sequence of sizes and styles. However . . . a dress is a dress, and a dollar is a dollar!

* * *



Item: Six grand fluffy washcloths tied up with ribbon and presented to the merry tune o' 49c! A peach, blue, orchid, yellow and two greens! With sturdy whip-stitched edges. And they won't stretch!

Item: A new arrival that does away with unwanted hair! A "mitten" that needs only your own hand in it to touch it to your leg (or wherever) to take off the superfluous hair. No acids, no odors, no after-effects, nothing unpleasant or uncomfortable! A grand idea . . . at 35c.

Excitement! New from the Orient! The enamel that is made from the "tung" bean oil . . . the same oil that the "Fu Man Chu-s" of generations have used on their temples to preserve the wood (and you know how these ancient pieces have stood up against the wear and tear of the years). Right here in town now . . . the enamel that is made from this oil! Important because it . . .

Dries in five hours . . . lasts three to five years . . . is applicable to metals, tile, marble, wood . . . shows no brush strokes no matter how applied . . . is heat resisting . . . is not susceptible to acids . . . and whathaveyou! In fact, we could go on for hours regarding it! In all shades . . . at 55c for 4 ounces (that do two chairs) or 95c the half-pint (will do a table and four chairs)!

Napkins for your little lap! Beautiful pure linen ones with handmade filet lace edges and hand-done Roman outwork with a Venise medallion in the center. Size 12 inches square . . . and beauties, every one of them! At 4 for $1—about what you'd be paying for very ordinary handkerchiefs . . . and just what do you think of that?

JANE EADS

PARIS, Aug. 20.—Kingdoms of the bankers and roulette realms along the Riviera are looking for new stuffs to create out the tune of "Happy Days Are Here Again" which is being sung by Americans whose "chips" have come in.

Impressing it at Cannes was Lady Baillie, granddaughter of the late W. C. Whitney of New York, former Secretary of the Navy.

Wearing an unconventional costume of sapphire blue silk shorts and blouse and a wrap-around skirt, she bamaraked herself a tidy fortune of $20,000 after engineering with a pile of chips worth $6,000.

Harry F. Sinclair, the oil magnate, had to have his friend, George MacDonald, help him carry off $10,000 worth of francs from the same table.

And there really must be something about these big oil men, for over at the Deauville Casino Sheldon Clark, of Chicago, cashed in to the tune of $40,000 and spent the next night trying out his bass tenor at Harry's New York Bar in Paris, where he stunned Roy, the pianist, and Bob, the barman, with 3,000-franc tips apiece.

So after all, you cannot blame Mrs. Hugh Wilson, New York Mayflowerite and wife of the American diplomat, for dogding her favorite sport—bridge—as long as there is a roulette wheel spinning along the Riviera.

Gould, in a tailored, yellow, crinkly, crepe, eighteenth century model, with a tight skirt, tiny bustle, and long-sleeved jacket of brown and gold embroidery . . . At Biarritz, Mrs. Wally Simpson, of New York and Baltimore, wearing a black, tight-fitting gown with a gold-trimmed jacket as she danced all night with the Prince of Wales at the Casino . . . Mrs. Tom Emery, of New York, in a black and white organdy frock with a pink velvet sash and jacket.

Also, Mrs. Bertram Winthrop, of New York and Baltimore, in black, with white-dotted black gloves, which attracted considerable attention . . . Miss Diana Guest, of New York, in black and white spotted crepe with a velvet cape . . . Mrs. John Moffet, of New York, in black satin and wearing diamonds.

BEAUTY WINNER NOW LAWYER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—A Congressman and a beauty prize winner were admitted today to the District of Columbia bar.

The Congressman is William P. Connery, Jr., of Lynn, Mass. The beauty prize winner is Mrs. Mary Rose Deering, of this city, who was selected as "Miss Baltimore" in 1924. Mrs. Deering is employed at the Public Works Administration. Her husband is a lawyer.

Civic Opera Site Selected in Park

The Pittsburgh Civic Light Opera Association has selected a site in Highland Park near the bandstand for the construction of a prospective civic opera house, is was announced today. Harmar D. Denny, Jr., head of the opera group, said arrangements had been made with the City Planning Commission.

The opera association was to meet in the Chamber of Commerce later today to lay further plans.

LAYING THE FIRM FOUNDATION

By PRUNCELLA WOOD

ADVANCE WHISPERS say winter styles indicate a pencil silhouette for the ladies right away—and a lot of them will need lots of help to achieve it. The fancy does not necessarily mean banting pounds away, determining what pounds you already carry about is more the orders of progress.

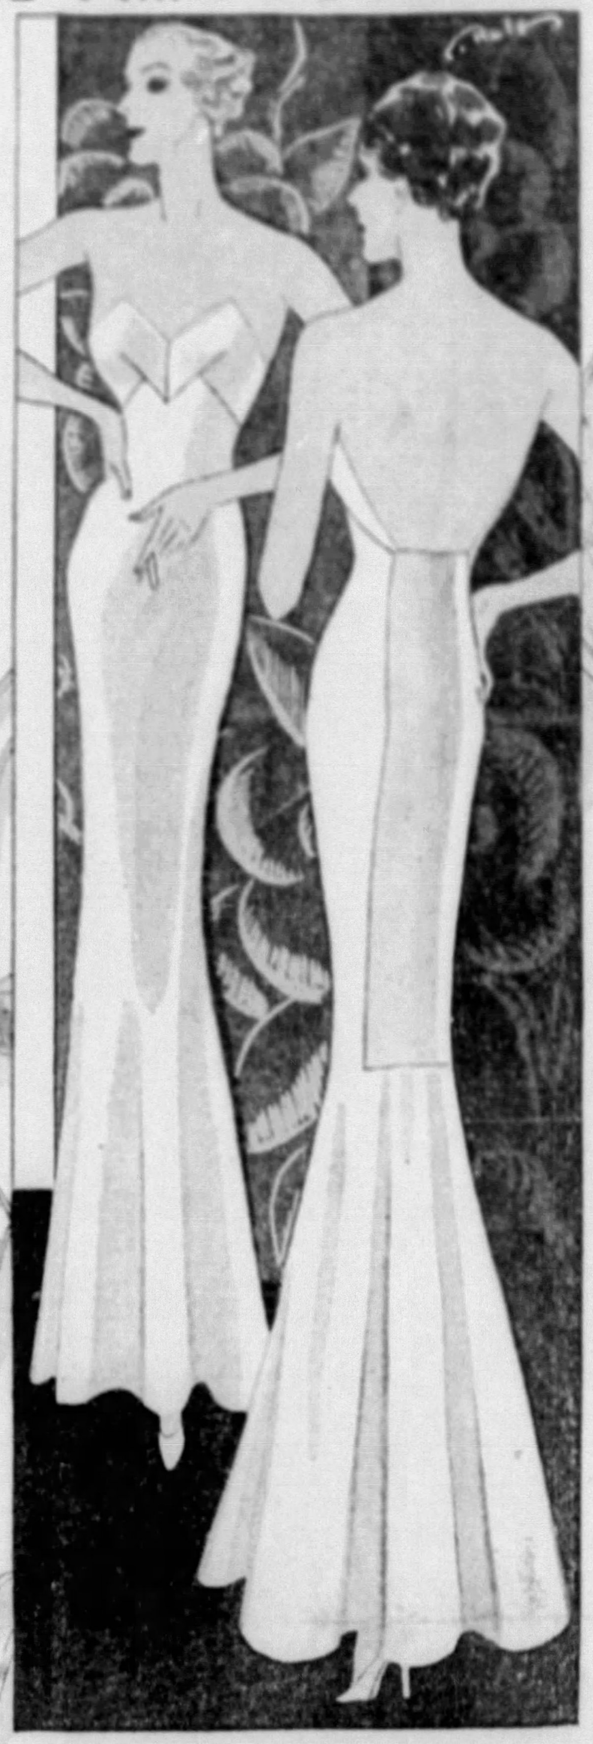
ARMOR PLATED underthings, thank goodness, will not be advised. We will further change our 1934 streamlines with the aid of clinging, pervasive materials among which laces will be prominent. Circles of thin accommodating fabric, if they are cut correctly and especially if they are cut the proper length for a specific figure, will solve these problem for the average woman. A bone or two may be run into the ensemble for extra restriction, but it can all be very petite and neat.

And over a good foundation—girdle or one-piece model which is combined with brassiere—a slip with elastic inserts will be helpful.

Such a slip is sketched over this page, and anyone can imagine how slick a tight fitting gown would look set over one of them.

In the brassiere departments the uplift type still p-reps. It is quite wonderful, the manner in which designers have soft pedaled shoulder straps while sacrificing none of the support of new models. And in some models extra support has been added by clever wired arrangements which permit the use of sheer, light materials rather than stalwart stuffs that are hot or harsh. "There is no ruler without a foundation," the wise men say—and the same goes for a chic, well-gowned appearance.

Invisible bow supporters are a practical feature of the decorative lace and silk one-piece foundation sketched top right. It will make an adequate basis for any beautifully fitted gown. The brassiere sketched is wired for better support and the satin lastex girdle is two-way stretch. The panties are lace and flat crepe; the soft singlet is synthetic glove silk, lace trimmed.



The satin foundation slip above has a trick lastex panel which runs down the back from the low decollette to the knee line, with plenty of soft fullness below for action freedom. The apparently perilous bodice top is held up by fine threads, really invisible, attached by clips to the brassiere tops. Upper right, cool glove silk vest and panties.

RECOVER FORK GIRL GULPED

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Lorraine Hewes, 18, of Owen Sound, was recovering in a hospital today from an operation to remove a silver fork, 7½ inches long, from her stomach.

The girl swallowed the fork while examining her throat. She suffered no inconvenience at the time but called a doctor and the operation was performed 3½ hours later. She is making good progress toward recovery.

PUNISH WOMEN IN 'SWEAT BOX'

ATLANTA, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Conditions at the city dairy farm were under investigation today by a special committee of City Council named after a woman inmate told of being confined for 18 hours in a "sweat box" at the farm several months ago.

The woman said she so feared being confined in the box that she had attempted suicide six times in the last few days. She was removed to Fulton Tower to await trial on a vagrancy charge.

While a guard stated that women prisoners were placed in the "sweat box" for as much as 12 hours at a time, both Councilman George Lyle, of the council prison committee, and Prison Farm superintendent, Jim Ellis, said the "sweat box" was not used for white women prisoners.

Ellis said most prisoners, usually Negroes, are put in the box when they are incorrigible.

WELCOME RECIPES FOR SWEET TOOTH

By PRUDENCE PENNY

The recent "distress" call for a chocolate covered peppermint recipe is answered today. In addition there is another candy recipe, which although not original, is very unusual and wholesome. It makes an appetizing sweet instead candy, being boiled in delicious honey. Sure to be a favorite with children, husband and all, these Honey Moons and Cocoanut Balls, I am sure.

Baked peppers with corn is a timely suggestion, with gardens yielding the green and fields yielding the yellow of this pleasing combination. Garden marmalade and Old Spanish Relish are especially appropriate to the present canning season. Remember, something of summer's abundance should always be preserved for the coming winter months.

Keep up the good work, readers. Send in as many recipes as you like every day. Write on only one side of the paper, with your name and adress at the top of each sheet. Prudence Penny awards six prizes daily: Five dollars for the best recipe and five $1 prizes for the five next best recipes. Send yours in now.

Five Dollar Prize Winner

MISS SHIRLEY SHAPIRO,
1010 Locust street, Pittsburgh.

HONEY MOONS AND COCOANUT BALLS

Four cups flour.
Six eggs.
Three tablespoons oil.
One pound honey.
One pound cocoanut.
One-half pound almonds.
Pinch salter.
One-half cup water.
Two tablespoons sugar.

Knead flour, eggs and oil to a soft dough. Roll out to one-eighth-inch thickness and cut with an inch-and-a-half cookie cutter. Fill each cookie with an almond and fold to the shape of a half moon. Squeeze ends together so almond will not slip out and drop in following mixture:

Dilute honey with sugar and water, and let come to a boil. Drop half moons in and cover. Let cook until moons are a delicate brown. Cover a board with cocoanut and with a spoon take the moons out of the boiling honey. Drop on cocoanut and cover them completely. If there is any remaining honey drop by spoonfuls on cocoanut and roll into balls.

BAKED PEPPERS STUFFED WITH CORN

Six large cooking peppers.
One and one-half cups corn pulp (fresh or canned).
One-half cup chopped cooked ham.
One egg.
Two tablespoons butter.
Seasoning.
One can tomato soup.

Scald peppers after removing seeds and section from stem end. Make filling of ingredients except soup, using enough milk or stock to bind together. Pack filling into pepper shells, allowing for swelling. Lay on baking dish and pour over tomato soup. Bake 30 minutes in moderate oven, basting frequently. Potted ham or tongue or thin strips of bacon may be placed on each pepper.

FRANCES F. SMIT,
243 Noble avenue, Crafton Station.
GARDEN MARMALADE

One cup green grape pulp and juice.
Two cups beet juice.
Three cups granulated sugar.

Cook green grapes until soft, then rub through fine colander. Scrub beets thoroughly, leaving on about four inches of the stem. Cook until tender in barely enough water to cover the main part of the beets. When done, pour off the juice and serve. Combine grape juice and pulp with beet juice and sugar. Stir until sugar is dissolved then cook over medium slow fire until it becomes jelly-like when dropped from a spoon. Remove from fire, put in glasses. This makes four medium-sized jelly glasses.

ANNA M. TAYLOR,
415 Sinton Ave., Pittsburgh.
CHOCOLATE COVERED PEPPERMINTS

Two cups sugar.
One and one-fourth cups water.
Two tablespoons light corn syrup.

Combine and place over low flame, stir until dissolved. Cook covered three minutes. Uncover, boil until it reaches 238 degrees (soft ball stage). Remove from fire. Allow to stand until cool. Pour on slightly dampened porcelain surface, and beat with a wooden spoon until creamy, adding nine drops oil of peppermint. Mold into flat cakes, size of half dollars. Dry. Dip in bitter or sweet chocolate melted at a temperature of 90 degrees over hot water. Dip with a two-prong fork, and in a cool room. Place on a greased surface to dry. It is best to shave two pounds of chocolate, as it can be reused if not allowed to get too hot. Use a shallow pan for dipping. Do not attempt center fondant on a damp day.

MRS. PERCY GELDER,
833 Prospect avenue, Charleroi.
CREAM BREAD FINGERS.

Half cup heavy cream.
Two tablespoons sugar.
One cake yeast.
Pinch of salt.
One-fourth cup lukewarm water.
One and one-quarter cups flour (approximately).

Scald cream, add sugar and salt. Dissolve yeast in lukewarm water and add to first mixture, with the flour. Knead lightly, then toss onto a floured pastry board and knead until light and springy. Return to the bowl, cover and allow to rise. Then again toss onto a lightly floured board and pat and roll one-quarter inch thick. Dip cutter in flour and cut out "fingers" with a lady finger cutter. Place on a buttered cookie sheet, cover and again allow to rise until light. Bake in a moderate oven for about 15 minutes. Brush over with two tablespoons of milk mixed with one tablespoon of sugar and return to oven, increasing the heat until the tops are nicely glazed.

MRS. VAL HOFMAN,
3925 Evergreen road, North Side.
OLD SPANISH RELISH

Five large ripe tomatoes.
Thirty medium-sized onions.
Four large stalks celery.
Two dozen large sweet peppers (red and green).

Chop well and mix ingredients. To this add:

Two pounds brown sugar.
One-half cup salt.
One-half teaspoon red pepper.
One teaspoon curry powder.
One teaspoon cinnamon.
One teaspoon cloves.
One teaspoon ginger.
One-half teaspoon allspice.
Two tablespoons white mustard seed.
One-fourth cup turmeric.

Cook slowly until thick, seal then seal.

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Cubs in Preview of '35
Hartnett Replacing Grimm
Flag Loss to Mean Shift

Pennants Follow Perkins
Plan Race for Equalpoise
Eagles Sign MacMurdo

While it may be true enough that Manager Charley Grimm left the Cubs only for the purpose of seeking lumbago treatment in St. Louis and will be back on the job in a day or two, Catcher Gabby Hartnett to take charge of the club in the meantime, many fans think the situation indicates what the Chicago set-up is going to be next year if the the Bruins fail to beat out the Giants for the 1934 pennant in a chance that appears to be nothing more than a mathematical one.

Charley Grimm

Grimm has been troubled with lumbago for two years, and it is considered strange that he should take time out for treatment so suddenly just when the Cubs are facing their final opportunity to make a pennant drive on their own grounds. The owners of the club are known to be keenly disappointed that the Bears did not make a better showing this year, and particularly that in the recent series with the Cardinals and Braves the team muffed a chance to pull up on the leaders. If the pennant is not won a managerial change is likely to follow, and Hartnett is Grimm's logical successor. So the present picture may be a preview of 1935.

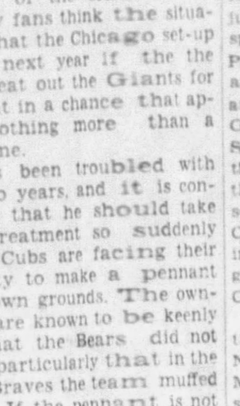
GRIMM HANDICAPPED BY LOSS OF STARS

Of course, is is not Grimm's fault that the Cubs are not up there. Charley has had more than one manager's share of tough luck, with Warneke out of stride for a time and valuable players like Klein, Jurges, Bill Herman and Bush lost for long periods. When a strong club fails in baseball, however, it is the custom to blame it on the manager and make him pay with his head, and Grimm will hardly be an exception.

It would seem unjust to fire a pilot after he had finished as high as second and beaten out six other clubs, assuming that the Bruins will land in that position, but some of the magnates have strange ways. Bill McKechnie was dismissed after winning a pennant with the Cardinals in 1928, and Rogers Hornsby was traded off after winning both the pennant and the World Series with the same club in 1926.

PENNANTS AND SERIES CUTS FOLLOW VETS

Some ball players have been called lucky because pennants appeared to follow them wherever they happened to go in trades or transfers from club to club. Among the boys who have been kicked upstairs repeatedly in that respect, consider Cy Perkins, veteran catcher and now coach of the Tigers. As a member of Mickey Cochrane's prospective pennant winners, Perkins is headed for a slice of the World Series melon for the fourth time within the narrow span of six years.



Cy Perkins

Four series cuts in six years is not a record, of course. Frankie Frisch, Ross Young, George Kelly, Irish Muesel and Art Neff, besides Manager McGraw, shared in the post-season spoils four years in succession while playing with the Giants from 1921 to 1924, inclusive. But in the case of Perkins, the unusual feature is that he will have received a chunk of the prize money with three different clubs. He was with the A's in the series of 1929 and 1930, with the Yankees in 1932, and the 1934 pay-off will find him in line with the Tigers. At that, Cy had some breaks coming to him, as a few years ago he saw his ball player's fortune, running into six figures, swept away almost overnight. Strangely, it was Mickey Cochrane, by reason of his superlative catching ability, who turned Perkins into a benchwarmer while the two were with the A's, and

WEST NEWTON, COMMERCIAL WIN TITLES

By PHIL GRABOWSKI
Softball Tournament Secretary

The West Newton Scholastics and the Commercial Garage Juniors staged thrilling last inning rallies to carry off the girls' and junior division championships, respectively, in the finals of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's first annual Western Pennsylvania amateur softball tournament at Greenlee Field yesterday. The Scholastics, trailing by one run in the last stanza, tallied twice in the ninth to conquer the Goldenson Vanities, 9 to 8, while the Commercials put on the pressure in the ninth inning of the first game to overcome the Pioneers, of Carnegie, 4 to 3.

It was Helen Soroka's single that brought victory to the West Newton aggregation. In this frame Miss Nuttall singled, Paluha was safe on an error and Capt. Mildred Hill secured an infield single to fill the bases. Pultz forced Nuttall at home. At this point Pitcher Edythe Forsythe, of the Vanities, walked Sophia Trillow, forcing in Miss Paluha with the tying run. Miss Soroka followed with a base blow to score Miss Hill with the winning run, which gave the Scholastics the championship of the girls' division.

GAME HARD FOUGHT

The Scholastics took the lead in the first inning. The Vanities tied the count at 2-all in the fourth. The champions forged ahead by scoring one run in the fifth and two in the sixth inning. The Goldensons came back in the seventh to score five runs and lead, 7-5, but the West Newton team tied the count with a two-run rally in the eighth.

Dominick Lorenzo starred for the Commercial Juniors. After doubling in the opening inning he scored on Walter Husak's two-base hit to give the junior champions the lead. Then he clouted a home run in the third, but the Pioneers came back to tie the score, 2-2, when Piatek walked and scored on Pitcher Sally's triple. Sally scored on a bad throw from the outfield. The Pioneers bunched a single and a triple to take the lead. Both teams played scoreless ball up until the ninth inning.

After one was out in the ninth, Walter Husak walked and scored the tying run on Lucchino's double. DePhillips followed with a single to score Lucchino with the winning run.

DUAL BILL TOMORROW

Another doubleheader is carded for tomorrow at Greenlee Field. The Gabbel Cycles, intermediate division champions, will meet the New Kensington Merchants in the first game, and the Campbell Shamrocks, of the East End, will oppose the Commercial Garage team, of the Hill, in the final round for the senior division title.

The ticket sale for tomorrow's doubleheader will be continued at the Sun-Telegraph Building and at the downtown office at Fifth avenue and Market street. The cost of these tickets is only 25 cents, but special tickets can be obtained by registered players for 10 cents.

The winner in the senior division will be sent to Chicago to represent Western Pennsylvania in the national tournament, which opens there next month. The scores:

TUBERS LOSE VIA FORFEIT

The McKeesport Little Pirates, of the Penn State Association, missed a swell chance to pick up valuable ground on the league-leading Greensburg Redwings last evening. The Bucs and Jeannette were deadlocked in a scoreless tie in the second inning when a fight broke out after the McKeesport players protested a decision by Umpire Crouch.

Crouch is alleged to have punched Sertick, of McKeesport, and Manager Leo Mackey came to Sertick's rescue. The arbiter promptly declared Jeannette victor via the forfeit route.

Charleroi beat Greensburg, 5 to 0, as Hal Smith limited the Wings to two hits. Washington was trounced soundly by Monessen, 14 to 1, five errors contributing to the Generals' downfall.

GILES SCORES ACE

F. M. Giles scored a hole-in-one on the 187-yard No. 4 hole at St. Clair yesterday. He was playing with S. K. McConnell, T. C. Harvey and C. T. McDonald.

HUBBELL SAVES GIANTS ON TRIP WEST

Associated Press.

The National League ball is the batsman's delight under ordinary circumstances, but not when Carl Owen Hubbell is on the throwing end of it.

Although Hubbell perhaps has been hit slightly harder this year than last when he led the New York Giants to a league pennant and the world championship, the great left-hander still is the big ace on Bill Terry's staff and possibly the most valuable piece of pitching bric-a-brac in baseball.

A large slice of the credit for the Giants' present position in the 1934 race (they lead the second place Chicago Cubs by five and a half games with six weeks to go) belongs to tall Carl. The Giants have played 117 games and Hubbell has been in 36 of them, starting 27 contests in 20 of which he still was there at the finish, and serving in relief roles in nine other games. He has won 18 games and lost nine so far and may yet better his 1933 record of 23 and 12.

He was called in for rescue duty for the second time in as many days yesterday and stopped a threatening Cincinnati rally as the Giants won, 7-4, and extended their winning streak to five games in a row. Leroy Parmelee, the Giants' starting moundsman, was in hot water through wildness all the way and finally was replaced by Hubbell in the eighth with men on third and second and one out. Both runners scored, one on an infield out and the other on Mark Koenig's single, but Hubbell stopped the Reds cold thereafter.

The only other game on the day's major league schedule was extraordinary in that Pittsburgh finally won a game from Brooklyn.

U. S. Yacht Wins Over Canadian Rival

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—In a surging sea kicked up by a 25 to 30-mile-an-hour nor'easter, the Conewago, of the Rochester Yacht Club, outsailed the Invader II, of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, of Toronto, yesterday in the first of the series of races for the prized Canada's Cup, premier trophy of international fresh-water yacht racing. The winner had a 2 minutes and 27 seconds margin at the finish.

CHILLYSAUCE

In the hope he can pick up boys who may develop into Pirate stars a few years hence, Pie Traynor recently has been searching the highways and byways. Pie realizes that gems of purest ray often are to be found in your own back yard, and he is covering this phase of the club's sleuthing while the others scour the country.

A Clarion sandlot phenom is slated to report to Manager Traynor today. The young man is a righthand pitcher of 20 summers who has been a standout in Western Pennsylvania baseball this year. His name is Joe Yenosky, and when "Big Joe" toes the slab in the Clarion sector there is always a commotion.

Yenosky, of Belgian extraction and weighing 195 pounds, may be a potential Mungo, for, like the giant of the Dodgers' pitching corps, Joe owns terrific speed, a good curve, and he can hit and field a la Mungo. His sponsor is Joe Rigby, former Pittsburgh police reporter, who, besides other welfare duties in Clarion, runs the town's ball team and plays second base. Traynor already has seen Yenosky do his stuff in a practice drill, and he is anxious to get him in tow.

Then there is Dick Perry, Dormont boy, who played on the gridiron and diamond for Princeton in his past term. Dick is a lefthand-throwing first sacker, whose actions at Forbes Field in the past few days have led several of the veterans to think the lad will blossom into a star.

Weighing 180 and with a keen desire to follow baseball as a profession, the home-town collegian may eventually wind up with a Pittsburgh contract, although he has two more years of college work . . . Not so many years ago—at least it seems only a few—Dick Perry was one of the stars of the Traynor Juniors, so that the present pilot of the Pittsburgh club has a sentimental interest in the youngster.

Scout Carleton Molesworth, of the local club, returned to Pittsburgh today and gave his employers a report on his long journeyings into the many minor leagues. Naturally the Pirate officials will not divulge any definite fact regarding the purchase of minor league stars, yet in view of the disappointing showing of the Bucs this year, it is evident that the Pittsburgh market will be quite lively this fall and winter.

YOUNG CATCHER SPARKPLUG OF DODGERS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

"The melancholy days have come,
The saddest of the year;"
The Bucs have no more wallop
Than a mug of sour beer—
Yet in the rightfield bleachers
Stand the kids behind their guns;
Not a "quitter" in their legion,
With their War Cry:

"WE WANT RUNS!"

This started out to be an essay on Melancholy, but those irresistible Boys' Day youngsters, who cheered the Pirates to their 6-2 victory over the Dodgers yesterday with their "We Want Runs!" cry, changed everything. The 12-year-olds and under broke out in the first inning and their unison chorus exhorting their favorites to make tallies did not cease until the home team had sufficient runs to snap their losing streak.

Al Lopez

So the moral seems to be—Keep the kids around and we'll win a few ball games and perhaps get back into the first division.

In any event, you can all be assured that if you give a boy a "break" he'll return the favor with better than loan-shark interest.

LOPEZ REAL STAR

An this leads quite naturally to the main character of this tale, who is still a boy, yet one who celebrated his twenty-sixth birthday yesterday in the knowledge that he is recognized as one of the greatest catchers the National League has flashed since the days of Johnny Kling and Jimmy Archer.

Senor Alfonse Lopez is a high-spirited young Spaniard, but Alfonse did not mount a donkey with sword unsheathed and start out

BROUILLARD SMASHES OUT TECHNICAL K. O. OVER GREEN

Believe It Or Not — By Ripley

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE EVER-BLOOMING ROSEBUSH—August 19, 1934, was "National Pilgrimage Day" to the shrine of Lourdes where, in 1858, the Blessed Virgin appeared to a little peasant girl, announcing to her "I am the Immaculate Conception." Hundreds of thousands of pilgrims annually flock to pray at the grotto where the Virgin appeared to the little girl 18 times. The cave now holds a statue of Our Lady of Lourdes, depicted as she appeared to the little peasant. Beside the statue there is a rosebush, which, I am assured, blooms continuously the year aroound.

PACKED ARENA SEES DEFEAT OF ANSON

By JAMES MILLEN

Anson Green, the determined Duke Universon of Homestead, is one fighter in this town today who doesn't have to worry about making weight in his title.

No, sir, for Anson's optics were completely closed and out to the ceremonious pugilists of Lou Brouillard, the former welterweight and middleweight champion, when referee Al Quartes stepped in and halted the proceedings with just 10 seconds to go in the eighth round of their scheduled 10-rounder held at Motors Park Mirage last night, leaving Lamartine Lou's hand in victory.

The result of the affair, a technical knockout, was inevitable after the fourth round. It was in this round that a blurr left smashed off Green's right eye, creating a lighter than a No. 4 shoe on a No. 7 foot. It was just a question of how long Anson could go on with one peeper shut the other bearing a mash and closing like a door on a subway train.

DOWN IN FIRST

In the first session Lou dropped Green for a nine count. It was a right hand punch, a leaping one that felled Anson. The next heat was fairly even. Brouillard jabbed and hooked his way to an early lead but Green caught him napping and nailed him with a couple of hard rights, one of which cut Brouillard's right eye. Green's right also was opened in the stanza. The third canto brought the crowd to its feet when both fighters stood toe to toe and let loose a barrage of blows that flew from all directions. It was Brouillard's round.

When the half way mark was reached Lou had the fight in the well-known sack. He just seemed to contend himself with stabbing Green with his right and bringing his short left hook over to Green's face (well, it started out as his dial) and making the latter miss plenty.

Lou continued to take it easy in the next heat, and was hailed with one of Green's rights. It was a hard sock for the New Englander shook his head a couple of times. The blow was Anson's final bid for victory.

Brouillard, in the seventh, asked the referee to stop the fight. The end came with poor Anson groping around the ring, eyes as closed as a defunct bank, not having the faintest idea where Brouillard was lurking.

It was a great display of courage on the Homesteader's part to assimilate that punishment and still keep trying.

Green came into the ring looking a new bill, wearing a recently purchased red robe with his name splashed across the back.

SHOW DRAWS $4,300

The show drew $4,300 gross, the biggest here for some time. The arena was packed and about 2,000 fans were turned away.

Al Quaranll, looked great in winning in a technical knockout over Jack Dalcherone after 56 seconds of fighting in the second round of the semi-final. Quaranll's right floored Dalcherone twice in the first round for nine and the second for six. The last knockdown was halted by the bell. In the next round he dropped Dalcherone with a left hook, an right upercl and was setting them around the ring when Referee Floyd Robinson called a halt.

Casey Kilboide, Negro, of Homestead, defeated Billy Flanagan, of Clearfield, in the second bout. Flanagan was down for an eight count in the second round and also had his right eye badly cut in the bout. Dick Ambrose, of Bloomfield, won the referee's decision over Dick Wickets, of the North Side, in the opener. Judge Phillips voted for Wickets and Dr. George MacBeth, the other judge, and Red Robinson voted for Ambrose.

JESS IS REFEREE

CAMDEN, N. J., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Jess Willard, former heavyweight boxing champion, will referee the bout between Max Schmeling, German heavyweight, and Steve Hamas, Omaha, Neb., here tonight, it was announced today. Willard will get $500 for his services.

STAR AMATEURS BOX ON POLICE FUND CARD

By JEAN CARVER

The boxing show staged in Forbes Field this evening as a benefit of track athletics, Mother Lode's son in a 12 to score host to-night, the proceeds of the show to be devoted to the Police Pension Fund. It's a worthy cause for a worthy event.

A number of amateur champions of various classifications are expected including Mac Green, Mike Sasso, Angelo Lee Sheeler, John Gallo, Charles Cassella and George Bellone, all scheduled to perform at Senator A. M. A. C. Golden Glove tournaments. Pittsburgh Old Timers Charities, Youngstown, Morgantown, W. Va., and Monessen will be represented against the cream of the Pittsburgh district crop.

Outstanding engagements will put Vic Varon, member of the Pittsburgh Lyceum, at 126 pounds, Billy Miller, Pittsburgh Boys' Club star, against Sammy Angelo, of the Duckin' A. C. of Washington, Pa.; Leo Ravenelle, another Boys' Club ace, and one of the best amateurs in the section, against Bill Sasso, of Farrell, at 126 pounds; Charley Cassella, Farmers' U. A. C. heavy, affirmative against Chester Robinson, coach of City zone; and Johnnie Gallo, of West Virginia University, Eastern Intercollegiate Conference middleweight champion, against Steve Kolada, star of Danny Ryan's Pittsburgh Lyceum squad.

The first bout will get under way at 8:30 o'clock. The card follows:

FIGHT RESULTS

Personalities In Softball

Harry Bobosky

Felix Gallosky

Harry Bobosky, first baseman of the Canonsburg Shamrocks, is one of the two first basers in the district. He and at the initial bag for Lefty Stanislaw and the Shamrocks have the edge at the sacks. Felix Gallosky, Pittsburgh Westinghouse baseball infielder, is a very good fielder. The Shamrocks will oppose the Commercials tonight in the district softball tournament at Canonsburg. The winner will go to Forbes Field for the right to represent Western Pennsylvania in the national tournament at Chicago next month.

Felix Gallosky, lanky pitcher of the Pioneers, was one of the outstanding players in the district tournament. Although his team was beaten yesterday by the Commercial Dairy Juniors in the final round game, Lefty did a splendid job on the mound and is expected to be managed to keep in town in the contests. He clubbed only two hits in eliminating the Calvary team. Bracket I champions. The Pioneers finished in second place of Bracket II. The Commercials won the bracket title with six straight victories.

Schweitzer Wins Long Range Title

CAMP PERRY, O., Aug. 21.—(AP)—W. P. Schweitzer, Hillside, N. J., won the individual long-range small-bore rifle match yesterday as the national championship small-bore tournament continued here.

Topping a list of 182 contestants Schweitzer scored 193 points out of a possible 200. L. P. Caley, of Ossego, Ill., was second with 191.

to swap punches with windmills like another well-known Castillian named Don Quixote.

The Americanized senor had the rich heritage of adventure in his blood, but it was Alfonse's good fortune at the age of 15 to rub shoulders with the great Walter Johnson while the speed king was training with the Senators near Lopez' Florida home.

Al was then a sandlot catcher and the big thrill of his life came when he was permitted to handle Johnson in an exhibition game. Walter told the boy he would go far as a catcher and Alfonse set out to justify the judgment of the diamond hero.

CASEY'S LIEUTENANT

The inspiration for the whole Brooklyn club, Lopez has caught practically all of the team's 100 odd games this year. And besides being the club's spark plug, he is Casey Stengel's captain and lieutenant.

Lopez at his 26th milestone in life finds himself rated the equal of Leo Hartnett, of the Cubs, and there are some critics who rank Alfonse first in the National League because he has speed and versatility together with the Hartnett spirit. Lopez, for instance, can play third base like a top-notcher.

The other day at Forbes Field, Al bunted safely with the score tied and in the inning scored the winning run. He smacked a triple against the left field wall yesterday, and he sometimes hits to right field with the hit-and-run on. The club's pitchers say he is the ideal receiver.

Lopez was picked up for a song by Nap Rucker, oldtime Dodger star of the mound. If Scout Rucker doesn't bring in another, he's had a busy day.

So it's boys like Alfonse who make stories like his which almost write themselves. And if you wish to see him in person again this season, you'll have to be at Forbes Field this afternoon as the Pirates and Dodgers run off the last game of their series.

SWIFT HURLS WELL

Al will be out there, shining in all his lustre for a second-division club that isn't going any place this year. But Lopez is the type that would shout and hustle with a first or last place club. He's a grand performer, is the pleasant Spamard.

Bill Swift held the Dodgers to eight hits as the Buccos snapped their losing streak of four games yesterday. The Pirates pounded Babich, Clark and Carroll for 15 safeties to gain their first triumph over the Dodgers in nine games. Paul Waner featured with four hits.

YOUNG TERRY BOWS

NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Salvatore (Red) Affanito, of New York, won a 10-round decision over Young Terry, of Trenton, last night. Affanito weighed 135¾; Terry 139½.

BURTON DEFEATED

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Frankie Covelli, 127, of Brooklyn, outpointed Bucky Burton, 126, of Clinton, Ind., here last night in a fast 10-round bout.

this year it was Cochrane who gave Cy the job that promises four or five thousand dollars extra pay in October.

SPECIAL RACE PLANNED FOR EQUIPOISE

The recent injury to Cavalcade put a stop to the talk of a match race between the 3-year-old champion and Equipoise, but another special event for the latter horse is now being planned. It is proposed to stage a three-cornered weight-for-age race at Narragansett, R. I., on September 1 to 3, in which Equipoise will meet Alfred Gwynn Vanderbilt's Discovery and Warren Wright's Hadagal. Tom Healey, trainer of Equipoise, has accepted the offer on condition that C. V. Whitney's star continues to train well. Equipoise has been far from fit, but it is expected that if nothing unforeseen occurs he will be at his peak by September.

Discovery's brilliant victory in the Kenner Stakes at Saratoga prompted the suggestion of a meeting with Equipoise and Hadagal. Seven defeats by Cavalcade might be taken as indicating that Discovery is not qualified for any such competition, but since the Kenner Stakes racing experts are contending again that he is a real top-notcher. Discovery ran the mile and three-sixteenths in 1:57 1-5, doing the mile in 1:34 4-5 and covering five successive furlongs in exactly 12 seconds each. No horse of any age has run more evenly this year. It's largely a matter of handling, with Discovery. He will not run his best if whipped often during a race, and he will not run his best, either in trial or competition, if he is not whipped once or twice at the start.

ANOTHER PITT TACKLE WITH PHILLY PROS

Philadelphia's club in the National Professional Football League is going in strongly for former University of Pittsburgh tackles. With Paul Cuba again under contract, the Eagles have also signed Jim MacMurdo, who starred in the Panther line in 1929-30-31. MacMurdo played for the Boston Braves in the pro circuit in 1932-33, and was acquired from that club by purchase. Coach Lud Wray, of the Eagles, considered MacMurdo the best tackle in the league in 1932, when Wray was in charge of the Boston Braves team, and says he still gives Jim that rating.

Jim MacMurdo

The Eagles are long on tackles and think they have the best set in the circuit. There are no fewer than six on the squad, as in addition to MacMurdo, Cuba, Guy Turnbow and Jack Dempsey, former Bucknell captain, the management has just signed Barnes Milam, a product of Austin College in Texas, and Claude Urevig, formerly of Purdue and North Dakota. The Eagles have 24 men under contract. Thirty-five will be taken to the training camp and 25 will be retained for the first league game. Cuba, now in Pittsburgh, has been notified that the players will be assembled in Atlantic City to start training on August 27, one day after the Pittsburgh pros get down to work at Mt. Pleasant.

DEAN, REDBIRDS MAKE PEACE

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Dizzy Dean and the Cardinals, after loud and prolonged wrangling, are at peace again today.

The Dizzy one was reinstated by Manager Frankie Frisch following a hearing before baseball's czar, Kenesaw Mountain Landis, yesterday. Much dirty linen and even "Brother Elmer, the peanut vendor" from Houston, came in for noisy discussion at the hearing.

In theory the hearing, by decree of Landis, was closed. In fact, however, the discussion became so noisy it sounded through hotel corridors.

This was the seventh day of Dizzy's suspension, which he brought on himself by failing to attend an exhibition game at Detroit last Monday and by balking at a $100 fine.

After the three-hour hearing, Landis found that the suspension of 10 days imposed Thursday by Frisch on the star right-handed pitcher was not unreasonable.

Paul, pitching brother of Dizzy, who was also suspended for not making the Detroit trip, attended the hearing as witness and as Dizzy's only defender. Paul was reinstated last week when he paid a $50 fine, plus the loss of two days' pay.

MEMORY TEST

TODAY'S QUESTIONS

How good is your memory of sports events, heroes and dates? Can you answer these questions?

1—Who is the former manager of the University of Pittsburgh football team who became a movie star in Hollywood?

2—Who are the former Pirate outfielders who hailed from Columbus, O.?

3—Whom did Jock Sutherland succeed as football coach at Pitt and, where was he coaching when signed for the job here?

4—What town in the Monongahela Valley once boasted a native son as president of the National League?

5—Who were the four starting pitchers of the Boston Braves' "miracle team" of 1914?

(Answers in Want Ad section tomorrow. See today's Want Ad section for answers to yesterday's questions.)

TO THE REGULAR GAS USERS OF ★ PITTSBURGH ★

IT'S only natural for you to think the regular gasoline you are using is the best you can buy. But there's no particular point in arguing that now.

For, just recently a new regular gas has been created that is unlike anything ever before produced. So much so that we had to build the world's newest, biggest and most modern refining unit and adapt an entirely new refining process to create it!

It is called "New-Action" Orange AMERICAN GAS. It has a brand new SUSTAINING* POWER that's "built-in".

It's different in every way a gasoline can be different—in anti-knock—surer power—readier acceleration—easier riding—quicker starting—and lower mileage cost.

As a user of regular gas, you owe it to yourself to try "New-Action" Orange AMERICAN GAS and know how different it is from any regular gas you've ever used. It's sold at regular gas price from Maine to Florida and inland.

GREENSBURGER PACES FIELD WITH 78

By TOM BIRKS

Sidney Carson, Jr., of the Greensburg Country Club led the field at the end of the first 18 holes of the 36-hole qualifying round for the National Amateur championship at the Oakmont Country Club today when he shot a 78 six over par figures. The second 18 holes will be played this afternoon and the five low scorers qualify for the championship to be played in Brookline, Mass., starting September 10.

Tied for second place at the end of the morning round were Billy Marks, of Oakmont; Knox Young, Jr., of Shannopin, and George H. Flinn, Jr., of Oakmont, who scored 79s.

Par for the Oakmont course and Carson's card follow:

	Oakmont	par
Out	444	444
In	444	444
Carson's card

DEL VECCHIO VICTOR

Perry Del Vecchio, diminutive pro of the Greensburg Country Club, carried off the West Penn open championship for the fourth time yesterday when he led the field in the annual 36-hole medal play event at the Edgewood Country Club with a 72-74—146. He led his nearest rival by five strokes. Perry also won the title in 1927, 1928 and 1932.

Five strokes behind Del Vecchio was Bill Stoecker, the little Stanton Heights professional, who turned in 151. Toots Erath, of Edgewood, took down third money with 152. Pete O'Hara, of Westmoreland, and Sam Parks, Jr., of South Hills, tied for fourth with 153s. Ted Luther, of Valley Heights, was sixth and the last prize winner with 154. George Trainor, of New Castle, also had 154, but he is an amateur.

Del Vecchio played the most consistent golf of the entire field to win by a big margin. At the end of the morning round he was tied with Charley Manning, of Shannopin, each matching par with 72s.

Vince Eldred, of Highland, the defending titleholder, never got started. He finished the morning rounds in the 80s, which virtually assured his elimination as a champion.

The majority of the title contenders met their Waterloos in the afternoon round, the Edgewood course proving a real test of golf. Sam Parks started the afternoon round with a 6 on the first hole, while the rest of the field were unable to catch up with the popular Del Vecchio.

13 ARE EXEMPTED

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—A dress rehearsal of the national amateur golf championship will be held today with some of the leading actors absent.

On 23 courses in this country and one in Honolulu, 741 hopefuls will play 36 holes of medal play in an attempt to qualify for the all match-play championship proper, starting at the country club of Brookline, Mass., Sept. 10. All told, 167 places are open.

Thirteen other places, making a total of 180, have been assigned to the defending champion, George Dunlap; 10 former holders of the title, Chandler Egan, Bob Gardner, Francis Ouimet, Chick Evans, Davy Herron, Jesse Guilford, Jess Sweetser, Max Marston, Harrison R. (Jimmy) Johnston and Ross Somerville, and to Lawson Little, present British amateur king, and Rex Hartley, former British Walker Cup star. These 13 have been exempted from today's qualifying play.

Veteran professional of the Greensburg Country Club, who won the West Penn Open golf championship for the fourth time when he scored 72-74—146 in the 36-hole medal play competition at the Edgewood Country Club yesterday. He succeeds Vince Eldred, of Highland. Eldred finished far behind. Del Vecchio held the same title in 1927, '28 and '32. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

SEEDED PAIRS ADVANCE

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Paced by the mighty combination of George Lott and Lester Stoefen, ambitious to retain their crown, the field of 32 players in the national doubles tennis championships has whittled itself in half, but first-round play took an unexpected toll in the seeded list.

Although none of the ranking duos which saw action yesterday at Germantown Cricket Club was even close to defeat at any time, a default by Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, the Atlanta mite, and his New York teammate, Gene McCauliff, left only seven of the eight ranked American pairs in the second-round bracket.

Along with them were the foreign aspirants to the national doubles throne, Fred Perry and Frank Wilde, English aces, and the South African-Czecho-Slovakian pair of Vernon Kirby and the giant Roderick Menzel.

Stoefen and Lott were never extended as they mowed down Fred Kuser and E. Harlan Whitehead, of Trenton, N. J., 6-4, 6-4, 6-3.

In the same manner, the top-seeded foreigners, Perry and Wilde, swept to an easy conquest over S. Ellsworth Davenport and Robert Kelleher. The scores were 6-2, 6-3, 6-3.

Ranked immediately behind the Lott-Stoefen combination and rated as the greatest threat to their continued rule of the national doubles domain, Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn, former champions and Davis Cup players, suppressed C. Alphonso Smith and John Wheatley, of Virginia, without once losing the lead.

There were easy victories, too, by third-seeded Frank Shields and Sidney Wood, Davis Cup singles aces; by Berkeley Bell, of New York, and Gregory Mangin, of Newark, seeded fourth; by the California youngsters, Gene Mako and Don Budge, rated fifth; by the Texas-Tennessee team of John McDiarmid and Robert Bryan.

MISS ROBINSON LEADS 'DERBY'

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Lucille Robinson, of Des Moines, western champion, carried a four-stroke lead over her nearest rival, Rena Nelson, of Chicago, as the women's western medal-play derby went into the long 36-hole drag today at Beverly Country Club.

Miss Robinson shot 39-39—78, one under par, yesterday to take the lead. Miss Nelson had an 82, with Virginia Van Wie, 1932 and 1933 national champion, a stroke back. Mrs. Robert Bullard, of Springfield, Ill., was fourth with 85, and Mrs. O. S. Hill, of Kansas City, was tied with Ellamae Williams, of Chicago, for the next place at 86.

Now this trip under water that this fellow Beebe took strikes me as rather a swell thing to be able to do. I've often wondered what lived in the water half a mile deep. Just think, fish that live that far down in the water and never come up to the surface have absolutely no idea what is going on in the world. They could just as well be a billion miles away from the rest of us, in a world all their own. I'll bet they got excited when they saw Beebe. Beebe reports "an amazing flesh-colored fish" 2,500 feet down. I'll bet when the fish got home he said: "Say, maw, you should hear about what I saw today!"

AUTO LEADERS DISCUSS CODE

Special Dispatch to The Sun-Telegraph

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Executives of major automobile companies will meet in Detroit tomorrow afternoon to determine the spokesmen ahead in arrangements of operation of the automobile code on September 1.

The occasion is a meeting of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce at which code matters will be one of the chief items.

Preliminary negotiations for a code after September 1 have been delayed largely because of the controversial mail clause, which has been fought bitterly by union labor.

This clause provides that nothing in Section 7-A of the National Industrial Recovery Act shall be construed as prohibiting the automobile employes from hiring and discharging employes on the basis of merit alone. Organized labor maintains that this provision creates a huge loophole through which the companies may evade recognizing the rights of collective bargaining.

NRA executives announced today that a public hearing would be held on the code as soon as the employers have determined their proposals.

Pare Meets Chapin In Pro Tourney

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Only one singles match was on the national professional tennis championship tournament schedule today as the field opened competition in the doubles.

Emmet Pare, former Chicagoan, now playing out of Memphis, Tenn., and Alfred Chapin, of Springfield, Mass., were matched in the singles encounter, a second-rounder.

Ellsworth Vines, of Pasadena, Cal., and Paul Heston, of Washington, D. C., were paired up in the doubles.

Regulation Threatens New York Curb

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor

THE NEW YORK Curb Exchange is threatened with evil days.

The planned regulations of the Securities Exchange Commission are depriving many large corporations of the commissions which they enjoyed by having their shares listed on the Curb instead of the New York Stock Exchange.

Mr. Snyder

Now that regulation has made the rules for both exchanges practically identical, some of these companies are pulling out of the Curb and are preparing to list their shares on the more prestige-bearing "Big Board."

Standard Oil of Indiana took the lead a few days ago and applied for listing on the New York Stock Exchange. Other Standard Oil companies as well as additional curb listed corporations are planning to take similar action.

From Rags to Riches Is Curb's History

THIS EVENT constitutes the first serious setback in the history of the Curb's rise, literally from the gutter to affluence and dignity.

Only about 14 years ago the Curb was what its name implies. It did business on Broad street, New York, just below Exchange place. The street was comfortably wide and traffic was light. Five hours a day it was crowded with a milling throng of traders.

In the windows of the surrounding buildings sat the clerks with direct telephone lines to their offices. Orders were signalled to the members below by a system of deaf and dumb talking. In order to be found in the crowd by his clerk, each trader wore a trick hat. Originality in design rather than artistic merit was standard. Sticking pink bills with purple green stripes were done to order.

The curb had to dignify itself. At first comes the members adopted themselves to throwing banana skins at the rules who came to it rather sick vagrants to see the wicked financial fairies.

Market Seasoned Big Board Stocks

THE CURB in those days provided a trading place for a multitude of stocks unable to meet the strict requirements for listing on the New York Stock Exchange. While some of its trading conditions were of doubtful quality, it performed the valuable service of seasoning many worth while stocks in preparation for their debuts in the lofty portals a block above at the corner of Broad and Wall.

The Curb's ethics were not always above reproach. But its business grew so big as the past decade's speculative mania swept the country that something had to be done about it. The result was the building of a palatial structure to house it and a gradual enforcement of regulation and listing requirements which raised its moral tone. It still, however, was not as severe as the "Big Board" and, as a result, companies which did not care to be told how to conduct their relations with the public, permitted their shares to stay on the Curb.

Curb Loses Its Great Advantage

FEDERAL REGULATION has removed this great selling point of the Curb. Undoubtedly it will mean the exodus of some of its most active stocks. It will not, however, mean that all the Curb stocks will move to the New York Stock Exchange. Many lack the distribution and background to be welcome on the "Big Board," even though they may meet the new federal requirements.

But the new law has put a definite crimp in the progress of the New York Curb and it may mark the end of its period of phenomenal growth.

OIL PRODUCTION INCREASES

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Crude oil production in the United States increased 5,266 barrels, from 2,587,625 to 2,592,891 barrels a day last week, the Oil and Gas Journal reported today.

Texas was responsible for the greater part of this, the state's output climbing from 1,056,410 to 1,076,757 barrels a day while other major areas reached their flow.

Oklahoma production dropped from 535,000 to 517,240 barrels and California dropped from 513,000 to 508,000 barrels.

Kansas production rose from 129,325 to 134,530 barrels; the Rocky Mountain area increased output from 97,390 to 98,230 barrels; the eastern area, including Michigan, showed a decline from 132,899 to 131,024 barrels.

Treasury Announces Bills Over Sold

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—A more than three-to-one oversubscription on $75,000,000 offered in 182-day bills was announced last night by the Treasury. Bids on the bills, which were dated August 22, 1934, and which mature February 20, 1935, were from 99.906 to 99.875. The total amount applied for was $254,800,000, of which $75,090,000 was accepted.

Mesta Machine Pays More on Common

Mesta Machine Company has declared a dividend of 50 cents on the common stock and regular quarterly of $1.50 on the preferred, both payable October 1 to stock of record September 17.

In the preceding quarter, the company disbursed 25 cents a share on the common stock.

BMT RESUMES PAYMENTS

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Company has resumed dividends on the common stock with a declaration of 75 cents a share, payable October 15 to stock of record of October 1. The last previous payment was one dollar on April 15, 1932.

The board also declared quarterly dividends of $1.50 each on the preferred stocks for the full year.

Dollars Fear Stops Indian Gold Export

BOMBAY, Aug. 21.—There were no exports of Indian gold last week because of expectations of further devaluation of the American dollar, which might result in higher prices for gold in the London open market.

MIDDLE WEST GROUP GETS NEW PLAN

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—With the abandonment of the former plan for raising new money through sale of preferred stock with a common stock bonus to be put over secured creditors of Middle West Utilities Company the bondholders committee now considering a plan whereby new common stock would be offered to stockholders at the option price of $4 a share and to preferred and common stockholders at an increase above the option price.

Enough new common stock would be offered to raise $15,000,000 and add something to working capital.

Robert N. Golding, attorney for the committee, in revealing the plans, said that in any event the stockholders will receive a certain amount of new common stock for their present holding of serial notes, and the total number of new common shares to be initially outstanding is to remain the same at $2,000,000.

BANK DEPOSITS ADVANCE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—A financial picture highlighted by a vast increase in bank deposits but a shrinkage in loans to business was printed by a report of J. F. T. O'Connor, comptroler of the currency.

The last bank call, June 30, dated the picture. National bank deposits totaled $19,952,660,000, a gain of $1,142,173,000 since March 5, and $3,158,545,000 since June 30, 1933.

Loans and discounts shrank from $8,116,972,000 on June 29, 1933, to $7,899,279,000 on March 5, 1934, and to $7,694,749,000 on June 30, last. This was a decrease of $422,223,000 during the 12 months.

Though the controller did not give causes for the increase in deposits, it was attributed by others to two sources:

1. More than 500 banks reopened during the year.

2. The new deposit insurance law stimulated confidence.

The decrease in loans and discounts was believed due, in part, to a falling off in the business demand for credit. Rediscounts registered a drop from $102,176,000 to $2,007,000.

Paramount Publix Earns $3,000,000

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Although audited statements have not yet been completed, earnings of Paramount Publix Corporation during the first six months of this year are estimated at approximately $3,000,000 after depreciation but before taxes and interest. This includes earnings only of film producing subsidiaries and not results from theater operating subsidiaries, which, however, are doing a little better than breaking even.

Work on reorganization plans is proceeding but no definite program has as yet been worked out.

Wheat Conference Fails To Set World Quotas

LONDON, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Attempts to reach an agreement on export quotas were definitely abandoned today by the world wheat conference, which has been in session for a week.

Unrestrained shipping of wheat by all countries is assured, at least until November.

This means the first "open season" in wheat shipping since the 1934 wheat agreement was signed last August, although during the year Russia refused to accept her quota and Argentine exceeded her allotment when negotiations for an increase fell through.

No meeting of the full conference was held today, although one had been announced yesterday in an official communique. A subcommittee, made up of representatives of seven nations, held a further meeting today to work out details of a new agreement which will be submitted to the governments.

A plan for a quarterly adjustment of quotas, instead of the fixed annual figure, is the chief feature of the proposal on which the sub-committee is working, but a scheme to adjust these quotas strictly on a basis of prices prevailing in each quarter was abandoned for the time being.

The refusal of Argentina to accept less than 150,000,000 bushels, coupled with a favorable world wheat situation because of the drought, led the conference to abandon a plan for establishing annual quotas during this session. A discussion of the allotment was postponed until November.

FDIC DIRECTOR TO RETIRE SOON

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Resignation of E. G. Bennett, Utah banker as director of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation to take effect 10 days was reported as probable today.

Bennett already has submitted his resignation to President Roosevelt. It will be accepted as soon as a successor is named.

At the same time it was stated that M. S. Eccles, special assistant to Secretary Morgenthau, was the leading candidate to succeed Governor D. Black as head of the Federal Reserve Board, although a number of other candidates were mentioned. Eccles and Bennett are owners of a group of banks in Utah.

OFFICIALS DIFFER

No successor to Bennett so far has been mentioned. Considerable interest has been attached to this appointment in view of reported differences in the FDIC as to operating policies between Chairman Leo T. Crowley and the third director, Comptroller of the Currency J. F. T. O'Connor.

Crowley and Bennett have stood together on the FDIC board.

The Federal Reserve Board situation is somewhat complicated. Eccles and Adolph Miller, a member of the original board appointed by Woodrow Wilson, both are from the San Francisco district, the law providing that no two members may be from the same district. Miller's term expired August 9. He is said to be anxious for reappointment. Miller is a close personal friend of the President. It was not expected that action would be taken on his post until it is finally determined who will be named Governor.

MENTION O'CONNOR

O'Connor has been mentioned as a candidate for governor of the board and also a possibility as Federal Reserve agent for the San Francisco district, a post which pays $25,000 annually, about twice as much as Reserve Board governor.

Mr. Roosevelt has been in the unique position of virtually having the opportunity to reorganize the Federal Reserve Board to his own liking. Owing to vacancies he has selected three new members, Black, J. J. Thomas and M. S. Szymczak as well as Morgenthau and O'Connor, the two ex-officio members. He is now in the position to name Black's successor and re-name Miller or replace him with another member. Other members of the board include Charles S. Hamlin and George R. James.

WHEAT TAKES FRESH CLIMB

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—Fresh upturns of grain prices here were witnessed early today in the wake of higher quotations at Liverpool. Strength developed at the opening bell and wheat was pushed up well above a cent within the first five minutes.

Opening ½ to 1 cent up, December new, $1.05⅝ to $1.06, wheat later advanced further and then reacted. Corn started ½ to 1⅛ cents up, December, 77½@ 77¾, and then held near the initial limits.

The following quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Austin & Co.:

GASOLINE PRICE DECLINES

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—The spot gasoline market continues easy with the market on low-octane ranging from 3½ to 4 cents a gallon but with most of the movement around 3⅝ cents and 3¾ cents a gallon.

Some hope of a little improvement is given by reports that railroads are rejecting gasoline for shipment from East Texas unless it is accompanied with certification of the Texas Railroad Commission as to the legality of its source.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 21. — To meet local competitive conditions the Standard Oil Company of Ohio has reduced gasoline ½ cent a gallon on third-grade and 2 cents each on regular and ethyl grades.

Dividend News

Beech-Nut Pays Extra.

Directors of the Beech-Nut Packing Company declared an extra dividend of 25 cents and a regular quarterly payment of 75 cents, both payable October 1 to stock of record September 12.

Traders Turn to Buying Following Dull Season

Assuming from the extreme dullness of the market yesterday that the line of least resistance was upward traders turned to the buying side of stocks after the opening today. Firmness of rail shares in the preceding session also encouraged a more bullish attitude in speculative quarters. Pivotal issues quickly rallied back to the tops of the narrow trading range they have been moving in since July 26 and then turned quiet as bulls waited for the market to marshal the power to break through the upper limits of the recent range. Judging from the variety of opinions emanating from brokerage houses and other quarters, sentiment at present is more mixed than it has been in a long time. At one extreme are those who have been won over by such arguments as presented in the brochure by the British forecaster, Maj. L. L. B. Angas, entitled "The Coming American Boom." At the other extreme are the "prophets of doom" who, while more in the background, have been circulating some gloomy prognostications based on the belief that capital goods industries will continue to stagnate as long as uncertainty over monetary policies is prolonged and that inflation of a drastic sort is in store for the country.

Between the opposing prophets is a large body of opinion leaning to the view that the forces of recovery will continue to operate to bring about a gradual expansion of business activity. While it is conceded that the elements of a boom lie concealed in the huge excess store of bank reserves and the greatly expanded gold and silver base for inflation of credit, economists point out that something more than a credit base is needed to get expansion started. The "something" is usually summed up under the abstract, all-embracing term "confidence."

Tendencies toward credit expansion have been noticeable in bank statements in recent weeks, but whether the trend is anything more than a seasonal upturn remains to be seen. For the past month "all other loans," as detailed in the weekly federal reserve member bank condition statement, have shown a considerable gain. The reporting banks in 91 cities for the week ended August 15 reported a further gain of $8,000,000 and an increase of $33,000,000 in holdings of securities other than United States government obligations. Both indicated that banks were seeking to increase their earnings assets and were in a more comfortable position.

The rise and fall of demand deposits usually is watched in Wall street for a cue to trends toward inflation or deflation of bank credit. Since the end of 1933, net demand deposits of the reporting Federal Reserve member banks have risen nearly 2,000 million dollars and now stands nearly 2,500 million dollars above the total a year ago. The latest members bank condition statement shows a further rise of 166 million dollars. The rapid increase in recent months has been due chiefly to heavy government expenditures and the inflow of gold from abroad. Instead of leading to expansion of bank credit, it has resulted mainly in the piling up of excess reserves. But some forecasters of early credit expansion on a large scale argue that the credit pot has been bubbling and may boil over at any time.

Steady appreciation in prices of farm products in recent weeks introduced a new stimulus for revival of trade in the fall, it was pointed out in one quarter. The fact that the rise in farm products has been motivated mainly by reduction of supplies resulting from drought devastation dampens the bullish reaction. There is no reference now, for instance, to the country riding back to prosperity on the back of a hog, as there was when pork led a short-lived advance in commodity prices two years ago. But statisticians have been busy calculating prospective crop returns and balancing them against estimated drought losses and find that the farmer stands to win on balance. It was figured that hog-corn payments and drought relief disbursements in excess of 800 million dollars would absorb a decline of 125 million dollars in farm income from grains and a drop of around 100 million dollars in income from livestock. At the rate livestock prices have been advancing this week, estimates of the losses in income from this product may have been too high.

Government financing, of one sort or another, has almost monopolized the capital market in the past year. Dealings in federal issues have grown substantially. So Wall street was not surprised to hear that the stock exchange had doubled its facilities for trading in United States government bonds. There has been a shift of brokers and specialists away from stocks into "the bond crowd" to "get into the money" there. Trading in stocks this summer has shrunk to the smallest volume in 10 years but business in bonds all along has been fair, according to bond brokers.

DOLLAR HOLDS STEADY

Foreign exchange rates were steady in terms of dollars today, with major currencies showing no changes of importance.

The pound sterling dipped ⅛ of a cent to $5.08¾ in New York, after the dollar had strengthened ⅛ of a cent in the earlier London trading to close at $5.08⅝ to the pound.

The price of gold in London declined a halfpenny to 138 shillings 2½ pence a fine ounce (equivalent to $35.151), and bars valued at $2,061,196 changed hands.

French francs held unchanged in New York at 6.67 cents, while the dollar lost 2 centimes in Paris at the equivalent of the same figure.

Chain Store Sales Show No Change

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Total sales in July of chain store reporting to the Federal Reserve Bank of New York were on the same dollar amount as a year ago, the bank states. This followed increases in other recent months, but the less favorable showing for July was attributed to the fact that July of last year was the first month in two years to show an increase. Grocery and shoe chains reported declines, but most other lines had slight increases over a year ago.

Hogs Again Reach New High Level

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—Hogs sold at a new top of $6.90 today, the highest since August 29, 1931.

HIGHER CABLES AID COTTON

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Cotton futures opened steady, 6 to 12 points advance in response to higher Liverpool cables and prospects of a governmental loan to farmers of around 13 cents per pound. October, 13.37; December, 13.51; January, 13.51; March, 13.68; May, 13.76; July, 13.82.

Trading was fairly active at the start. Buying by the trade and commission houses was supplied by southern selling and after advancing to 13.52 on the call, December reacted to 13.46, or within 5 points of yesterday's closing quotations.

Private reports that it was raining at Oklahoma City attracted some attention and the dip from the opening advance carried December off to 13.34, or within 3 points of yesterday's closing quotations. After buying at the opening Liverpool was credited with selling some cotton here on the differences and there was realizing or liquidation by some of yesterday's buyers, but the market steadied up again later in the morning on the firmness of the wheat and stock markets. At midday December was selling at 13.46 with the general list ruling about 4 to 6 points net higher.

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 21.—Cotton, 34,000 bales, including 1,300 bales American. Spot quiet; prices 13 points higher; quotations in pence: American strict good middling, 7.76; good middling, 7.46; strict middling, 7.31; middling, 7.16; strict low middling, 7.01; low middling, 6.81; strict good ordinary, 6.61; good ordinary, 6.31. Futures closed quiet. October, 6.90; December, 6.87; January, 6.88; March, 6.88; May, 6.88; July, 6.87.

COTTON OUTPUT DECREASES

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The Census Bureau announced today that on July 31 there were 30,937,816 cotton spinning spindles in place in the United States, of which 24,417,682 were operated at some time during the month, compared with 24,690,312 in June and 26,085,300 in July a year ago.

The cotton code limits the hours of employment and of productive machinery. However, in order that the statistics may be comparable with those for earlier months and years, the same method of computing the percentage of activity has been used. Computed on this basis the cotton spindles in the United States were operated during July, 1934, at 84.3 per cent capacity. This percentage compares with 72.7 for June, 98.2 for May, 104.5 for April, 102.9 for March, 101.5 for February, and 117.5 for July, 1933. The average number of active spindle hours per spindle in place for the month was 161.

BRIGHT FUTURE PREDICTED FOR RAILROADS

By MERRILL A. BOSSERT

Financial Writer.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—The public has been suffering from a swelled head of late, in the words of Ogden Nash.

Seeking to prevent the abatement of the malady, I have chatted with the [illegible] leaders of the three major railroad systems [illegible] what not [illegible] new order was.

First Mr. Bossert [illegible] Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific Railroad Company [illegible] to respond to the [illegible] words of caution—but, for private [illegible] not to admit that [illegible] out of school and [illegible] he said:

Mr. Bossert

"There is opportunity for bright, energetic and industrious young men in this industry.

"This opportunity will be more apparent as prosperity returns and capital is available for the vast self liquidating improvements that the railroads would like to make, and which they feel should in large measure be made out of surplus earnings rather than to further burden the capital structures, which might create a dangerous situation in future depressions, assuming that we ... re not yet found the panacea that will avoid the peaks and valleys of business activity."

In telling forth the thesis that the railroads are still in the [illegible] conservative period of technological progress and invention, Mr. Bossert revealed:

"The coming of the streamline train is only an incident in the marked progress of railroads. The railroads have made roadbeds, standardizing their roadbeds, standardizing their steel rail and improving and standardizing equipment of all kinds. Much of this has gone on quietly, and without a great deal of publicity.

"For instance, one of the greatest advances in railroading in modern times is that of automatic train control."

He described the advantages of this device in detail and pointed out other basic improvements. Of railroad speed he said:

"Today, speed on railroads is possible because of improved roadbeds. While the Diesel engine will do much and has had vast publicity, I venture to say that greater advance has been made in the modernization of the steam locomotive in the last few years than in any other mechanical device.

"There are engines that can easily travel 120 miles an hour. At the present time the only restraint on speed is the danger on surface crossings."

Many Changes in Europe, Plight of 'Have-Nots,' Urge Dole for U. S. New Social Legislation.

By B. C. FORBES

AN EMINENT British statesman warned the Kaiser, when war loomed in 1914, that if hostilities were launched many things might be changed.

Many things have been changed.

The changes affect not Europe alone but America.

Mr. Forbes

ON A sidewalk in Glasgow I read this, in bold chalk:

"During the war we were promised a land fit for heroes. We have a land full of paupers."

The most fundamental change wrought by the World War is the change in the attitude of the people and of governments towards the so-called "privileged classes."

IN NATION after nation the trend has been towards "social legislation," meaning measures to improve the lot of the ordinary people, the masses, usually at the expense of the wealthier citizens.

In other words the "have-nots" have been successfully demanding that the "haves" share more liberally with them.

THIS IS altogether desirable, providing the ultimate outcome makes for the greatest good of the greatest number.

But the final upshot does not promise to be pleasant unless far-sighted statesmanship rather than class hatred, Socialism, Communism shape and govern the transition, the transformation.

AS TOLD in this column yesterday, the writer became convinced during a visit to Europe that the day will come when the British and probably other governments now extending vast financial benefits to the masses through the virtual confiscation of accumulated wealth, will find that there are not left a sufficient number of fortunes to be heavily levied upon.

ALMOST EVERY responsible European I met this summer declared emphatically, "you in America must adopt an outright dole or something equivalent. No government can exist unless it takes sufficient care of its unemployed, of its masses, to keep them pacified so that they won't start trouble."

WHILE THE very idea of a dole is repugnant to self-respecting American citizens, the experiences of other and older nations should not be ignored by wealthy Americans, by American industry, by American business, by American employers.

INSTEAD OF blindly and unreasoningly opposing President Roosevelt's proposals for unemployment insurance, for old-age pensions and similar measures aimed at taking proper care of those unable to find opportunity to earn a living, our men of affairs should strive to bring about reasonable, workable, sustainable plans, plans not impossibly costly, plans calculated not to prove so burdensome as to end disastrously.

OUR GOVERNMENT must also think deeply, exercise statesmanship, look ahead, think things through.

Social legislation, like most material things in this workaday world, resolved itself into a question of cost. Can the necessary funds be permanently provided?

As I see it, this problem of cost cannot be solved unless and until industry and finance and business, the employing and investing classes, gain adequate confidence in the ability, the statesmanship, the wisdom, the foresight of the government.

THEREFORE, it would seem to me that the paramount duty of President Roosevelt and his advisors is to address themselves forthwith to taking every feasible step to encourage revival of confidence and business recovery.

Thus and thus only can the colossal bill of expenditures already made and still heavier expenditures contemplated, be effectively met.

AMERICA possesses adequate resources for every needful social purpose.

Do we possess the statesmanship needful to handle these resources successfully?

(Copyright, 1934, B. C. Forbes.)

Demand Deposits Rise During Week

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Net demand deposits of weekly reporting member banks in leading cities showed a sharp rise during the week ended August 15, as the change was measured by the Federal Reserve Board. In the table that follows the total of such loans is given for comparable periods, as announced by the board: week ended August 15, $12,827,000,000; preceding week, $12,721,000,000; same week last year, $10,363,000,000.

Santa Catharina To Pay Interest

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Holders of the state of Santa Catharina, Brazil, external 8 per cent bonds due in 1947, which went into default in 1929, have been notified by Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., as special agent, that pursuant to the recent governmental decree, 17½ per cent of the face amount of the August 1, 1934 coupons will be paid in cash. It is stated that such payments, if accepted, will constitute payment in full of such coupons.

TOURIST'S HELP ENGLAND'S TRADE

By JULIUS G. BURNS
Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—The moderate upturn in business activity in England, which some people have exaggerated into a boom, is due primarily to two factors:

1—England is enjoying the fruits of her depreciated pound, which has stimulated her foreign trade somewhat.

2—There is a substantially increased tourist traffic in England.

When I was in London this summer the city was packed with tourists. Even the most popular priced hotels were jammed to capacity and reservations had to be filed days and weeks in advance to secure accommodations.

GERMANS TOURIST

Not many American tourists were there, but a great many Germans. The Germans were by far the most numerous of all foreigners. In England—throughout Europe, the Germans are traveling in large numbers.

They obviously are running away from the mark. Some of them probably are getting their movable capital east of Germany by any means at their command, regardless of the severe restrictions against such exports of capital. Some Germans apparently are just anxious to get rid of marks, fearing what may happen in their homeland.

But to return to English conditions. Spending by tourists has given London trade a stimulant. This, with the benefit of the depreciated pound, provides the basic background for those upturn which England has experienced.

This stimulus, however, is hardly sufficient to be lasting in itself.

Outside of London, in the great manufacturing centers of England and Scotland, there depression is still very much evident.

MANY JOBLESS

Only a slight dent has been made in England's army of unemployed.

The editor of one leading newspaper boasted to me that "nobody is starving or begging here." Well, there are plenty of beggers and starvation is staved off by the dole. The editor admitted this but said the dole is cheaper in the long run than what the United States is attempting.

England not long ago increased the dole distributions and this was cheered by many as evidence of the national betterment. Another version, however, was furnished by a thinking young person who remarked:

"It's just another bone to the downtrodden; the government throws out talk of great improvement in conditions but this is mostly for effect, to keep the lower classes satisfied."

SENTIMENT BETTER

There is no question but that sentiment in England is vastly improved, business has been better in spots, but still lags far behind any kind of normal. In England a 5 per cent pickup in retail business, even from the depression dregs, is hailed as a most satisfactory development. In the United States a much greater improvemnt would be necessary to bring a cheer from the business community.

The British government, especially through the Chancellor of the Exchequer, who corresponds to our Secretary of the Treasury, has frequently boasted of great strides forward. This in large part is responsible for the belief that England has been enjoying a boom.

Yet from different of England's major industries the facts are simple to ascertain. Lord Aberconway, chairman of John Brown & Co., great shipbuilders, recently told his stockholders:

"There is no doubt that the shipbuilding industry as a whole remains at a very low ebb, as can be seen from a ministry of labour records. The numbers actually employed in British shipyards are now little more than one-third of the numbers employed either in the years immediately before or immediately after the war."

Winston Churchill, former chancellor of the exchequer and now in Parliament, referring specifically to the great Manchester textile area, said:

"Your (Manchester) affairs, no one can deny, are in a very serious and unfortunate condition. Only five years ago, Lancashire sold to India 1,500 million yards of cotton goods. She now sells little more than 500 million yards.

"The consequence of this appalling shrinkage can be realized by anyone who goes about and looks at the smokeless chimneys and closed mills, or at the queues of unemployed workers outside the labor exchanges. The question which must face us—whether this can be remedied or, at least prevented from going further—is one of vital interest and concern to this great city and to the cluster of cotton towns around it."

Plenty of similar evidence could be presented to offset the exaggerated stories of an English boom and the supposed complacency of England economically.

England has had some pickup from the bottom of the depression. So has the United States.

High Court Rejects National Surety Bid

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—An offer of $6,000,000 for the capital stock of the National Surety Company, made by the Haystone Securities Corporation, was refused today by Supreme Court Justice Louis A. Valente. Four appraisals of the value of the stock ranged from $8,749,940 to $6,502,927.

TOBACCO PRICES INCREASE

International News Service.

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 21.—Tobacco prices in the South Georgia farm belt maintained an average price last week of 14.38 cents a pound, almost 5 cents above the average the same week last year, it was revealed today in a report released by the State Department of Agriculture.

Ten of the warehouses where the sales were being conducted were closed during the week and the remainder, with the exception of those in Tifton and Douglas, will be closed during this week.

Those closing last week were at Adel, Baxley, Hahira, Hazlehurst, Metter, Pelham.

The drop in price the third week of the market was caused, the report said, by the inferior grade of tobacco placed on sale.

During the week 6,898,032 pounds of the leaf were placed on sale.

RFC GETS BIDS FOR BONDS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Substantial premiums were offered the Reconstruction Finance Corporation yesterday for a group of municipal bonds held by the Public Works Administration.

Bids were opened on about $5,000,000 of bonds which the RFC offered as a part of its effort to provide $250,000,000 additional funds for public works.

The bonds included a group of municipal issues accepted by PWA as collateral for loans to various cities and counties.

Included also were two railroad issues. A bid on one of these was slightly below par.

LIST FOLLOWS RAIL, METAL LEADERSHIP

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Stocks took a fourth for the better today and while there was no pronounced buying rush, recoveries of 1 to 2 or more points were scattered throughout the list and the activity was considerably ahead of yesterday's.

Rails and metals led the reversal of the slipping movement and most other groups followed more or less cautiously. Commission house commentators attributed the improved tone partly to technical factors and to rumors that some "good news" was about to break at Washington. There were few actual developments which might have spurred equities to brisker deeds.

Grains and cotton continued to push forward under the influence of strength in foreign markets, but profit-taking pared extreme advances in most staples. Hogs at Chicago climbed to another new peak since 1933. Some secondary bonds recorded substantial gains, but United States government securities were heavy. Foreign exchanges were quiet and somewhat irregular.

The thinness of the equities market was the subject of much discussion in commission houses and on the stock exchange floor. The spread in bid and offer quotations was such, as one broker expressed it, that "you can't either buy or sell them." Professional leadership, however, was said to be still lacking and public participation was of an extremely careful character.

Wall street appeared to be highly confused in its interpretation of charts and lines which are supposed, under normal circumstances, to indicate which way the market cat may jump.

While business sentiment was found to be rather cloudy at the moment and in some quarters no important trade revival was expected until next spring at the earliest, the thought was expressed by various analysts that there was little probability of a serious slump in view of the government's wide powers to check a decline through heavier expenditures and control of credit.

Although inflationists in the financial district maintain that the administration will be forced ultimately to apply the needle, no immediate step in this direction was expected. It was pointed out that scarcity, due largely to the drought, in forcing commodity prices rapidly toward the 1926 level at which the government experts had been shooting and that consumer complaints against the mounting cost of living have already begun to disturb the Washington authorities.

CHINA EXPORTS SILVER

SHANGHAI, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Silver consignments valued at $50,000,000, the heaviest outflow from China this year, were shipped to London and New York over the week-end by Shanghai banks.

Since August 1 nearly $100,000,000 in silver has left the country, nearly twice the total of the shipments in the preceding seven months.

The Chinese national government let it be known when the United States nationalized silver recently that if an exodus of the metal from the country reached alarming proportions an embargo would be placed upon it.

Stock Exchange Seats Unchanged

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Arrangements have been made for the sale of a New York Stock Exchange membership at $95,000, which price is unchanged from the last previous transaction.

LEGAL

OFFICIAL—COUNTY

Pittsburgh, Pa., August 21, 1934.

Separate sealed proposals will be received at the office of the Controller of Allegheny County, until 11:00 o'clock a. m. eastern standard time (12:00 o'clock noon daylight saving time), Tuesday, August 28, 1934, for the following:

ELECTRO GALVANIZED PARK AND PADDOCK FENCE WITH GATES, POSTS AND COMPLEMENTARY FITTINGS.

Special bidding blanks and envelopes for use of bidders, instructions and conditions regulating bidding, specifications, form of bond which successful bidder must furnish may be had upon application at the office of the Department of Property and Supplies, Room 207, Courthouse, Pittsburgh, Penna.

Proposals must be accompanied by a certified check or bond in the amount set forth in Instructions to Bidders, as evidence that the bidder will accept and carry out the conditions of the contract in case of award.

The County Commissioners reserve the right to reject any and all bids.

ROBT. G. WOODSIDE,
County Controller.

OFFICIAL—PITTSBURGH

PITTSBURGH, Pa., August 21, 1934.

Separate and sealed proposals will be received at the office of the City Controller, First Floor, City-County Building, until 10 o'clock a. m. eastern standard time, Thursday, September 6, 1934, and will be publicly opened and read one hour later in the City Council Chamber for the construction of an incinerator plant on city owned property adjacent to the Brilliant Pumping Station and for the construction of an incinerator plant in the Twenty-first Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, and providing for the equipment in connection with the same.

Specifications, addenda to specifications, plans and blank proposals can be obtained at the City Architect's Office, 501-A, City-County Building. Contractors will be required to deposit a certified check in the sum of $50.00, made payable to the Treasurer, City of Pittsburgh, for each set of plans and specifications, which check will be returned upon the return of the plans and specifications to the City Architect's Office.

Each proposal must be accompanied by a bond in the sum of 50 per cent of the estimated cost of the work. The bond shall be of a surety company which has complied with the city ordinance with reference to furnishing bonds for contracts. Bidder's attention is directed to a provision of the contract requiring a separate bond indemnifying labour and material liability, which shall be given by the successful bidder when contract is executed and the bond indemnifying labour and material shall be given in the sum of 50 per cent of the amount of the successful bidder's contract.

Bidders are notified herewith that the acceptance of bids or the award of the contract for Plant "A" is contingent upon the city acquiring the site for Plant "A," located in the Twenty-first Ward of the City of Pittsburgh.

The city reserves the right to award one contract or both, as may be to the best interest of the City of Pittsburgh.

The Mayor and the Director of the Department of Public Health reserve the right to reject any or all bids submitted or accept any proposal, if they deem it to be for the interest of the City of Pittsburgh so to do.

WILLIAM N. McNAIR, Mayor,
DR. RAY P. MOYER, Director.

Cast Into Eden

By HENRY C. ROWLAND

CHAPTER XXVIII

"What made you think that we were here, sir?" Jerome asked.

"I was in San Cristobal when you jumped ship. That sailor really had spotted fever, typhus. They asked me to see him and the other fellow aboard. Though retired I am an authority on tropic fevers, having lived 30 years on this coast. My family are ship owners of Amsterdam and I look after the Caribbean trade. The sailor aboard had nothing. The quartermaster told me of your flight and that you were bound down the coast to the next port, San Mateo. As there was no report of you in San Mateo, I decided you had got in trouble and were off one of the many islands. Then your boat was brought in with a collision mat rigged. That was a couple of days ago. Then I felt sure that you were here."

"Why, Doctor?" Linda asked.

"Call it deduction. I saw the boat. The collision mat could not have been rigged without breaching the boat, as she would have filled too quickly. But if she were beached then why were you not in her? The leak was stopped enough, and there had been no more squalls. I knew that Cram was an ex-Navy officer, and a sailor would not leave a boat improperly secured. Therefore somebody had set her adrift. Only a child or a half-wit would do a thing like that. I thought of many apes. Then I found the grapnel line had been broken by a mighty tug that had snapped a piece of new nine-thread hemp. You could have swung the boat in air with such a strength. So I came to investigate."

Tells of Strange Tree

Linda asked: "Do you often leave the place so unprotected?"

"No. Mateo and a boy or two are always here. This time I was delayed by a matter of business, trying to find a trustworthy person to manage things while I go to Holland. Mateo was to be fitted with an artificial hand. Besides, it would not have been safe to leave him here alone." The Jehovan face darkened.

"Why not?" Linda asked.

"That is a curious matter you may find difficult to believe. Years ago I found in our Dutch Papua, New Guinea, a very rare and gorgeous fruit that was strange to me, and I am a botanist. The natives worshipped the tree, which is nothing singular as they are apt to worship anything. I was told that it always bore seven fruits, which ripened successively a week later."

He paused. Linda asked: "Are there many such trees?"

"No. I never saw but the one. It was partly in bud when I was there and my information was mere native talk. If left to ripen and rot on the tree it produced a single seed, like a mango. I secured three of them with great difficulty. When some time later I acquired this island I planted one of these seeds, but it did not grow . . ." he looked from one to the other . . . "for seven years."

Neither spoke. Dr. Van Dieman continued: "Then one day I noticed on the spot where I had planted the seed a little shoot with the leaves identical to those of the tree in Papua. I had photographed it. The tree grew and thrived and in another seven years produced fruit for the first time. Seven of the beautiful fruits. Last year was the first time it bore. I told Mateo about it and he painted a sign of warning and attached it to the tree. While he was doing so the big bull ape approached him in a very threatening fashion. This angered Mateo as the apes had always been afraid of him. He had trained them from infancy. Mateo got his shambok and lashed at the impudent fellow. The ape grabbed him by the wrist and bit off part of his hand. I was obliged to amputate it at the wrist."

Learned Lesson

Jerome then told him about the visit of Capt. Moriarty and his crew. The doctor frowned.

"I don't know who that could have been. Everybody on this part of the coast knows about me and this island, and respects my privacy. These rascals must have drifted through from some distant part of the littoral and heard of your presumed loss. However, they seem to have learned their lesson. By the way, have you young people breakfasted?"

"Not yet," Linda said. "If you'll excuse me I'll get. . . ."

He interrupted: "Nothing of the sort. We shall breakfast on my cruiser yacht. I ran out here merely to satisfy my mind about you two. We can be in St. Cristobal in four hours and relieve the anxiety of your friends."

He stepped across to the front door and looked inside the house, then entered. Jerome followed with some misgiving. Doctor Van Dieman was examining the dory. He looked at Jerome and laughed.

"My word, but you are a master craftsman. This is a beautiful boat. Light and strong and seaworthy. Zo . . . but the workmanship is of the best. But if you were as good a house architect as you are a naval one, you and your sinless Eve would not have had to suffer for lack of the conventional creature comforts."

"How is that, sir . . .?"

"You should have noticed that the empty room where I do my writing during my sojourn here on San Diego Island is not rectangular, but has a corner cut off on the front and inside, thus leaving a large triangular space unaccounted for. Look here . . ."

He stepped to the corner of the big room between it and the barely furnished study. A long mirror was fastened there against the mahogany sheathing. Dr. Van Dieman pressed against the butt of one of these planks. It sank in a little, thrusting out the frame of the mirror that reached to within two feet of the floor.

Reveals Closet

A large closet was revealed. It appeared to be filled with tropical clothes of different sorts that were on hangers and neatly folded on shelves. A light mattress was rolled and secured in one of the closet corners, and there was an array of shoes. A pungent spicy smell of camphor and sandal and eucalyptus emerged.

"That is where I stow my wearing gear," said the doctor. "You see, young friends, this island is for me like one of the camps of you American millionaires. I run out here for a week, a month, as my affairs permit. I am direktor, superintendent . . . whatever you choose to call it . . . of our shipping agencies all round the Caribbean. I make tours of inspection in my express cruiser yacht. Now that trade is dull, I am trying to work out some old-fashioned scheme of barter to revive it. As soon as I can find the right man to replace me for the next year or two I shall return to Holland and take up the plan with my company."

Linda, behind him and beside Jerome, asked smoothly: "Just what sort of a man do you need, Dr. Van Dieman?"

"What sort?" He turned and his cobalt eyes looked deeply into her cool grey ones. "Zo. I need a man who knows ships and port conditions and trade and who knows not only the Spanish language but Spanish methods, and who can translate manana into P. D. Q. I need a man who knows how to give orders as well as to obey them, and who may be able to combine high-pressure activity with reasonable patience. Most of all he must be a man of principles that are backed by tradition—in other words, a gentleman. But his principles must still be of an elasticity that may enable him to function honestly and at the same time not giving offense to people whose ideas of honesty are temperamental, and whose code of honor is curiously complicated with what is felt to be their just and proper perquisite."

Synopsis

Jerome Cram, young naval architect, and a beautiful society girl, named Linda, land on a strange island in the Caribbean after having fled from a quarantined yacht. Their skiff is set adrift and their clothes stolen. Intermittently blood-curdling cries come from the jungle. They find a well-kept though deserted plantation and take refuge in a small house there. That night, Linda's slip is torn off by some unseen creature and again the eerie scream is heard. The mystery of the prowlers clears with the appearance of a mother and father gorilla, their cub and another hairy monster. Jerome recites poetry and feeds the animals sugar water to keep them from getting vicious. The dislike which Linda and Jerome had for one another changes to admiration. They discover a strange tree full of luscious fruit. A sign promises dire punishment to any who touch it. The gorilla chases them from the tree. Jerome and Linda confess their love for each other. Jerome finds tools and builds boat. Linda, Eve-like, gives Jerome juice of forbidden fruit. They hear a commotion in the jungle. A band of rough looking sailors arrives and the captain demands Jerome and Linda las appear and they flee. Linda dons wedding gown she found in chest. Duenno arrives.

Now Go On

Junior Patrol Mail Box

It's not too early to remind you about the free county fair, fellows!

It starts at South Park at the fair grounds next Tuesday, but a week from today, and lasts a week. On view will be all kinds of Allegheny County products, especially horses, cattle, fruit, vegetables and almost everything that grows or is raised on a farm.

One exhibit will show displays of tropical fish. And there will be a horse show, dog show and a field meet with running races and all. Drum and bugle corps will drill, and polo teams will play. And it's all free. We hope you and your family can go.

A new captain is Helen Martin of 301 Hemlock street, North Side. She writes:

"I am a girl 12 years of age and would like to have a Junior Patrol Club of my own. I have 10 members and they have voted me captain. Please send me a captain's badge and membership cards."

Righto, Helen, they will be on their way soon.

And another new Captain is Robert Cleis, of R. D. No. 2, New Brighton, Pa.

Here is a nice letter we got the other day:

"I am Arlene Colyer who won first prize in the "Pet" letter contest. I am sick in bed and I have been in bed since the first of June. I always read the Junior Patrol comic strip. And on Saturday night when I was reading I looked to see who won the prizes. When I saw I won first prize I jumped up and down in the bed. I am going to try some more of the contests an hope to win. Even if I just win a dollar. I will try to be a good Junior Patrol member and live up to the pledge."

We're glad winning made you so happy, Arlene. And we surely hope you will write some more letters—as many as you want.

Life for a Life

Daily Short Short-Story

By CUSHING F. WRIGHT

The benefit ball for the free dispensary was about over. Dr. John Lawrence, spectacled, genial stocky of figure, stood in one of the wide doorways, and chatting with his friend Elbry Hemmingway, chief of staff at St. Luke's. Pierrots, Spanish dancers, tramps, princesses, and court jesters were beginning to trickle past them toward the checkroom. He stopped talking as a laughing, black-haired young man came along.

"Dick," he asked, stopping him with a tap on the shoulder, "would you mind taking your mother home? There isn't much left to chaperone, and I'd like to see a patient at St. Luke's before I turn in."

"Sure, Dad," the young man's smiling glance took in both the older men.

Dr. Hemmingway looked at his watch. "I thought I'd drop down there, too, John," he said. "If you'll taxi me we can go together."

Lawrence shook his head at the tall, gray-haired, tired-looking man who had taught him so much of what he knew. "I'd rather taxi you home to bed," he said concernedly, for he didn't like the message his eyes had been reading of late in the other's face.

The older man smiled quietly. "Come on," he said, slipping his hand inside Lawrence's arm. "As long as I am working I don't think too much."

Neither was in costume, and they got their hats from the checkroom and descended to the street, where Dr. Hemmingway dismissed his chauffeur. He waited while Dr. Lawrence retrieved his car from a parking station.

Lawrence found his patient asleep, apparently doing very well, and didn't waken him. Walking back down the darkened corridor to the lighted floor-desk at the intersection of the two third-floor halls, he asked for the temperature chart, and was looking it over when the desk phone buzzed. The night nurse answered, then glanced up at him.

"Dr. Hemmingway wants you in the operating room at once, Dr. Lawrence," he said.

"Wants me?" He took a quick look at the watch on his wrist. "What's wrong?"

The nurse shook her head. "It must be that ambulance case. One came in a few moments ago."

In another minute he was in the surgeon's dressing room, washing his hands with carbolic soap, and a moment later, his white gown covering him from neck to shoes, he entered the operating room.

A figure lay on the narrow table directly underneath the lights, sheet-covered except for a foot-square area where the operation was progressing. At its head, his white cone covering the patient's face, stood the anesthetist, and at one side, flanked by a nurse, Dr. Hemmingway's tall spare figure bent over the table.

"Ah, John, I'm glad you're here," he said. He spoke quietly, scarcely pausing in his work. Lawrence glanced at the pale concentrated face, and then his eyes began to follow the strong hands, black and shining in rubber gloves, as they moved swiftly and deftly, busy with sutures and clips.

"Internal hemorrhage—bleeding to death. Some poor devil walking the streets—hit by a car. They just got him here in time."

The work went on in silence and it was as the fingers were busy with a knot that Lawrence saw them falter, and Hemmingway said: "Take this—suture, plea——" He didn't finish. Raising his eyes Lawrence saw him slowly straighten—his face ghastly. A clenched fist pressed against his breast and the gauze shield before his mouth sucked in. "Heart," he whispered. As he swayed the nurse caught him in her arms and they sank together to the floor.

Johon Lawrence held the suture in his fingers, stemmed the flow of blood in a ruptured vessel.

"Restoratives — quick!" he barked, and then, as though a curtain had been jerked across a window, his face became a mask and he went on, quietly, dextrously; his hands, seemingly of their own volition, taking up the task where Hemmingway had left off. "A life for a life"—the ironic conception kept forcing itself upon him as he worked. "A friend's life"—Hemmingway's life for a bum picked up on the street.

When he had finished he waved the patient away, hardly conscious of the rolling stretcher as he hurried to his friend. They had got him to a lounge in the surgeon's dressing room, near the operating room. An interne was there and two nurses and they had done what they could. But when Lawrence reached him there was nothing any man could do for him more.

"Leave me with him," he told the other, "it's all over."

Then he pulled himself together and took off the white operating gown that he was wearing and, getting his coat from a closet, slipped it on. He wondered if Mrs. Hemmingway would still be awake. She'd have to be told.

He left the room and was walking down the corridor, when a nurse came up to him. "The patient has come out from under the anaesthetic, doctor," she said. "Would you care to see him?"

The charity ward was on the second floor and he walked down and through the door, the nurse at his side. Passing inside the screen, his mind filled with what he had been through, he stopped suddenly, and passed a hand across his eyes. The dark curly head on the pillow turned slowly.

"Hello, dad," said a weak voice. "Didn't take you long to get here. Got hit—walking to garage—to get my car. Guess they thought I was a tramp—in that getup," and a smile flickered in his eyes as he glanced past the screen at the long row of iron cots.

Tomorrow: "Blue Ribbon Story," by Helen Dickson, tells how a young writer went to the attic of the family home and while looking through an old trunk came across a manuscript in the handwriting of his mother. He took the story to a publisher as his own and learned a chapter out of his mother's life.

COOK-COOS

By TED COOK

Representative Snovich of New York has composed the following anthem—

For our nation's noble statesmen,
To them Congress of the U. S. A.,
To those real, unselfish great men
Let's give thanks to them each time we pray!
They stand for liberty and fight for justice
With special privilege to none, they say.
In war or peace time our faithful servant is the Congress of the U. S. A.

Rep. Snovich is all right as far as he goes—but there ought to be more verses. Perhaps a second verse might go something like this—

Yes, indeed, our noble statesmen,
The Congressmen of the U. S. A.,
Never flinch or hesitate when
Given an opportunity to bray!
They stand for hours, and the people stand for a lot
From these giant midgets with extremities of clay
Who insist on being heard particularly when they have nothing to say.

VICTOR DID IT! SO CAN YOU.

These are times when courage, clear-thinking, determination, a big thick steak, a 12-cylinder motor car and a mild cigar go a long way toward creating the victorious attitude necessary to combat life's complexities. The triumph of Victor B. Doakes is an inspiring example to the defeated man. After long years of service as a railway executive at a salary of $55,000 a year, he suddenly found himself pensioned at $15,000 a year. Many men, discouraged by such a turn, would have given up in despair, and contented themselves with riding around the country on a railroad pass. But not Doakes. Rubbing the palms of his hands and rocking from heel to toe, he began to think as no man has ever thought before. In six weeks he had organized, operated and disposed of the common stock in the first up-to-date plant in this country to manufacture and sell spats direct to the consumer. And now he is having the time of his life preparing to go into production on a pneumatic extension thumb for hitch hikers.

Cabinet Making and Breaking

That old versatile French cabinet can always be depended to supply enough history to make a thin book very thick.

It's like a boat in the storm. It rises and it falls. It veers and it dips. And everybody in it rocks themselves silly.

Every few months it ships a new crew. No cabinet member has to bother much about resigning. If he takes out runs in his swivel chair. He becomes the victim of centrifugal force. Out he goes, ready or not, hot or cold or right or wrong.

That hitching torment could have happened to place bet in France. Remember the Bayonne business? Something about public mail clerks and coin gaming. When it shocked on its tongue like a frightful on a wharf its whisky rasp chilling its whiskers for miles around.

The French public has skewered for a couple of million francs' hot enough to cook-plate a sheriff's badge. Yet, there were riots in Paris, slugging in Lyons and shootings in the malcontented suburbs. The cabinet resigned in a body and was carried out on its stretchers with its feet hanging over.

And all because of reportings in a pawn shop. Could that happen in England? Could it happen in America? No! Our French desks don't go into those kind of places.

We admit that most nations could be improved by some important resignations. But, only in France are they demanded as aperitifs before breakfast, dinner and supper. Only in France are they so fickle that public officials ride to work on bicycles and never get off.

That nation is never concerned about the successor in office so long as the old occupant screams quick and pretty. It operates on the theory that any change is bound to be an improvement.

There is an expert French artist, who paints names on glass, now existing in luxury in Paris. And he makes a nimble living lettering on the cabinet door alone. He sleeps in the corridor and hangs his clothes on the doorknob.

Last year he took 24 hours off to go fishing. With the result that one entire French administration was anonymous.

It was appointed and resigned incognito, obscure and unrecorded.

That's politics of the morning glory brand. We don't care for May fly diplomacy, born with the sun and dead with the twilight. But it's the French spirit. Volatile, impetuous and excitable. Generous to a fault, but miserly to ability.

THE French philosopher, Pascal, in a famous passage from his reflections — "Pensees," he called them — beheld mankind as manacled and kneeling on the sands by the sea, awaiting the executioner's stroke.

This gloomy vision of the human lot might serve as a fair description of the present plight of every American who still has a dollar which he has earned and saved. The rapacious designs of his government upon the savings of the people, or what is left of them, is a tolerable substitute for any executioner one ever heard of.

Spend—then LEVY! Spend—we can always TAKE! Spend—there's no limit to TAXES! Thus saith the New Deal!

TAXATION, in the last analysis, seems to be the ultimate expedient of the New Deal!

Of course, excessive taxation is not a formula of recovery.

Excessive taxation throttles recovery at its inception and blasts every hope of it.

Excessive taxation is a formula of catastrophe,—catastrophe reaching into every business and profession; into every shop and dwelling; into every home in the land, including the humblest.

Excessive taxation is THE SURE FORERUNNER OF NATIONAL COLLAPSE.

WE READ of this mill or that, of a factory here and a factory there, being shut down and thousands thrown out of work. Why, of course—the depression is retreating slowly, we are apt to think. Such setbacks are normal. But this is not the true situation. The real facts are not perceived.

In most of such cases the shutdown is due to the heavy burden of the government's interference with private business and individual initiative; the incessant friction of fool regulations,—trivial, blind, senseless bureaucratic rules; the displacement of managers, who understand business, by administrators and code authorities, summoned at random from the byways of failure and incapacity, who know nothing about business and never will.

But above all, IT IS TAXATION, EXCESSIVE, BOTH ACTUAL AND THREATENED, WHICH IS STRANGLING BUSINESS!

IT IS excessive taxation which undermines confidence—that general confidence which is so vital to our national well-being, notwithstanding the President's slighting references to it in his Green Bay speech.

It is excessive taxation which chills initiative and stops recovery in its tracks—punishing the industrious, robbing the thrifty and making mock of all the virtues of sane living.

The administration, unable to control its expenditures, can think of but one way to meet them, and that is by the insensate boosting of taxation!

THE other day it was related of an important merchant that he had retired from business, unable longer to combat an administration which was determined to put him out of business.

The margin left him after the payment of his taxes was insufficient to offset normal annual losses, to say nothing of a return on necessary capital and a reasonable wage for the labor involved in conducting the business.

Such cases are innumerable. They are reported from every section of the country.

A lawyer, of wide fame, announced recently his withdrawal from the practice of his profession.

He found himself obliged to pay IN TAXES, two out of every three dollars he earned. He was unwilling in these distressful days to charge his clients at the rate which would be necessary to afford him a return for his exertions, and TWICE THE AMOUNT FOR TAXES.

THE resolute business man who fights on against the rising flood of difficulties, which today retards all business, finds that he has to bear the added burden of the taxation which less resolute, but perhaps more judicious, competitors avoid by curtailing operations or putting up their shutters altogether.

And so, like a killing blight, the program of suicidal taxation spreads over the country, bringing with each day that passes, further areas of hopeful business possibilities and potential recovery under its fatal shadow.

The spending, however, goes on!

When will it end—when will it even slacken?

IS IT surprising that capital, which under normal conditions could do so much to quicken recovery, crouches in fear and uncertainty, unwilling to run the gauntlet between the confiscation on the one hand which calls itself redistribution of wealth, and the confiscation which calls itself taxation?

Some day even government circles in the United States will learn again that prosperity depends on business activity, upon the wealth which business creates and upon the distribution of it by means of that wide and diffused employment which can only be achieved through the recovery OF BUSINESS, BY BUSINESS, AND FOR BUSINESS.

After all it is BUSINESS which is the rock of a modern nation's strength!

Hasty Marriages Risky

Licenses Should Not Be Granted Until Several Days After Application

The recent nocturnal elopement of a Pittsburgh couple to Wellsburg, W. Va., followed immediately by remorse and talk of an annulment, is far from being an isolated case.

Our divorce courts hear many such a story.

Wellsburg elopements are often sequels to gin parties. The young people become intoxicated, throw discretion to the winds, and on a sudden impulse get married—only to repent of their folly when they regain sobriety.

The preventive measure is obvious. All the states should require, as some already do, that several days shall elapse between the filing of an application and the issuance of a marriage license.

Pending the enactment of such legislation, is it too much to ask that court clerks and clergymen at our Gretna Greens place a curb on their greed for fees and refuse to assist in the marriage of juvenile, or intoxicated, or midnight elopers?

Since such elopements so often result in misery, to help them is not a kindness but may be a heartless action.

McNair and Morals Court

The Mayor's Usurpation of Authority Puts Ammunition in His Enemies' Hands

Mayor W. N. McNair issues a bland ukase which amounts in effect to a repeal of the ordinance setting forth what kinds of cases are to be tried in Morals Court.

How is this usurpation of the legislative power to be regarded? With amusement, with contempt, with disgust, or with indignation?

Social workers are up in arms about it, saying it will cripple their efforts.

Certainly it looks as if the Mayor were lacking in sympathy for women with drunken husbands.

His enemies will rejoice in this fresh evidence of incapacity to govern wisely. It puts ammunition in their hands.

The Law's Delay

The Old Question of How to Expedite the Courts' Business Is Up Again

Judge James H. Gray, of Common Pleas Court, revives the old question: How can the work of the courts be accelerated?

In Allegheny County it takes 18 months to bring a civil suit to trial. Judge Gray says—and everybody whose opinion is worth anything will agree with him—that it ought not to take more than six months. With delay witnesses disappear, memories fade, and injustice is done.

Senator James J. Coyne proposed several years ago to add two seats to the bench of Common Pleas Court. But a clamor of opposition arose, on the grounds that his principal motive was to provide additional jobs for his henchmen, that the new judges' salaries would add to the taxpayers' burden, and that with the employment of visiting judges the courts' business could be expedited without increasing the judiciary. This fresh complaint about the law's delay suggests that Senator Coyne's idea may not have been so bad after all.

There is, however, one thing that we would like to see done before adding to the number of our judges—and that is, have the courts run during the summer the same as at other seasons of the year.

Private business is not suspended during warm weather, and there is no good reason why the public business should be.

The custom of closing the courts during the summer is a relic of oxcart days, when the population was largely agricultural and the farmers could not conveniently leave their work in the field to serve on juries. It should be abandoned, with other relics of oxcart government.

An Impertinent Question

But Many Are Asking

We see by the papers that the Government has appointed a board to take over the hides of cattle which have been slaughtered in the name of recovery.

We wonder how soon it will appoint a board to take over the hides of taxpayers who seem destined for the same fate.

Human Side of the News -:- By Edwin C. Hill

Hexerei, or Witchcraft, a Relic of the Middle Ages, Is Believed in by Thousands of Pennsylvanians, Despite Punishment, Prosecution and Publicity.

PUNISHMENT, prosecution and publicity do not appear to have fully accomplished their purpose of ridding the United States of the last form of witchcraft among its white inhabitants. It exists in the mountains of Eastern Pennsylvania, brought there by settlers from Germany and handed down to their descendants. Two happenings make it news of the day, one the commutation of the life sentence of a 19-year-old youth, who, at the age of 14, was convicted of the murder of a witch. The other is the slaying of a 62-year-old woman by a man of 73, who believed that she conjured a spirit to bedevil him.

This form of sorcery, called hexerei, is traced back to the Middle Ages, to Albertus Magnus of fact and to the Fausts and Merlins of legend. Thousands of persons in a half a dozen counties of Pennsylvania believe in it and in so doing and practising are not unlike the Voodoo worshippers of West Africa and Haiti, the devil cult of Tibet and the witch-ridden peasants of sections of eastern Europe.

Hexerei 'Bible' 200 Years Old

THERE IS A similarity among them in spells, charms and incantations. When a "hex" is put upon a person, it is his immediate duty to consult a "pow-wow doctor," of whom there are many in the affected districts. The doctor delves into the "bible" of hexerei, a book written 200 years ago, and prescribes the treatment.

In most cases the cure is ludicrous, in other it is gruesome, and in still others it is tragic. These "pow-wow doctors" constitute a grave menace to their communities in that they substitute voodooism for scientific medical treatment in the ordinary diseases, especially among the children.

Not a few records tell of the deaths of children whose parents followed such prescriptions from the pow-wows as the following:

For whooping cough: Drop the child in the grain hopper at the mill.

For loss of weight: Boil an egg in rain water which has been obtained before sunrise, pierce it with holes and permit the ants to eat it. This charm will affect a cure.

For teething: Rub the gums with the boiled brain of a rabbit.

The celebrated "hex" trial in York, Pa., in 1929 resulted in three convictions for murder and served to attract general attention to the practice.

One John Blymyer, 35 years old, himself a "pow-wow doctor," believed himself under a spell which was slowly killing him. On the witness stand he told of consulting a dozen sorcerers and finally a hooked-nose old woman named Mrs. Noll, high priestess of the cult. She told him he was bewitched by Nelson Rehmeyer, a recluse farmer. The following, a transcript of part of the court record with Blymyer answering the questions of his attorney, is most illuminating as to the ways of witch doctors:

"Show the court what she did with the dollar bill."

"She put it on my hand and said some words. I looked down in my hand and there I could see Nelson Rehmeyer."

"What did you say then?"

"I asked her what would break the spell. She told me to get the book, 'The Long Lost Friend', from Rehmeyer, or a lock of his hair."

"Did she know that Rehmeyer had such a book?"

"She must have. She told me to get the book."

Blymyer went on to tell how with 18-year-old Clayton Hess and 14-year-old John Curry, he drove out to Rehmeyer's home for the book or the lock of hair, the burial of either of which was to free him of all his ills, real and imaginary.

But Rehmeyer would give up neither the book nor the lock. They fought, and the old man was beaten to the earth with sticks, trussed up and left to die when his house was set afire. The thin, pale-faced Blymyer took his conviction calmly.

"I am happy now," he said. "I am bewitched no longer. I can eat and sleep and I am not pining away."

Sentence Reduced To 10 Years

THE 14-YEAR-OLD accomplice, John Curry, who played a prominent part in the actual killing, is the recipient of the commutation of sentence recently granted by the State Parole Board and Gov. Pinchot. Instead of life imprisonment he must serve 10 years. Five have already passed and in another five he will be eligible for parole.

Similar to the Blymyer case is that of the murder of Mrs. Susan Mummay by Albert Shinsky on March 18th of this year.

Shinsky shot her through the window of her home because "eight years ago she brought down a spirit from the sky which has kept me ill, tired and depressed ever since." He had had a dispute with the woman over the ownership of some land and the "spell that she put upon him robbed him of all initiative and caused a great black cat with green eyes to visit him twice a month and tear at his sides. When seven "pow-wow doctors" could do nothing for him, he decided upon the murder.

Will Rogers Says:

Will Rogers

HARDIN, Manchuria, Aug. 21.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

I see by the papers that Huey Long decided in favor of Paraguay and got a fort named after him down there. I guess these folks heard about a big island near New York named for Long where there was a battle not long ago. If Huey will intervene over here right quick, I think I can get a country and two miles of railroad named after him.

Yours, WILL.

Government Policies Show Inconsistencies

By James T. Williams, Jr.

WHAT WAS ONCE said of the potentates of Europe can be said with equal truth of the government of politicians, by politicians, for politicians which the American people are getting today from the spoilsmen of politics on the payroll of their federal, state, county and local governments.

There is one passage in the scripture to which the spoilsmen all seem to have given their unanimous consent and approbation, and to have studied so thoroughly as to have it quite at their fingers ends:

"There went out a decree in the days of Claudius Caesar, that all the world should be taxed."

Widows Lose Homes For Tax Delinquency

THERE IS ONE tragic spectacle which these depression years have brought to every corner of the country, to every state in the union, to every county in every state. It is vividly described by a citizen of Pennsylvania in a letter to a Washington newspaper in which he says:

"Throughout this part of the country tax sales are being held, and aged couples, widows with small children are being turned out and having their homes sold. Many of these are farm homes where the owners could maintain themselves, but could not, under present conditions, pay taxes. In many cases it is pitiful in the extreme and the average amount of overdue taxes is less than $100.

"At the same time we read in a recent issue of the Saturday Evening Post that society, through our present administration, is spending as much as $7,500 each in subsistence homes at Reedsville, West Virginia, these to be turned over to deserving citizens and paid for at some future time.

"Is there not something amiss with a society which turns one good citizen out of his home, in which he has a considerable investment, for a paltry sum of less than $100 in overdue taxes, while another citizens is provided with a home at a cost of $7,500 in which he has not one nickel invested?"

This question has yet to be answered by government. In fact the whole problem of increasing taxation seems more and more to be dodged by the politicians who seek office and the politicians who feed themselves and their heelers at the public trough.

The urgent necessity for tax reform is not something that has developed since the depression years following the last economic crisis began.

Coolidge Reduced Federal Taxes

WHEN CALVIN COOLIDGE entered the White House after the death of President Harding the question of reducing federal taxes was the first to which he addressed himself. He had made great progress in that direction by the time he became President in his own right and in his inaugural address he returned to this all-important question.

After reminding his countrymen that the government no longer needed war-time revenues for its support the newly elected President said in his inaugural address on March 4, 1925:

"The collection of any taxes which are not absolutely required, which do not beyond reasonable doubt contribute to the public welfare, is only a species of legalized larceny.

"Under the republic the rewards of industry belong to those who earn them. The only constitutional tax is the tax which ministers to public necessity.

"The time is arriving when we can have fuurther tax reduction, when unless we wish to hamper the people in their right to earn a living, we must have tax reform.

"The method of raising revenue ought not to impede other transactions of business, it ought to encourage it.

"I am opposed to extremely high rates, because they produce little or no revenue, because they are bad for the country, and finally, because they are wrong.

"We cannot finance the country, we cannot improve social conditions, through any system of injustice, even if we attempt to inflict it upon the rich. Those who suffer the most harm will be the poor.

"The wise and correct course to follow in taxation and all other economic legislation is not to destroy those who have already secured success but to create conditions under which every one will have a better chance to be successful."

These maxims might well be carried in letters of stone on every state house, county courthouse, and town hall in the Union.

These warning words of Calvin Coolidge express the sentiments today of all sorts and conditions of honest Americans who are packing the burden of unjust and exorbitant taxes piled on them by the political spoilsmen of both parties.

SCHOOL FOR MOVIES

By Winifred Black

Correct speech taught in the public schools—so that's what you want, Mr. Cecil de Mille, of the pictures?

You've even written to well-known educators about it, have you?"

Well, well! What next?

The first thing we know you'll be expecting the schools to teach the alphabet, and how to spell, and how to punctuate, and how to address a letter, and how to add up a few simple figures, and how to write a readable hand, and a little plain geography, and a smattering of American history, and how to read aloud. In short, you'll be wanting to send us all back to readin', writin' and 'rithmetic. And when will we ever find time to teach all the "ologies" and "isms," I ask you?

I talked with two high school girls the other day. One of them said that Birmingham was in New Jersey, and the other was absolutely sure it was in North Carolina somewhere. American girls, mind you! And neither of them had ever heard of the Danube River or had the faintest idea where the River Thames wandered through the back streets of what old city.

And they weren't especially stupid, either! Not naturally. They'd been through high school, the two of them, and had been graduated with fair enough honors. But neither of them could spell, or tell you whether the battle of Bull Run was fought during the Revolution or in the Civil War. And both of them had a very hazy idea that there had once been a rather dramatic person they called Napoleon, somewhere in the sixteenth—or was it the eighteenth—century. And was he a Frenchman, or what? And why were people always mentioning his name?

They got all their reading out of the detective stories and the crime magazines—regular thrillers, I'll tell you. And as for the theater—Booth, Salvini, Irving, Terry, Modjeska, Clara Morris—who were they, and when did they go into the pictures?

And as for correct speech—why, they didn't speak at all. They mumbled; they muttered; they buzzed through clenched teeth; they "talked tough," like Mae West. They had just two adjectives. Everything was either "swell" or "lousy."

If you can get every pretty girl in the country who would like to go into the pictures to learn to speak like a human being, and not to shriek like a parrot or whimper like a forlorn alley cat on the back fence, you will be doing your country and every embarrassed, apologetic citizen in it a very great service.

"Listen World," omitted today, will appear in its usual place on this page tomorrow.
